Language 'Too Common'

TORONTO (CP) — The establishment of a truly-Canadian identity has been greatly hampered by the ethnic diversity of the population, the French and English languages and the high degree of influence of the United States, a leader in the arts said Thursday.

Dr. Pauline McGibbon, chancellor-elect of the University of Toronto, said: "Canadians are mass consumers of the American culture, and most Canadians don't oppose this influence.

"Our constant exposure to the American way subtly and substantially moulds our values, our view of the world, our careers, leisure time and homes," she told the Ontario conference on economic and cultural nationalism.

Ontario Premier William Davis, announcing the conference March 30, said the object was to hear a wide range of viewpoints and put into perspective the diverse problems inherent in foreign participation in Canada's economy and society.

LANGUAGE A BARRIER

Dr. McGibbon, vice-chairman of the Ontario Youth Theatre and vice-president of the Canadian Conference of the Arts, said one obstacle to the development of a national character is the language.

"Canada must face the world without the cultural insulation of a distinctive language. We share with other countries . . . two of the most widely-spoken languages in the world today, particularly English."

This fact "enormously smoothes our transactions with allies, friends and even antagonists; but also facilitates the easy transplantation to our cultural soil of other mens' flowers, and a good many of their weeds."

She told about 100 delegates the inundation of U.S. culture and the influence of other countries' cultures on the growing number of immigrants "constitute serious impediments, perhaps even threats to the development of a thriving and distinctive Canadian culture."

Louis Applebaum, executive director of the Ontario Council for the Arts, suggested that governments and the people pay more attention to creative artists and their ideas and how they see Canada's future.

He said artists can be valuable leaders, serving as "weather vanes or barometers showing where society should go."

LACKS CAPITAL

At an earlier panel discussion, Robert W. Bonner, former British Columbia attorney-general and now vice-chairman of MacMillan-Bloedel Ltd., said Canada has not the potential capital sources to create the number of new jobs that will be needed during this decade.

Canada needs a free flow of cash to create jobs, he said.

Edwin A. Goodman, a Toronto lawyer and former national campaign chairman for the Progressive Conservative party, said the inflow of United States money during 1966-68 led to inflation and policies to combat inflation created unemployment.

L. R. Wilson, economic research director for John Labatt Ltd., argued that foreign investment has been more prominent in the growth of the "have" regions of Canada and this has increased regional disparities.

Senator Eugene Forsey of Ontario said if Canada decided to go it alone economically, blocked foreign investment and eliminated foreign control already established, Canadians would pay highly for it.

"We can have all freedom from multinational corporations and foreign investment if we so choose, but if we are going to promote Canadian economic independence we need a strong central government, perhaps even stronger than the one now in power," the Liberal senator said.

EARLY MORNING CRASH today sent driver to hospital with head and leg injuries. Edward Craig, 26, of 2980 Pickford, police said, was the only occupant of the vehicle when it hit the pole on Superior near Menzies about 7 a.m. He was pinned briefly in the wreck and was later reported in fair condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital. Police said car was "a write-off." (Irving Strickland Photo.)

Strike Hits Hydro HQs

1,500 Employees Affected

The electrical workers' strike against B.C. Hydro was extended today, with pickets posted at the main office building in Vancouver and a number of regional offices including Victoria.

Office workers, members of the Office and Technical Employees Union, did not cross picket lines, leaving only supervisors on the job.

About 1,500 non-electrical employees were affected, most of them at Vancouver. Sixty-five union office workers stayed out in Victoria. Other centres picketed today included offices at Prince Rupert, Prince George, Vernon and Newton.

Almost 2,000 electrical workers have been on strike since late Monday. Skeleton crews have remained in generating stations and emergency crews are available.

JORDAN RIVER

At noon, B.C. Hydro said the picket line outside its Vancouver head office ended but pickets remained at the Victoria regional office.

In Victoria, B.C. Hydro regional manager A. J. Macdonald said the only other operation being picketed was the hydro-electric construction site at Jordan River, which has been closed for a week, affecting 250 persons.

The power outages — Thursday night when a car smashed a hydro pole in front of Cherry Bend Motel on the Patricia Bay Highway and this morning when a swan flew into conductors cutting power to Rest Haven Hospital, Sidney — were repaired by emergency crews of striking members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

John Hiebert, assistant business manager of IBEW Local 258, said there was 100 per cent support by office employees for the electrical workers picket lines at the B.C. Hydro building on Pandora Avenue.

NO PUBLIC HURT

"We don't intend to hurt the public if at all possible," he said. Asked if transit service will be picketed, he said "not yet."

From Vancouver, Local 258 business manager Doug Cronk, asked why picketing was only planned for part of today, said "We are not desirous of creating a wage loss for other employees of B.C. Hydro unnecessarily. It indicates to B.C. Hydro what they may expect."

Hydro and the electrical workers are deadlocked over terms for a new collective agreement. Wages, job security, job classifications, sick benefit and isolation pay are among the main issues. Hydro has offered 14 per cent more over two years while the union wants 18½ per cent. Linemen, one of the major job groupings, now earn $5.39 an hour.

TRUDEAU, BENNETT TO LEAD CEREMONIES

Prime Minister Trudeau and his cabinet will meet briefly in the provincial cabinet chamber before joining Premier Bennett and his cabinet in ceremonies in front of the legislative buildings.

The federal cabinet will be led by two pipers from the Empress Hotel to the Legislative Buildings at 9:30 a.m.

Trudeau and Bennett will make brief speeches shortly after 10 and at 10:28 the pair will jointly start the London-Victoria air race by trans-Atlantic telephone call.

LBJ Memoirs Confirm Advance War Planning

GARDEN CITY, N.Y. (AP) — Newsday says Lyndon B. Johnson's still unpublished White House memoirs acknowledge that his administration was privately preparing in early 1964 for large-scale United States military involvement in Vietnam, long before the depth of the U.S. commitment was known to the public.

The memoirs, to be published in November, support many of the findings of the classified Pentagon study of the war's origins which the government has been fighting to keep secret, says the Long Island newspaper.

The former president's book, now largely in galley form at the New York publishing firm of Holt, Rinehart and Winston, is entitled, The Vantage Point: Perspectives of the Presidency.

Newsday says it obtained information about the material from a publishing industry source. It gives this account:

Johnson depicts himself in the book as having been hesitant for several months over approving military advisers' recommendations for bombing raids against North Vietnam. But in February, 1965, he writes, he told his aides that he was approving the bombing.

MADE DECISIONS EARLY

In the book, Johnson says that he first decided to pursue President Kennedy's policy of defending South Vietnam sovereignty while flying back to Washington only a few hours after Kennedy's assassination in November, 1963.

Pentagon Case Splits Court Five to Four

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Supreme Court agreed today to hold a hearing on government attempts to restrain publication of articles in the New York Times and the Washington Post on a Pentagon study of the Vietnam war.

The cases will be heard by the justices at 11 a.m. EDT Saturday. Meanwhile, the court barred the two newspapers from running any stories to which the government has objections.

Had the court not acted before nightfall, the Post would have been free to resume its series without restrictions. In a plea filed this morning, the newspaper said the public interest required free discussion of the war and that any further restraint would be "totally intolerable."

The court split 5 to 4 in keeping the paper from running uncensored articles beginning with the Saturday edition.

CONTINUE LIMITED BAN

By the same vote the court continued restrictions placed on The Times by the U.S. Circuit Court in New York City. The Times will be able to print Saturday only material that the justice department considers safe for public consumption.

The Times told the court in a petition Thursday that the restraint, imposed by the U.S. Circuit Court in New York City, "imposes an insupportable burden on a free press."

Constitutional Talks Finished for Now—PM

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said today he is not thinking of convening another federal-provincial constitutional conference at this time.

He made the comment to reporters after indicating in the Commons he does not regard as final Quebec's veto of proposed constitutional changes contained in the "Victoria charter."

Mr. Trudeau told reporters he has no plans for a meeting with Premier Robert Bourassa of Quebec.

But if Quebec wanted to talk about something in the charter it considered unclear, Ottawa would listen with an open mind.

If Quebec wanted to change its "no" to a "yes" the other governments probably would not hold out for the Monday deadline for response to the charter.

UP TO OTHERS

If any new conference is convened, it will have to be at somebody else's initiative, Mr. Trudeau added.

Quebec had said "no" to the results of three years' work.

In Quebec, constitutional matters were of interest to only a "small group." Quebecers were much more interested in jobs and the economy.

Mr. Trudeau said there could still be compromise on top of the Victoria compromise. But he was not looking for one. If Quebec wanted one it would have to convince 10 other governments.

The prime minister also said he is not seeking extension of the Monday deadline. If the provinces wanted to extend it, that was OK by him.

PROMISE TO CO-OPERATE

In the Commons, Mr. Trudeau said that if Quebec can rephrase the proposed amendment to which it objects and thus remove uncertainty about it, the federal government would try to work out a solution with the other provinces.

At one point in his statement, Mr. Trudeau used the phrase "if the charter is not accepted." The charter comprises the proposed constitutional amendments.

The prime minister said that apparently Quebec objects to only one suggested amendment which would give the provinces joint jurisdiction with the federal authority in the field of family, youth and manpower training allowances.

Premier Robert Bourassa has said there is "uncertainty" about joint jurisdiction and that Quebec wants full

TALKS ON TAX REFORM

OTTAWA (CP) — Tax reform will be the main subject for discussion at the meeting next month of federal and provincial finance ministers, Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons today.

Trudeau said he hopes to acquaint the provincial leaders with the tax reform proposals presented to the Commons last week and to canvass them for their opinions.

Snowy Summer

VANCOUVER (CP) — There was fresh snow Thursday morning on the mountains that face Vancouverites across their harbor, an intemperate slap in the face that reminded the normally balmy city that it is experiencing some of the worst summer weather on record.

Ginter Disgruntled

WINNIPEG (CP) — Brewer Ben Ginter says he will never invest in Manitoba again as long as the NDP government is in power. He says the government reneged on terms of a provincial loan to his brewery plant here.

MEDINA TO BE TRIED FOR MY LAI—JUDGE

Times News Services

ATLANTA, Ga. — A military judge today ruled that Captain Ernest L. Medina must stand trial by court-martial on charges that he murdered 102 South Vietnamese civilians in My Lai.

Judge Col. Kenneth A. Howard ruled at the end of a four-day pre-trial hearing in which Medina's lawyer, F. Lee Bailey, sought to have charges dismissed on grounds that the United States Army conducted an illegal conspiracy in its efforts to try the captain.

One man, Lieut. William Calley, has already been convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment as a result of the My Lai massacre. His conviction is under review.

Life-Saving Boats Inadequate—Sailor

By IAN HAMILTON

One of six fishermen rescued after battling heavy seas and gale-force winds off the West Coast of Vancouver Island Thursday feels official life-saving boats now in operation are inadequate.

Stewart Mackay of Vancouver said in an interview this morning that lifeboat crews did a first-class job, but that they were hampered by failures in navigation equipment, such as radar.

The 37-year-old fisherman with eight years of experience suffered an engine-breakdown on the Taranui in mid-morning after the storm broke and drifted until rescue in late afternoon.

CONFUSION

"There was nothing but confusion out there," he said with regard to communication problems. "Something is radically wrong here."

He suggested Coast Guard 104 and 105, assigned to such rescue operations on the west coast of the island, are inadequate to ensuring the safety of hundreds of boats in the fishing fleet.

"Let's face it, the real tough conditions are on the exposed west coast and bigger, superior rescue vessels should be in operation here."

Rescue officials this morning credited action taken by other fishermen, among them a Victoria man, as "invaluable" factors in the safety of six fishermen who reported in trouble on four boats off Tofino.

Crunch . . . . . No Car

Ross Payne parked his car Thursday afternoon, got out with a friend, walked across the street and turned just in time to see a two-ton dump truck roll over on his vehicle.

Payne, 54, of 1849 Grandview, had parked his auto on the Old Island Highway near Fort Rodd Hill about 1:30 p.m.

Colwood police said the truck was coming down a hill, when it tipped over. Driver Kenneth Cameron, 18, of 3134 Metchosin, was not injured.

Damage to the truck was estimated at $400 and the car, $1,000.

TV President Faces Charge

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Columbia Broadcasting System president Frank Stanton faces contempt-of-Congress charges, as a result of his refusal to supply film and sound recordings in the possession of CBS to a subcommittee of the House of Representatives.

The committee had ordered him to supply material edited out of the documentary Selling of the Pentagon, and Stanton Thursday replied "I respectfully decline."

Ceasefire Offered

PARIS (Reuter) — The pro-Communist Pathet Lao movement has proposed a ceasefire in Laos followed by talks among the different groups in the country to bring about peace and national agreement, it was disclosed here today.

TENANT VOTING RIGHTS PUSHED BY CAMPBELL

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said today he hopes tenants in B.C. municipalities will get the right to vote on money bylaws next year.

Campbell said he will recommend that the Municipal Act be amended to extend the right to non-property-owners. An attempt by the city of Vancouver to make the changes was delayed at the 1971 legislative session because the change should be made for all municipalities together, Campbell said.

The matter is "still in the study phase," Campbell said in Nanaimo today. But he hopes the right will be approved by the legislature.

Modified versions of money bylaw voting rights are available to tenants in some other provinces, Campbell said.

He said there is some opposition to the idea in all the political parties and among municipalities, but personally favors allowing tenants to vote on money matters.

sank and the lone occupant escaped without serious injury.

Jim Scott of 1508 Derby, aboard the Camjim, and at least four other fishermen, spent the day searching for and standing to beside boats experiencing difficulties.

Scott stood to beside the Leda Two which was "bobbing like a cork" amid 50-m.p.h. winds while another vessel, the Arlene May, located and stayed with The Toiler until rescue boats arrived.

The Tarsnui, with Mackay aboard, was eventually towed into Bamfield harbor late in the evening.

Heavy rain and static resulted in bad reception conditions for the many vessels attempting to use the airwaves, and Scott's large troller is reported to have acted as a communications link between rescuers and those in peril.

MAJOR WEAKNESS

Mackay says it is common knowledge among fishermen that rescuers aboard the Tofino and Bamfield Coast Guard vessels experience problems hearing their radio because of excessive engine noise. He said this factor is a major weakness with all future rescue operations in mind, unless something is done.

Rescue operations started at 8 a.m. and continued until late evening with the fishing boats in peril spread out all over a wide expanse of sea, according to a Bamfield Lifeboat Station spokesman.

jurisdiction in the field of social security.

Mr. Trudeau announced that the federal government has formally accepted the proposed charter worked out at Victoria last week.

He said the charter is a compromise, but a good compromise. Ottawa had made a number of important concessions. So had the provinces.

Though none of the 11 governments got exactly what it wanted, all felt that Canada would be better served with the charter than without it.

"That being the nature of compromise, and therefore the nature of the charter, it is a matter of particular disappointment and regret that the government of Quebec has decided that it is not prepared to accept the charter as it stands," Mr. Trudeau said.

However, there was "some hope" in the fact that Quebec's refusal was based on objection to only one aspect of the charter.

chapters on Vietnam, Johnson says:

On March 17, 1964, he approved a recommendation by Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara that U.S. forces should be prepared for a "program of graduating military pressure against the North."

In September, 1964, Johnson approved a contingency plan for bombing recommended by the military to be implemented if Communist forces made a "spectacular" attack in the South. But he then waited until Feb. 7, 1965, to start bombing, twice rejecting military advice from advisers, to begin earlier.

About three weeks after the first major battle involving American ground troops in a campaign in June, 1965, Johnson authorized a 25,000-man troop increase to 75,000. He writes: "I was convinced that our retreat from this challenge would open the path to World War III."

Ads Will Hit Drinking Driver

The provincial government today warned drinking drivers that a newspaper advertising campaign will be launched soon against their dangerous habits.

An announcement from Attorney-General Leslie Peterson's office said statistics for the first quarter of 1971 showed an increase in automobile accident deaths and at least 50 per cent of the fatalities involved drinking drivers.

The advertising campaign will be jointly sponsored by the motor vehicle branch and the B.C. automobile insurance board.

Port Delay By Ottawa Irks Mayor

The federal government has again assured Victoria its request for a locally controlled harbor is under consideration, but Mayor Courtney Haddock says he wants more information.

Haddock said today it has been 18 months since Victoria first asked for a harbor commission and no decision has been made.

In an interview, Haddock quoted from a letter received recently from Transport Minister Don Jamieson that says "please be assured that we are cognizant of your concern."

The letter adds that Ottawa will be in touch later on the matter, but Haddock said he will write back first, asking how soon he can expect a decision.

"In the first place," Haddock said, "the federal government (has said it) wants to have ports run locally.

"It's been 18 months and they haven't come to grips with it."

Mediator Sought

Saanich police commission has applied for a mediation officer to try to settle the contract dispute with the Saanich Police Association, it was announced Thursday.

Talks broke off last week with the association saying no firm counter offer was made by the commission while the commission said three separate offers were made. No details were disclosed.

A mediation officer has also been applied for by Victoria in its dispute with the Victoria Policemen's Union. City police rejected an offer which would have raised the monthly salary of a first-class constable to $884 by July 1, 1972. He now receives $728 a month.

Greater Victoria police unions, which have scheduled a mass meeting this Wednesday night, are seeking salary parity with Vancouver and lower mainland forces. Vancouver police will be paid $887, for first-class constables, on July 1 of this year.

Oak Bay and Esquimalt police unions, meanwhile, have announced that they have joined Victoria and Saanich police in "working to rule." No one explained what the move means and there has been no slowdown reported. Negotiations were continuing.

The Victoria Policemen's Union, through its spokesman, Vancouver lawyer Charles Maclean, has written the city police commission asking for a meeting with the full commission.

The letter said this was "not an attempt to circumvent" Victoria lawyer E. E. Pearlman, who has acted as spokesman for the commission's bargaining committee.

Pickets Interrupt Rest Home Work

Pickets appeared at the National Nursing Homes Ltd., retirement apartment site in Oak Bay this morning, stopping work for a brief period.

It was the first time the site, at Cadboro Bay Road and Bowker Avenue, has been picketed since construction started 10 days ago.

Eight women and three men picketed two entrances to the site of the retirement centre, variously estimated to be costing $3 million to $5 million.

Some of the pickets carried signs reading "legal strike for workers rights, CUPE 1311." This union has been on strike for 269 days at Sandringham Private Hospital, which is managed by National Nursing Homes Ltd.

'SWEET WORDS' BID TO GET ROUGH RIDE

Mayor Courtney Haddock's attempt to make abusive language directed at police officers a crime was accepted Thursday by council, but Haddock said he expects it to get a "rough ride" in future.

The only objection came from Ald. Peter Pollen who said he appreciated Haddock's intentions but thought it "most unwise" to send the mayor's resolution to the September convention of the Union of B.C. Municipalities.

The resolution would have to get by B.C.'s municipal leaders to gain any momentum in B.C. It is also planned to send a copy to all major cities in Canada for endorsement, and to all attorneys-general.

To become law, the measure would be written into the Criminal Code of Canada and passed by the House of Commons.

It calls for a law to make it an offence punishable upon summary conviction to "use grossly insulting or abusive language in addressing a police officer while such officer is engaged in the performance of his duties."

Ald. Hugh Ramsay asked if the attempt was fedundant since it is already an offence to use gross language in public.

City solicitor Terry O'Grady answered that such language directed at a police officer is not the same as using it in public.

Haddock did not enter the discussion, except to say that his resolution "probably will get a rough ride" when it goes to the UBCM convention.

S. J. WILLIS PRESENTATION

Irene Wins Leadership Award

The S. J. Willis Junior Secondary 21st awards ceremony was held Wednesday with Irene Mah winning both the S. J. Willis trophy and the B.C. Gillie prize.

The S. J. Willis trophy is awarded to the grade 10 student who has displayed the highest leadership qualities and is one of the top 10 scholars. The B.C. Gillie prize is awarded in conjunction with the trophy.

Leading athletes, Danny Wishurst and Julie Sprinkling, received the school cup awards.

Patricia Cottingham, Clifford Cottingham and Christine Smith were given IODE scholarship awards, while citizenship cups went to Annie Krancevic, Michael Harris and Carol Beisiget.

Stray Feathers

By HAROLD HOSFORD

Stop any man on the street and ask him to name one bird he knows. Chances are, if he knows one at all, it'll be the crow.

Carrying your streetside interview one step further, ask for an opinion on the character of this well-known bird. Here again, if your man-on-the-street has any opinion it'll usually be far from complimentary for the crow.

It matters not that the man-on-the-street from High River Alberta to Halifax and his counterpart in New Westminster, or Courtenay or even Victoria, would be talking about two different crows, the results of your survey would be the same.

The crow, while certainly one of the best-known birds of North America is, to say the least, branded by nearly all as a knave of the lowest order. Why?

TWO KINDS

First, let's get this buisns of two kinds of crows sorted out. Those boisterous black fellows seen anywhere from British Columbia's central mountain valleys to Nova Scotia's rock-bound coast are the straight crows, the real thing the easterners will tell you. Common crow is their square handle.

But along British Columbia's sea cost, and on the offshore islands like Vancouver Island and some of the Queen Charlottes, there's a smaller crow with a western accent called the northwestern crow and the "only" crow as far as residents of the Pacific coast are concerned.

So, while we're all talking about crows, some may be more crow than others.

Except for one major difference in habits, their lives are otherwise very similar. The crow on the plans while he thrives in settled areas, seems well aware of a shotgun's range and keeps his distance, while our Pacific breed is quite at home in our backyards, streets and fruit trees.

COMPETE WITH MAN

In this area of similarities lies the root of the crow's problems — they compete with man. Being omnivorous like us they eat the things we eat, plus much more. In short they are opportunists and man has never admired an opportunist, particularly one from another species.

But more than anything else, the crow's propensity for eating bird's eggs or young has brought them into ill repute. In our strange way, man has set a double-standard for wild things. Those that live within a code we have established, are "good" animals. Those that break our rules are "bad."

And what could be more immoral than eating the young of another species. Fie on you crow!

On the other hand the robin for example is good. It eats earthworms and other creepy-crawlies. And everybody knows the creepy-crawlies don't rate very high.

Deep down though, I have a feeling we despise the crow for another much more basic reason. They're intelligent cusses even by our standards and they sometimes give us the impression they know something we don't.

Tales of this apparent intelligence are many and varied and become more colorful with retelling. But stripping away all the "color" these tales do indicate a degree of intelligence quite remarkable. Crows seem to be able to solve small problems which most other kinds of birds would not be able to handle.

For example, the tale of the dunking crow.

This one comes from Nelson Hinds of Victoria. Nelson saw a crow pick up a hard piece of toast the other day, haul it over to a nearby rain puddle and dunk it deliberately in the water.

SOFTENED

When the morsel was sufficiently softened, away went old corvus with a tid-bit now suitable for a bunch of hungry mouths hidden away somewhere in a nearby tree.

How many times had that crow hauled away hard bread only to have it rejected before discovering dunking? Or was it just a crow with a taste for soft bread? Whatever the reason, this crow had discovered the relationship between water and soft bread.

Then there are the crows of Mendarte Island off Sydney. Up there about four pairs of crows live literally in a supermarket. Surrounded by hundreds of pairs of nesting cormorants and gulls, they're up to their gullets in an almost unlimited supply of food in the form of cormorant eggs and young.

But no self-respecting crow would venture into a well-organized cormorant colony to steal eggs from an unprotected nest. It would be as much as his life was worth. He'd be hammered to death in short order by dozens of strong sharp cormorant beaks. So the crows of Mendarte wait for a disturbance when large numbers of cormorants leave their nests at once. Then they become true opportunists and the cormorant colony is reduced by a few more eggs.

Yes, I've a feeling we really don't like crows because they're smart. As some wag once said: If men were birds, few of them would be smart enough to be crows.

St. Joseph's Puts Priority On New Day-Care Centre

The first priority among badly-needed addtions and renovations for St. Joseph's Hospital is an ambulatory care centre, the board of management decided at its meeting Thursday night.

But members spent a good portion of their time deciding which other project would have allocated funds diverted to make up the shortage between the centre's estimated cost of $260,000 and the low construction bid $21,000 higher.

Also ranking high among the most needed projects are: expansion of intensive care facilities, locker facilities for the hospital's employees, extension of the nursery and addition of an elevator to the sixth floor.

The board finally moved to seek authority to divert the necessary money from nursery renovation for the ambulatory or day-care centre.

The centre is to be located in a one-storey addition alongside the hospital's emergency ward. With two operating rooms and 16 recovery beds it will be able to handle up to 7,000 minor operations a year with patients being admitted and discharged from hospital the same day.

A board committee met today to seatle which contractor gets the job but the hospital also requires approval of the provincial government, which provides 60 per cent of the money, and the capital regional hospital board, charged with raising the balance from regional ratepayers.

Dr. Embert Van Tilburg, the hospital's executive director, said the employees' locker facilities are essential and have been promised for the past 10 years.

The current facilities are deplorable, replacing them is critical for morale purposes and employees are pressing hard, he added.

While $36,000 had been allocated some time ago, an updated rough estimate now puts the cost at about $71,000. The board decided to gather more precise cost details for its next meeting together with what might be provided for the original estimate of $36,000.

Responding to a request from the regional hospital board or details of expansion plans so funds could be sought in a future referendum, the board decided:

- To get an estimate from its architects on what money would be regured to assemble expansion plans.
- To apply for these funds to the provincial government and regional hospital board.

COMMONS TANKER VOTE

Victory for Anderson

Esquimalt - Saanich MP David Anderson won a victory of a different sort this week when the Commons unanimously approved his committee's report opposing oil tanker traffic down the B.C. coast.

Just over three months ago the young backbencher's own party colleagues wouldn't support his request that the committee on environmental pollution he headed be allowed to conduct hearings on the west coast.

It seems Anderson was speaking out of turn and his party seniors were determined to teach him a lesson. Anderson accused House Leader Allan MacEachen of deliberately "shafting" him.

Wednesday in the Commons with about 140 members in attendance the committee's report, which says the tanker route for Alaskan oil must be opposed by all possible means, was accepted with an unusual display of unanimity.

In addition Tory MP Heath Macquarrie took time to note that MPs such as Anderson "are far ahead of the executive, taking note and planning action upon an important matter."

Anderson didn't dwell on this unusual aspect in a phone interview from Ottawa Thursday.

"I'm pleased that every party in the House and all members in the House realize this is a national problem, not just a local problem in Victoria."

He said the Commons united opposition to the tanker route will strengthen the hand of External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp in his dealings with the U.S. on the subject and will also help Americans opposing tanker traffic.

Anderson and two other MPs are among a party of 30 departing Monday on a four-day trip to examine the proposed oil pipeline down the McKenzie Valley.

FRIDAY, JUNE 25, 1971

On to New Ground

THE NEW UNEMPLOYMENT Insurance Act, 1971, of Labor Minister Mackasey received Senate approval this week and will shortly set the standards of contribution and benefits for some five and a half million Canadians. In many respects the new Act merely replaces the existing legislation, but it goes much farther in its economic and social effects. Mr. Mackasey, in fact, has been accused of going to a point where he will "drag a whole government into far-reaching commitments extending far beyond the scope of his own department".

The legislation extends the jurisduction of the Unemployment Insurance Commission into fields somewhat beyond what has been thought of as strictly the temporary replacement of income lost by reason of losing one's job. It may be seen as a step toward the concept of guaranteed annual income, since it increases the amounts to be paid out in income maintenance, widens the number of persons eligible to pay and be paid, and extends the law's provisions to take in new categories of employment and reasons for assistance.

Persons now contributing and unemployed after June 27 will be eligible to receive income equal to two-thirds of their average insured earnings. Where a worker had been earning $50 a week or less the rate of payment will be 75 per cent. After August 22 the top insurable earnings will be pegged at $150, entitling the unemployed person to receive $100 in benefits.

Insurance premiums will be increased to cover the new potential demands; the present time of unusually high unemployment, indeed, starts the new system off under the most unfavorable conditions. But many of the new eligibles will be well-paid employees — teachers and salaried workers, for instance, earning more than $7,800 a year — who are the least likely to be frequent applicants for benefits. The fund will therefore have a new source of strength.

But extraordinary demands on the fund, when the national unemployment reaches four per cent — it was 6.3 per cent last month — will be made up by direct aid from the federal government. This changes the earlier arrangement of grants to make up deficits, to a statutory requirement which becomes effective under specified conditions.

The over-all effect on the country's economy will be that when unemployment is high, and hence earnings, and hence the public demand for goods, are less than they should be, the government will feed revenue into the system at a level which will ensure immediate spending for necessities. But when there is a high total of employment, the insurance fund will be augmented by large sums in the form of insurance premiums being siphoned off from public spending power.

A reversible spur or deterrent to business activity — in other words a medium of inflation control — will thus be built into the economy on a larger scale than before. This, like certain other aspects of Mr. Mackasey's legislation, is an example of the government's trend toward using various forms of governmental financial machinery for social purposes beyond the original intentions.

As with new approaches to the tax structure, the insurance plan will now be used to assert an income-equalizing effect and an influence on inflation. Mr. Mackasey's program even infringes on some functions of the Manpower department, with the danger of duplication and friction. Commitment of the government to supply unlimited funds when the unemployment rate exceeds four per cent involves an open-ended arrangement of the type against which Mr. Trudeau has been protesting.

The new Act will provide greater assistance to unemployed persons, at a greater cost in premiums, which is in line with current trends. But it involves additional considerations which some observers foresee as sources of trouble in the future.

B.C. Employees Parking

In a recent news item reporting objections to parking restrictions in the 600 block Fort Street, Mr. W. E. Webb of the House of Webb Restaurant was quoted as saying: "I don't see why we have to cater to the government boys — they get free parking all day. Then they go right through to Saanich. They don't pay any taxes to the city."

In the event that any of the readers gave credence to any of his remarks I would like to say that if by free parking he means on lands not taxed by the city, then so far as the precinct area is concerned he is correct, but government employees do not enjoy free parking. A parking fee for every employee using a parking space is deducted from his pay cheque. The majority of up-town employees must make their own arrangements, like anyone else, in privately operated lots.

Perhaps it is also necessary to point out to Mr. Webb that, live in Saanich or not, it is Victoria City merchants who benefit most from the collective government payroll, but then Mr. Webb was likely only speaking for himself. — H. F. Kent, President, Victoria Branch, B.C. Government Employees Union.

Be It Ever So Humble, There's No Tax Like Capital Gain

EVER since the thoughts of Edgar Benson turned to capital gains, it has been obvious that the tax experts would have to develop some very arbitrary rules distinguishing between one form of property and another. A rose is a rose, even perhaps in the department of national revenue. But it is impermissible to argue, by analogy, that a house is a house. This is to employ normal vision, which will not do for tax purposes.

Western

For reasons of equity, capital gains are to go hand in hand with capital losses. The government has decided that in future it will share in the good fortune of citizens. To make this more acceptable, it will show compassion in tax collections when matters go wrong.

From the beginning, however, it has been obvious that the government would be none too popular around the home. Even in the white paper, the home was distinguished from the ordinary house. It might be subject to capital gains tax, but only if a person's principal residence appreciated in value by more than $1,000 a year. This was equitable, according to Mr. Benson's original view, because it would practically never happen. The minister's revised view will be generally regarded as even more equitable, homes being no longer regarded as suitable tax targets for the eager men in national revenue.

In one respect, however, the white paper rule remains unchanged. The sanctity of the home does not extend to a second house; nor to a lakeside cottage. This reasoning is understandable up to a point. The department could scarcely be expected to stand idly by while calculating citizens bought up houses in order to escape their just deserts at the hands of the revenue men.

One would assume, however, that, in respect to this category of property, the normal rules of good and evil fortune would apply as it does, with merciful modifications, in respect to a stamp collection. In fact, a different rule must now be applied. This has a respectable tradition in national revenue; expressed in layman's language, it is: heads we win, tails you lose. Or in other words, capital gains yes; capital losses no.

Cottage Not a House

To many tens of thousands of Canadians, especially at this time of year, a lakeside cottage is a house. To the government it is something else — analogous, since it is held for personal enjoyment, to an automobile.

Quoting from the summary of 1971 tax reform legislation: "As the white paper explained, a loss on a personal item that depreciates through use could not be deductible because it would amount to government subsidization of personal expenses. There will be no deduction, for example, for losses on furniture, cars, boats and cottages."

In the case of automobiles, this is clear enough. Every car purchaser knows, or ought to know, that he is sinking his money into a guaranteed loss on wheels.

But the case of a cottage is more complex. Naturally it depreciates — in exactly the same manner as a house. The owner, under the illusion that he is enjoying himself, maintains it — exactly as he does his house. It may be, and often is, deficient in amenities (as some houses are) but this is scarcely an adequate reason for placing it in the category of the automobile.

The distinctive quality of the automobile, as Mr. Benson acutely perceives, is that it is a status symbol one day and an object of ridicule the next. The speed of the transition testifies to the ingenuity of the manufacturers and the use to which they put their government subsidies. It is otherwise with a cottage.

Since most Canadians are condemned nowadays to live in large cities, they turn with desperation in summer time to the lake country. As a result, demand grows for accessible sites and it has been the general observation that lake properties, despite normal depreciation, have increased in value over the years. It is precisely for this reason that the government counts on them as potential producers of revenue in the form of capital gains.

Nevertheless, some will lose. The prospect does not much worry the government although it may well worry the owners. In the present year, losses might have been rather widespread for reasons recognized by implication in Mr. Benson's budget.

The river systems of northwestern Ontario and parts of Manitoba have been so polluted as to rule out fishing; one of the traditional attractions of the lake country. This was due much less to cottager negligence than to negligence on the part of governments. The simple fact is that pulp mills were permitted to dump their chemicals into the streams. Industry is now being given incentives to purchase equipment which will pollute less. But there is no consideration for such cottagers as may suffer although national revenue will be quite happy to collect from them if they manage somehow to avoid misfortune and to sell next year at a profit.

Abhorrent Enjoyment

Consider, for example, the citizen who steels himself against the temptations of the lake country and invests his money in lottery tickets. Mr. Benson will not, of course, permit him to charge up unlucky tickets as a capital loss. But neither will the lucky winner be called to account by national revenue. Instead he may take it all and go to Bermuda.

To the cottager, the logic of this may not be apparent at first glance. From the standpoint of government, however, there may be a certain element of reason in it. Legalized lotteries are the work of government, which saw virtue in them. The cottage lacks this virtue since it may be regarded, directly or indirectly, as the cottager's own work.

Wiretap Feed-Back

THE TIMING OF JUSTICE Minister John Turner's introduction of a bill to outlaw most uses of electronic surveillance is appropriate. The bill is scheduled to come before the Commons next Monday. During Parliament's summer adjournment, ample opportunity should be provided for public discussion of its contents — a purpose the minister had in mind when he planned a substantial period between introduction and later voting on the issue.

Use of wiretaps and long-distance microphones to intrude on the individual's privacy is repugnant to a large part of our population. Though such devices are favored by some police agencies as essential weapons in the fight against sophisticated crime, the dangers of misuse are obvious.

Since the proposed legislation reportedly would not outlaw all uses of eavesdropping equipment, it is in the public interest to know what the exceptions are. Use of a wiretap to prevent a murder — if no other preventive machinery were available — could cause little complaint. But use of the equipment for less admirable purposes — "Big Brother" operations included — could be expected to raise a storm in Canada.

That makes general public discussion of the bill important before legislation is finally passed. What does it contain? Perhaps more important, what does it leave out?

The Inward Look

DR. CLAUDE BISSELL, RETIRing soon as president of the University of Toronto, revealed to the Ontario Conference on Economic and Cultural Nationalism this week some opinions which are reassuring in a general way but perplexing when dissected. He said: "Our nation was launched, in part, because of our fear of the United States and our determination to order our affairs differently. We shall achieve a national serenity when the fear and the determination cease to be obsessive, when we live and flourish in our own sovereign right."

No doubt when we find ourselves as Canadians we will achieve "serenity". But from this and other remarks of Dr. Bissell it is not clear whether our serenity will consist in a restless search for identity or in a flight into a perfect, imaginary world. To be complete Canadians must we be forever asking ourselves who we are, or is there some body of ideals, goals and programs which sums up our nationalism?

We have spent so much of our history being introspective it is quite possible that this form of activity (or inactivity) is the key to the Canadian character. Dr. Bissell keeps us wondering and that is, perhaps, the perplexing serenity we seek.

How to Sell Oil Without Actually Losing

IT IS worth taking a close look at energy dealings between the U.S. and Canada in the light of recent developments here. The dominant item has been the new presidential call for an agreement to give Canadian crude oil free access to the U.S. market under conditions which satisfy U.S. security concerns — that is, a reduction of eastern Canadian dependence on oil from overseas. (Which the U.S. fears might be cut off in an emergency, thus straining the integrated North American system.)

Traynor

In the initial Nixon bid for an energy agreement — it was made a little over a year ago — free access for Canadian oil was tied to a vaguely defined agreement, possibly integrated energy transmission facilities, and the southward flow of Canadian natural gas, hydro electric power and other energy resources. Restrictions on Canadian oil imports were first tightened — arousing Canadian suspicions of a pressure play — and then loosened in the face of impending fuel shortages and a consequent inflationary spurt in domestic oil prices. Parallel with the loosening up on the U.S. side, Canada gave approval (though not completely so) to large sales of natural gas to the United States.

U.S. Expectations

In comments at the time of the latest presidential bid, Interior Secretary Rogers Morton gave an impression of steady U.S. expectations — he spoke of negotiations culminating within a year, and of an oil agreement as "a beginning step" before coming to grips with a broader "continental" agreement. The new bid was, too, enfolded within a major energy drive, in which potential U.S. energy needs (and especially natural gas) were emphasized in a way which was likely to reinforce Canadian apprehension about U.S. resource appetites.

All this somewhat overshadowed the fact that the U.S. tone was considerably less expansive than a year ago — the natural gas, hydro and other questions were left outside the scope of the revised proposal for an agreement, at least for the time being. (The current formulation could be seen as a logical extension of the pattern of the past year.) Also, Mr. Morton left a somewhat superficial impression of Nixon administration thinking on Canada.

Bluntly questioned about Canada's touchiness on energy, Mr. Morton allowed that the administration had no indication that Canada was ready, willing and able to enter into an oil agreement and expressed pessimism about energy dealings generally. (Another administration witness noted the Canadian concern about conserving resources, and drew attention to the fact that one U.S. application for natural gas imports had not been approved.) Mr. Morton said there eventually would have to be a continental energy policy for the benefit of both countries, but he spoke in terms of several decades in the future.

No less significant were Mr. Morton's comments on the idea of developing a pipeline system to carry Alaskan oil southward through Canada's Mackenzie Valley as an alternative to the planned trans-Alaska pipeline systems (TAPS), linked to tankers moving down the Pacific coast. In the course of meetings between the oil companies involved in the TAPS project and the Canadian government, it had been indicated, said Mr. Morton, that the Mackenzie system would be twice as costly, and there would be long delays before the Canadian government gave its approval.

He was not aware that there had been any formal negotiations with Canada on a Canadian pipeline for Alaskan oil — oil which, he said at another point, "we need badly." The interior department was "working diligently" to clear the way for approval of TAPS — and it would likely complete a review of the project by August. (That will provide a basis for seeking clearance from several courts and, if necessary, congressional action on Alaskan native land claims which bear on the TAPS matter.)

What all this seems to point to is a U.S. expectation of limited dealings with Canada, combined with a determination to push ahead with the TAPS route — though not without regard to environmental concerns. Mr. Morton's comments on the slow development of a continental energy policy were relevant to the TAPS question, since the U.S. would need a broad and relatively rapid energy agreement as a basis for sanctioning the development of the Mackenzie pipeline as an alternative to TAPS. (Though some observers think the recently proposed oil agreement might, with modifications, provide the necessary basis.)

California Delivery

There have been revealing developments on the Canadian side as well. In his recent visit to Washington, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp made a proposal which suggested that the Canadian government was looking not to a Mackenzie route alternative to TAPS but to a modification of the west coast scheme to make it less objectionable to Canada.

In a meeting with U.S. Secretary of State William Rogers, Mr. Sharp raised the possibility that the supertankers from Alaska might deliver their oil to California rather than to the Seattle area, thus keeping them out of the dangerous narrow lower B.C. waters.

Mr. Sharp stressed the fact that the Seattle-area oil refinery which is to receive the Alaskan oil is at present supplied by pipeline from Canada. Canada could step up its exports to this area, a possibility which would, incidentally, be in harmony with the recent presidential oil proposals.

Looking Back

From the Times of June 25, 1911:

Inaugurating the new service of the Harrison line between European ports and San Pedro, San Francisco, Victoria and Vancouver, the big freighter Centurion, Capt. Maycock, arrived at the Outer Wharf early this morning after a smart run of two days and 17 hours from the Golden Gate. The steamship is one of the most modern type of cargo carriers and great credit can be given members of the crew for the extremely neat and clean manner in which the ship is kept.

FOR TRUDEAU

Cheers Overdone, But So Are Jeers

By JOHN NICHOL

When Pierre Elliot Trudeau became prime minister of Canada in 1968, he came in on a curling wave of adulation. Not since the 208-seat win of John Diefenbaker 10 years earlier had the Canadian people demonstrated such an outpouring of enthusiasm for a new leader.

The media led the cheering. Most columnists and commentators, excluding those who were committed members of other parties, appeared dazzled by this new unorthodox politician.

But Trudeau knew this to be a fickle world where love can die fast — where hard problems do not succumb to simplistic answers, and where the law of gravity applies. He said so at the time, and he has never stopped saying so since.

Open Season

Now, three years later, in 1971, it is suddenly open season on Pierre Trudeau. The media comments are getting nastier — more personal. He is accused of being heartless and arrogant, of delibertely creating unemployment, and of knowingly jailing innocent people during the FLQ crisis of last October.

The cheers of 1968 were overdone, and the boos and catcalls of 1971 are equally so.

Perhaps it's time that we accepted the fact that there are certain problems in Canada that are not solvable by a snap of the fingers.

The problem of French-English relationships in Canada is the product of (among other things) 300 years of appallingly-biased teaching of history on both sides of the linguistic curtain. No one is going to solve it in three years. Thirty would be more like it—if we are both smart and lucky.

Safety of People

The FLQ has its base in poverty and imported revolution. The imported revolution has its base in the poverty of other lands. Perhaps hindsight shows that the War Measures Act was too heavy a hammer — but how many people (other than the FLQ and other Maoist-oriented groups) thought so at the time?

Trudeau was not dealing with dissent. He was dealing with kidnapping and murder. He had a responsibility for the civil rights and personal safety of all our people.

Certainly some hundreds of citizens were arrested and held in jail. They were deprived of their civil liberties. But so was Pierre Laporte. Does anyone seriously suggest that Trudeau would have taken such drastic action if he had seen another way?

The unemployment figures show that the government was guilty of overkill in its fight against inflation, about which we were all screaming bloody murder not long ago. But we should note that economic experts all over the world are baffled by this problem.

It may make sense to be critical of the government's economic judgment, but it makes no sense at all to accuse Trudeau of setting out in cold blood to deliberately throw people out of work. That would be a policy of both human cruelty and political idiocy. Mr. Trudeau is guilty of neither.

Simple Answer

Often, when we demand "leadership," what we are realy demanding are simple answers. And there ain't no such animal. If you have a headache, you take an aspirin. If the car runs rough, you buy new plugs.

But to the Canadian problems of separatism, unemployment, inflation, regional disparity, and national sovereignty, there are no aspirins to take or spark plugs to change. This is what Trudeau keeps saying.

Pierre Vallieres on his way to court.

Integrity and Revolution

By VLADIMIR DEDIJER
The Nation

Few books in my lifetime have had such an effect upon me as this one of Pierre Vallieres.

The author is one of the leaders of the Front de Liberation du Quebec (FLQ), a clandestine revolutionary movement whose two-fold goal is self-determination for Quebec and the creation of a Socialist society.

One can argue about the effectiveness of Vallieres' revolutionary tactics, but for me the most impressive aspect of his book is its political lucidity and sincerity in an age when the established ideologies of East and West alike can no longer lay claim to such qualities.

I interrupted my reading of Vallieres one evening by watching a television broadcast showing Leonid Brezhnev at the Twenty-Fourth Party Congress in Moscow, and, some minutes later, one of Richard Nixon.

It was spiritually refreshing to return to a book that records a life lived in keeping with deeply held principles, the life of a man whose words and deeds show no discrepancy.

Vallieres' memoirs illustrate a basic problem of the New Left all around the world: how can a rebel protect himself from the defenders of "law and order" on the one hand, and also escape being manipulated by stale revolutionary theories and the mighty organizations and states which stand behind them?

This book is a poem about the effort required to preserve one's own integrity, particularly when one is born a "white nigger of America," one of the pauperized French workers of Quebec.

Vallieres describes vividly the "cunningly organized dehumanization of the Roman Catholic Church which preached the gospel of resignation and apologies for slavery and all kinds of collective masochism to the poor of Quebec."

Vallieres' most moving pages deal with the tragic dilemmas that arose within his own family as a result of this indoctrination.

The author's mother was effectively frightened into docility by her conviction that any opposition would bring down further calamities on her family. She was not a supporter of the social system that was responsible for her bitterly hard life, but she thought that subservience was the only policy that would make it possible to carry on.

Vallieres' father, on the other hand, was a rebel who at one time had dreamed that social struggle could overcome social injustice. He failed in in his efforts, but his son has carried on the fight, resolved in spite of poverty to be "proud and tenacious."

His mother told him again and again that one had to learn to be content with one's lot, that half a loaf is better than no bread. It is not strange that Vallieres dedicated his book to the memory of his father.

Vallieres' main conclusion about the problem posed by the centuries-long history of brainwashing suffered by the poor of Quebec is that man should not submit to history but attempt to shape it himself.

But the difficulty of putting such a program into practice is revealed by the events of his own life: to begin with, he did not have the means that would permit him to acquire the formal education that would help arm him for political struggle.

Nevertheless, simply by virtue of his talents and intelligence, he managed in a short time to make a place for himself in the intellectual life of Quebec.

Then he was faced with the kiss of death, the privileges and status that the leaders of the established society are in a position to confer upon young rebels, and in that way buy them over.

Pierre Trudeau, at that time a kind of dissenter, put Vallieres in charge of the magazine Cite Libre. But Vallieres did not fall into the possible trap. He gave forceful expression to his anti-clerical and separatist opinions — and that was the end of the short-lived honeymoon with Pierre Trudeau.

While Vallieres almost by instinct had refused to lend himself to furthering the interests of the liberal bourgeoisie, he is not yet clear in his mind about the exact role of Pierre Trudeau among the Quebec radicals of the period.

He asks in amazement: "Who could have guessed, in 1963, that once in Ottawa, Trudeau would become the number-one enemy of the French Canadians?"

But the study of history teaches a great deal about the methods employed by the established order to bring about the destruction of the rebels.

For example, in England, that cradle of the system of co-optation, many a young conservative has gone willingly among the "lesser breeds," to study their programs and methods, and thereafter used the knowledge thus acquired to effectively oppose the cause of the underdog.

I would hazard the guess that Pierre Trudeau is simply applying this old weapon against his former comrades in arms.

Having saved himself from co-optation by his own establishment, Vallieres did not fall into the mistake of many an honest rebel — supposing that my enemy's enemy is my friend.

He is critical of "the unfortunate evolution of the Soviet Union," and does not think that "one should consider Stalin alone responsible for it." For him the Soviet Union is simply no longer a country that breeds useful revolutionary theories or attitudes.

And being aware, unlike many in the American New Left, of the other side of co-optation, the manipulation of the revolutionary intentions of militants for the benefit of other powerful states or organizations, he is also aware of the necessity of building a revolutionary movement and an adequate revolutionary ideology. Here, I think, is Vallieres' chief contribution to solving the dilemma of the young rebels of America.

Whether he has chosen the right form of organization and the right ideology, history will show. But I admire his integrity and the human qualities of his book.

That book is at my bedside, and deep in the night, when the troubled man emerges hesitantly like a snail coming out of his shell, I go over the pages of Vallieres' memoirs and ask myself, have I done my duty today to the causes I believe in?

Architects Hold Out For the Closed Shop

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

Selwyn Cooke is an architect. As such he is required by regulations of the Ontario Association of Architects to charge a minimum fee for all work he does. He can't do professional competitive work free of charge; he can't do it for a reduced rate; he can't even promise to waive his fee if his work proves unsatisfactory.

He is obliged to charge at least the minimum fee established by the association. If he doesn't he can be disciplined.

Suspended

Selwyn Cooke knew this when he was competing with two others to be appointed architect for the construction of an elementary school for the Leeds and Grenville Board of Education at Sweet's Corners, 30 miles northwest of Brockville. He knew this yet he promised the board in a letter that he would design a school that would be satisfactory and if it wasn't, he said he wouldn't charge a fee. In a later letter he added the qualification that he would not charge a fee if, within reason, it was not satisfactory. He won the appointment.

For making this commitment, Mr. Cooke has been suspended from practice for four months. One of the competing architects found out about the deal and complained to the association. The Architects Registration Board held a hearing in Brockville, judged him guilty of "using unethical means to obtain architectural work for himself," and suspended him.

Others Do It

It's not considered improper for doctors, lawyers, dentists, accountants, pharmacists, veterinarians and members of other self-governing occupations to do free work or to work for reduced charges. Even to waive fees if need be. Or to guarantee satisfaction.

When James McRuer examined self-governing occupations in his Royal Commission Inquiry into Civil Rights he noted only two of the 22 he looked at that forced members to charge minimum fees. Surveying was the other occupation but surveyors have since agreed to changes in legislation that abolished mandatory minimum charges. Two years ago surveyors joined the doctors, lawyers and others. Only the architects cling obstinately to minimum charges.

Mr. McRuer's greatest concern with self-governing occupations was that they protect the public, not the members. "The power is not conferred to give or reinforce a professional or occupational status," he said. "The relevant question is not, 'do the practitioners of this occupation desire the power of self-government?' but, 'is self-government necessary for the protection of the public?'"

McRUER
. . . public protection

The first thing that springs to mind when minimum charges are mentioned is that the public is being plundered, not protected. That a system of architectural self-protection is at work; a monopolistic conspiracy aimed at assuring all architects a comfortable income.

Association officials deny the charge. Minimum fees are really a means of quality control that guarantees the public high standards of workmanship. Minimum fees are primarily a protection for the public.

If minimum fees were not charged architects would be cutting fees in the competition to obtain contracts and in the process would be cutting corners. The result would be shoddier workmanship — not to the point that buildings would become unsafe, but detailed and painstaking work would be left undone which would result in higher maintenance costs once a building was constructed. Some architects would begin producing what would later become blights on the community, they say.

Sincere but Wrong

Minimum fees are necessary to ensure that architects' overhead costs are met; that they can spend sufficient time on a project to make sure it's done properly; that they aren't forced into seeking more work than they can handle through price competition.

There's no doubt association officials are sincere about this argument. But equally, there's little doubt that they're mistaken. Surgeons could make the same argument, but don't. Architects reply the comparison isn't fair because doctors have hundreds of patients while they have only a few. If an architect loses a client through price competition he's in trouble. To a doctor one client doesn't matter, they say.

Quality Wanted

It's an argument that assumes clients are always going to want cut-rate jobs over quality. That just isn't true and the argument doesn't hold water. Engineers are comparable. They have no required minimum fee and they don't seem to be doing a disservice to the public or to themselves.

The attitude of the architects is the attitude of tradesmen demanding a closed shop. If architects want to continue mandatory fee scales similar to a union's wage contract they should stop calling themselves a professional association, acknowledge that they are tradesmen who need the protection of union procedures and hand back to the province the special, self-governing powers they have enjoyed for so long.

Role of Press More Vital in U.S.

By ANTHONY LEWIS

LONDON — The press is no more perfect than any other institution. Newspapers can be vulgar or silly or craven; they can cry "freedom of the press" when nothing is at stake but their desire to sensationalize for a profit.

But one need not romanticize the press to understand that the Constitution and history of the United States have given it a special function. That function is the real issue in the case of the United States vs. New York Times.

The American system of government places ultimate faith in the judgment of the public and its elected representatives. The president is not meant to rule; the Framers hedged his great power about; in their conception, with legislative restraints. The Constitution commits even the gravest of foreign policy judgments, a declaration of war, to the popular assembly, Congress.

The assumption underlying that democratic faith is that Congress, and behind it the public, will have the information on which to base informed judgments. But unlike Parliament, Congress cannot directly question the head of the executive. Its ability to get the facts from his departmental subordinates is also limited; when they resist or evade there is seldom any effective way to compel responsive answers. And the president's personal assistants are generally immune from questioning altogether — even when, as now, one is the principal adviser on a vital national policy.

It is in this informing role that history has cast the press in American democracy. And not only history but the Constitution: the first amendment's protection of speech and press extends to literary and artistic matters, but its prime purpose was to safeguard freedom of political discussion.

It is no accident, therefore, that great issues in the United States are often framed in the press, when in Britain the forum would be Parliament. The responsibility given by the first amendment is not always met, but sometimes the press does play the essential part in making possible informed consideration of some large question — a nomination to the Supreme Court, say, or the value of a supersonic transport.

All that is in the background of U.S. vs. New York Times. The immediate context makes the issues even more compelling, for it demonstrates how presidential behavior has strained beyond belief the assumption of congressional access to information essential for decision on issues of war and peace.

In 1964, President Johnson suddenly asked Congress for a resolution allowing him to take "all necessary measures" against the Communists in Vietnam. He did so on the basis of an alleged attack on American navy vessels. He told members of Congress that passage of the resolution would prevent enlargement of the war.

We now know that the entire presidential argument was a tangled web of deceit. The circumstances of the American vessels' presence in the area were concealed, and the fact of any attack was at best doubtful.

Far from preventing enlargement of the war, Johnson had ordered plans to enlarge it and was looking for an occasion to get the necessary authority. Thereafter he carried the resolution in his pocket and treated it as a declaration of war.

The process, then, came to this: Congress voted what amounted to a declaration of war without being aware it was doing so, without the barest facts and, worse, on the basis of the blatant lies as to the situation in Vietnam and the intentions of the president. So much for the exercise of a grave constitutional responsibility.

And now the United States government tells us that, seven years later, it can prevent publication of the truth about how the U.S. slid into a self-destructive war. If that view of the Constitution is right, then there is no effective check on the power of the president.

For what is involved here is not military secrets — "the number and location of troops," in the example given by the Supreme Court of an exception to the rule against censorship. What is involved is national policy, which the Constitution commits to public discussion.

The theory of free debate in democracy, Holmes said, "is an experiment, as all life is an experiment." But it is ours.

$758,723 Goal Announced By Community Chest Board

The figure is $100,000 more than the Appeal raised in 1970 and $57,000 greater than last year's official goal of $701,314.

Eric Charman, campaign chairman, announced the goal Thursday following a meeting of the Community Chest's board of directors.

Community Chest president Alan Cox said Thursday the 1971 goal is "no more than barely sufficient" to meet agency needs.

It represents cost increases over a two-year period because 1970's goal was only 1 per cent greater than 1969's in an effort to co-operate with the federal government's anti-inflation program, Cox said.

Charman said $758,000 is "not easy, but I would say that it will be reached."

He said the figure works out to be about $4 per capita, an amount which still would rank Victoria about 27th among Canadian cities in its support for private charities.

"It's a big goal, but it is not anything near what this community could raise if the need was that much greater."

The money will be divided among 24 agencies and the Canadian Red Cross. The Victoria Native Friendship Centre is a new agency this year.

SERVICES EXPANDED

Community Chest services to agencies also were expanded in 1971 to accommodate the Langford Boys' Club which has become a branch of the Victoria club. The Silver Threads service will administer the Meals on Wheels program throughout the year and will receive an expanded grant to meet this expense.

Cox said these services have been brought under existing agencies in accordance with a principle of a Capital Regional District study of social services which said administration costs should be consolidated when possible.

Charman said 1971's campaign will begin in two weeks with volunteers starting to canvass corporate donors. He does not plan an official kick-off date.

Charman intends to use the fall residential canvass as the finale to the summer's work. People will be more willing to give when they see how successful the drive has been in other areas, Charman says.

Volunteers are always welcome, he adds, and should contact him.

Break-In Nets Thieves $568

Oak Bay police are investigating a break-in of the Cambridge super market, 2510 Estevan, overnight that netted thieves $568 in cash.

Police said entry was gained through a vent for a compressor and the money was taken from three cash registers.

Before the Judge

Barry Wayne Genis, 28, of Duncan, was fined $350 in traffic court by Judge E. F. M. Robinson for being in care and control of an auto while impaired. He was prohibited from driving for four months.

Edward Clarence Mayo, 44, of 2574 Millstream, received a similar fine and driving ban for impaired driving.

Roland John Joseph Ryder, 48, of 2666 Deville, was fined $350 for impaired driving and prohibited from driving for three months.

In Sidney provincial court, Judge D. G. Ashby ordered a six-month remand for Jock Anderson, 20, of Macdonald Park Road on the understanding that the man will seek psychiatric treatment.

A man April 30 asked for money from the bank, then left and was apprehended on the street outside.

Mrs. Helen Grace House, 57, of 553 Hurst, was fined $300 in traffic court Thursday by Judge E. F. N. Robinson for impaired driving. She was also banned from driving for six months.

Gabriel Bartleman, 57, of Cowichan Station, was fined $300 for being in care and control of an auto while having a blood-alcohol content over .08 per cent.

He was prohibited from driving for four months.

Out-Patient Home Need 'Urgent'

Victoria's welfare department will be asked soon by city council to report on an "urgent" need for homes for out patients of the Eric Martin Institute.

Council Thursday accepted a recommendation from the Victoria Advisory Planning Commission to study whether licensed homes should be located in residential areas.

Meanwhile, council accepted another recommendation from the APC to allow such a home to be located at 2937 Quadra.

REDUCE CONVERSIONS

The APC also urged council to adopt parts of its Rockland Report (May 1970), reducing the potential for conversion of homes in the Rockland area to community care facilities.

The APC noted that the "provision of rest homes and community care facilities is becoming an urgent government issue."

Statistics compiled for the APC show there are 59 rest homes with 1,090 occupants in Victoria, compared to only 24 rest homes with 457 occupants in the rest of the capital region.

The highest proportion of private hospitals is also in the city: 11 with an average 48 occupants in the city, and six hospitals with an average of 44 in the region.

Original Compositions

Original arrangements and compositions by several of the performers highlighted a recent recital by piano students of Elise Le Gresley.

Prizes were presented to several pupils who had received honor standings in Royal Conservatory of Music, Toronto, examinations.

Taking part in the program were Lise Stone, George Allan, Chris Doneson, Douglas Jensen, Bruce Wilson, Bernie Kidd, Gillian Clarke and Anne Stone, all of whom played their own arrangements, and Roberta Cox and Elizabeth Gibbs who played their original compositions.

Sara White provided an interluede by singing to her own guitar accompaniment.

On the program but unable to attend were Linda Martin, Donna Kilvington, Freya Cook and Daphne Longridge.

Conservatory Open Day A Success

Success of the first open day held by Victoria Conservatory of Music in Craigdarroch Castle may make it an annual event.

The conservatory opened its studio doors to 500 people who took advantage of the opportunity to see how some of the best of Victoria's young musicians are trained.

In a short opening ceremony, president of the board, Mrs. Gordon Grant, described the aims of the conservatory and principal Robin Wood welcomed the visitors.

Guests of honor were Mrs. G. R. Pearkes and Alderman Percy Frampton of Victoria.

Mrs. Pearkes presented prizes to six students who had made special contributions to the life of the conservatory during the past year and who had been generous in contributing their talents for the benefit of the community.

Receiving the awards were Frances Crampton, Susan de Burgh and members of the junior trio consisting of Marc Destrube, Gary Russell and Roger Scobie.

As well as observing actual lessons being given, the visitors were also able to enjoy a continuous program of chamber, choral and orchestral music in the auditorium.

Refreshments were served by the Mothers' Auxiliary.

Achievement Awards Given

Michael Wilson was presented with the scholastic achievement award at the final assembly at Central Junior High Thursday.

The activities award trophy was won by Joanne Tilley, and the A. T. Hunkin leadership trophy went to Susan Harney.

Donna Hammond won the leading girl athlete trophy and John McGuire the boy's athlete trophy.

Quebec's Rejection Spurs Activity, But Now in Secret

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — Although federal officials are disappointed that Quebec did not accept the charter for a new Canadian constitution, there is no indication here that the constitutional review process is coming to an end.

"In all likelihood," said one official, "there will be more activity than ever." But this time, he added, there will be more behind-the-scenes agreements before further full-scale constitutional conferences are held.

There were many raised eyebrows in Ottawa over the national excitement, and dismay, caused by Quebec's rejection of the so-called Victoria charter. Many federal officials feel what is being called the constitutional crisis was blown out of all proportions.

"What everyone seems to forget," said an official, "is that the rejected charter didn't even exist seven days earlier. Yet, all the excitement would indicate that Quebec had just turned down the British North America Act."

"Nothing has changed from two weeks ago."

The charter was developed on the last day of a three-day constitutional conference in Victoria after the heads of governfent failed to reach agreement on individual constitutional changes.

Prime Minister Trudeau, and the premiers, dismissed their officials and drafted the charter on various slips of paper which were finally agreed upon after a 14-hour meeting which ended at midnight.

NO COMMENTS

All government representatives agreed to take the charter home for discussion and announce their decisions by June 28. No commitments were given to the closed meeting.

Some officials said the charter was badly drafted. With more time, said one official, the entire charter could have been "much more clearly defined."

In announcing Quebec's rejection of the charter, Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa referred to the uncertainty of the section dealing with social security.

At the moment, the federal government is awaiting further explanation from Quebec regarding this uncertainty.

But some officials here feel that the need for further discussions on the alleged uncertainty could easily justify further meetings and thus keep the constitutional review process in operation. Under these circumstances, the next meeting would be a continuation of the Victoria conference.

Prime Minister Trudeau told the opening session of the Victoria meeting that unless agreement was reached on a method to amend the constitution within Canada it might be a long time before another attempt was made.

"The object now," said anoffical, "is to keep the Victoria conference alive."

Meanwhile, he added, "I don't think we should get too excied about the rejection of a charter which was rather hurriedly developed in one day."

The Mercedes-Benz 280SE

44 pounds of paint

What makes a Mercedes-Benz stand out, no matter what its age? Consider these reasons.

Unlike conventional cars, that are bolted together, a Mercedes-Benz has thousands of welds to create a rigid, rattle-free unit.

Next it is minutely inspected. All burrs and bumps are smoothed away. After a chemical wash it is submerged in a huge vat where 24 lbs. of primer is electrostatically applied.

Then it is baked, spray-painted, hand-sanded, sprayed and baked again, and finally sprayed by hand. The total primer and paint anti-corrosion protection is over 44 lbs.

After a final inspection for blemishes and ripples, each car is undercoated with a heavy plastic coating for lasting protection against water, road salt, rust, and rot.

COUNCIL DELAYS REZONING HEARING

A controversial apartment rezoning hearing was postponed to September by Victoria council Thursday to prevent disrupting holidays of affected residents.

The move came after Ald. Hugh Ramsay tried to kill the rezoning application by J. W. Dickie before it got to the public hearing stage.

OFF PUBLIC'S BACK

Ramsay said council should stop the attempt now to "save a lot of heartache" amongst single family residents in the area.

He noted this was the third time in 18 months that Dickie has applied to rezone the property.

"I think it's about time we got off the public's back," Ramsay said. "This is a single family area that should be supported." He said he has "a feeling there are six people on this council" against the rezoning, so it is a waste of time to go through a public hearing.

He added that he "understands" there are two other developers with interests in the area waiting for the outcome of the hearing to attempt rezonings of their own.

Ald. Robert Baird, leading the opposite argument, said it would be "most undemocratic" to kill the attempt before a public hearing.

"I think it's one of the best things that could happen to this area," Baird said.

Ald. Percy Frampton supported Baird, saying both kinds of building are residential.

NO DIFFERENCE

"Whether you are in a big building or a small building — it makes no difference," Frampton said.

Ald. Tom Christie was the only alderman to support Ramsay's attempt, but council agreed on Christie's motion to push the public hearing date to September.

Before the Judge

Henry A. Lamb, 18, of 1075 Colville, was sentenced to 30 days in jail Thursday when he pleaded guilty to his second theft of gas within two weeks.

Lamb was fined $75 June 11 by Judge William Ostler when he pleaded guilty to stealing gas from parked commercial vehicles with other accused persons.

Court was told that Lamb was observed about midnight June 19 taking a five-gallon gas can from a parked panel truck at the Goldstream Inn on Sooke Lake Road.

Two witnesses chased the accused and he dropped the can as he fled.

Ostler asked if he had a car of his own and Lamb said it wasn't on the road at the moment.

Napier Durand, 59, of 235 Kamloops, was fined $520 when he pleaded guilty to stealing a pair of sunglasses from Woolco department store June 11.

Court was told the glasses were valued at $7.25. The accused had $10 in his possession at the time.

Bonnie Mae Patterson, 19, of 1731 Cook, and Sharon Profitt, 20, of 1781 Lovell, were each fined $250 when they pleaded guilty to shoplifting about $31 worth of merchandise from Woolco department store June 7.

Court was told that the two were observed putting 14 items of women's wear in their purses and leaving the store.

William Peter Gagen, 28, of 111 Cambridge, was fined $300 by Ostler when he was found guilty of assaulting another man March 7 and causing bodily harm.

The incident occurred in a Victoria home and the man suffered a broken jaw and other injuries.

Cricketers Win Parking Battle

Victoria council unanimously approved a motion Thursday that will allow some car parking next to the cricket field in Beacon Hill Park.

The move all but assures final approval of the scheme that will continue to give cricket spectators a unique privilege in the park. No other sports spectators are allowed to park cars within the park.

Council had earlier tried to ban all parking in the park but a strong protest from cricketers, who already held a special exemption, changed their minds.

A bylaw will be prepared to sanction the parking on the west side of the field, accommodating about 30 cars, council decided.

Rail Union Says Yes

OTTAWA (CP) — A spokesman for the United Transportation Union announced Wednesday that railway operating employees represented by the union have voted 70 per cent in favor of accepting the terms of a two-year contract offered by Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways.

About 20,000 conductors, brakemen, yardmen, yardmasters and switchmen accepted increases of eight and seven per cent over two years as well as fringe benefits comparable to those offered to the non-operating employees. Trainmen's salaries will increase by an average of $1,200 over two years. Trainmen are paid on a mileage basis.

There was no change in the make-up of road freight crews, although both railways had said they would reduce the road crew to two men from three.

The contract for the union expired Dec. 31, 1970, and the operating employees were the last major group to vote in favor of acceptance.

Railway firemen, also represented by the UTU, now are voting on the contract.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Trade Light; Prices Down

Toronto followed the trend in moderately active trading.

AT TORONTO, Labatt dropped 1 to $24, Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas ⅜ to $44⅝, Inco ⅛ to $37½, Bell ⅜ to $46⅝ and Toronto-Dominion Bank ⅛ to $25⅝.

Stanley Brock climbed 1½ to $55, Shell Canada 1⅛ to $36¼, Dome Pete 7 to $93 and MacLean-Hunter ⅜ to $13⅝.

AT NEW YORK, analysts called the market's lacklustre drift a lateral consolidation, which some say is normal after the recent sharp selloff.

"There is nothing in the news background to spark investors out of their lethargy," they added.

Prices included American Telephone up ⅛ to $44¾, Memorex, which has been charged by the Securities and Exchange Commission of violating anti-fraud regulations, off 4½ to $39 and American Airlines down 1⅜ to $25⅞.

AT MONTREAL, prices continued to sag in heavy early afternoon trading.

Combined volume on the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges at 1 p.m. was 1.32 million shares, up from 573,500 at the same time Wednesday.

Falconbridge dropped $2 to $111¼, CPR $1½ to $62½, Moore $1⅝ to $35⅝, Hudson's Bay Oil $1¼ to $44⅝, Inco $1¼ to $37⅝, and Great Lakes Paper $1⅛ to $16⅛.

Trans-Canada Pipe Lines rose ½ to $41, IAC, ⅜ to $18⅜, Brascan ¼ to $18⅝ and Simpson's ¼ to $20⅝.

AT LONDON the market softened slightly around mid-session with prices tending to drift on a lack of interest. Wall Street's failure to extend Wednesday's rally and a fall in British machine tool orders were dampening factors.

Glaxo, Fisons, Dunlop and Turner Newall were slightly firmer but Beechams, Courtaulds, BSR, Plessey and Philips Lamps eased.

AT VANCOUVER prices were lower in moderate trading. Pre-noon volume was 1,327,431 shares.

In industrials, Great Pacific Industries was unchanged at $2.10 on a volume of 12,000 shares. Eagle Industries was up .12½ at $5.37½, Computerex down .01 at .52 and Block Bros. up .05 to $4.

GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Trading in all commodities was easier as prices remained steady at the close of the grain exchange.

Rapeseed futures had fractional losses on heavy hedge offers from elevator companies. Some exporter and crusher buying was done on a scale-down pattern.

Flax had some exporter buyers and posted fractional advances on light hedges.

CHICAGO (AP) — The number of pigs on farms June 1 was greater than a year ago and, because greater use of feed was envisioned, grain futures prices turned sharply higher on the Board of Trade.

With possibly tighter supplies on hand later this year, the trade foresaw the possibilities of higher prices for grains, heavy buying of futures early in the session sent corn prices 3¾ cents a bushel higher and wheat, soybeans and oats around 2½ cents higher. Soybean meal advanced $1 a ton and soy oil also moved ahead arvancing around 20 points.

FEWER LARGER APARTMENTS . . . . . WILL BE CONSTRUCTED

Tax Act May Spur Rent Curbs

By AB KENT
Times Business Editor

Government controls on rent and construction of fewer large apartment buildings were seen Thursday by a Victoria tax consultant as a probable result of the new Income Tax Act.

Chartered accountant David Moore spoke to 40 members and guests of Saanich Chamber of Commerce at the Ingraham Hotel, giving his impressions of last week's tax and budget proposals.

He said the abolition of capital depreciation allowances on revenue-producing office and apartment buildings, against other income following Dec. 31, 1971, will mean "a sharp reduction in demand for large apartments."

It has been a practice of many professional persons to invest in such real estate to provide them with additional exemptions for their professional income.

As long as this capital was kept invested in revenue-producing real estate it was not eligible for income tax. It became subject to tax only with the sale of the property provided that proceeds were not rolled over into a higher, similar investment.

Such an owner of rental property may from January onward feel "If I've got it I might as well make some money out of it — and the rents will go up," Moore said.

"The result will be rent controls and fewer large apartments. There certainly will be an effect on accommodation."

One of those at the meeting said his accountant had advised that windfalls such as sweepstake winnings would not be subject to capital gains tax, which becomes part of the new Canadian tax package.

Moore said he presumed they would be taxable as a gain, although they likely would be averaged over several income years. If sweep prizes go untaxed, he said, "I would be very much surprised."

Income averaging as permitted by the proposed legislation could mean a considerable tax saving in some instances "and certainly will be more generous than the white paper" envisaged, said Moore.

Since capital gains tax is completely new, the government has set no time for it to become effective, and must set a valuation day to work from.

Moore said a pamphlet will be published to explain to the public how to handle capital gains, keep records of purchases, of gains and losses. He suggested valuation day may be some time in August and the finance minister has said it will be before the end of December.

The accountant said he expects there will be room for negotiation with the tax department in many cases, and where difficulty is encountered "any reasonable plan" would probably be acceptable.

Passing an inheritance to sons and daughters will still be difficult under the new act, despite abolition of estate tax at the federal level, because these gifts will be taxed as capital gains. Bequests to a spouse are permitted tax-free.

Moore was asked if he knew of a way around this impediment if a man wished to leave money to his son.

"If you could arrange it, you could marry your son's fiance on your deathbed," Moore said.

A week after the finance minister introduced his legislation, much of the early attraction of the proposals has faded slightly as brokers, lawyers, accountants and consultants get deeper into the implications.

Some are suggesting it will be weeks or months before the whole act and its implementation is understood.

Moore said one difficulty in dealing with the nearly 600-page document is that it has no index, making details hard to find.

Some investment firms have tried to go into the legislation as carefully as time has allowed. Many had at least highlights of the law ready for their clients together with initial comment first thing Monday.

One of the less cheerful of local dealers in initial comment, Harvey Bailey of Doherty, Roadhouse and McCuaig, feels his early reaction stands: That is the person with $15,000 and higher taxable income will be worse off. He was also disappointed that a capital gains tax actually was introduced, despite ample indication that it was being considered. He praised long-overdue personal exemption raises.

Bailey said the securities industry is having second thoughts about the generally "favorable" tax proposals and agreed with the analyst who said the document is "an iceberg" with ramifications that will continue to surface over a long period.

For most, only time will tell the real impact of the new act. For instance, how will the individual come out in the area of deductions from payroll, both for tax purposes and the yet-to-come unemployment insurance constributions mandatory Jan. 2 for 96.2 per cent of the labor force?

What will it mean to his taxable income to be required to declare public medical plan contributions made on an individual's behalf by an employer?

There are always uncertainties in any new system, especially to the ordinary taxpayer who would not normally consult an expert.

The summary of Finance Minister Benson's legislation declares anyone who is married and with an income solely from wages and salaries will pay less tax than he does now.

But even hourly wage earners these days may have modest investment income, which complicates the whole tax business.

If a man happens to have made something on penny stocks, or he cashes in some mutual fund shares at a profit, he could find himself paying more tax than before.

In any case, the summary promises any single persons making more than $8,000 a year will definitely pay more tax, but the increase should not exceed $78 on employment income.

Bailey feels the sweeps windfall will remain tax-free since there is no specific reference to such winnings.

That, and the gains tax-free sale of his personal residence, may be the only areas where a working man can dream of wealth without cutting in the government treasury.

Even death tax, being vacated at the federal level, remains uncertain in areas such as B.C., where provincial succession duties could be raised to produce new revenue.

Profit in April

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's seven major airways showed a combined operating profit of $138,000 in April this year despite losses in the operations of both Air Canada and CP Air, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reports.

Figures from the bureau's aviation statistics centre show that the combined profits are up from a combined operating loss of $1,188,000 in April, 1970.

This April, Air Canada operated at a loss of $390,000. CP Air operated at a $151,000 loss.

But the five regional carriers — Eastern Provincial Airways, Nordair, Pacific Western Airlines, Quebecair and Transair — showed a combined profit of $679,000.

Between January and the end of April, all seven show an operating loss of $5 million compared with a loss of $5.8 million in the same period in 1970.

BUSINESS AND FINANCE

Price

Business conditions and continued pressure on the U.S. dollar in the past year have persuaded The Price Co. Ltd. to pass its quarterly dividend due in August.

A year ago, because of impact on its export sales with a floating Canadian dollar, the company reduced its August dividend. In the months since, "an already difficult situation has worsened," chairman and president T. R. Moore said.

Block

Real estate sales of Block Brothers Industries for the three months ended April 30 increased 58 per cent to $53.8 million, compared with first-quarter sales for 1970.

Sales were the highest for any quarter in the company's history. Gross revenue was $4.3 million, compared with $3.5 million for the period last year.

Profit was $238,000 (four cents a share) compared with $385,000 (seven cents) for the first three months of 1970.

Evans

Increased effort to deepen market penetration in Europe and Britain will be made by the international group of Evans Products Co., which has created a managing director for Europe to be located in Zurich.

With its fleet of eight bulk ocean carriers, the group is the largest western importer of lauan and hardwood plywood and prefinished hardwood panels for the company's building materials division, which last year accounted for almost half the $561 million in Evans revenue.

Midland

Continued exploratory work this summer on its Williams Lake mineral property is planned by Midland Petroleums Ltd., which had inconclusive results from induced polarization and drilling in the past year.

Work in 1970 cost $26,075, which with $18,056 in administrative outlay, less $4,000 income, brought deficit to $763,019 vs. $749,041 a year earlier.

Working capital at year-end was $29,019 compared with $73,978 at the beginning of 1970.

Canadian Breweries Limited Appointment

No-Fault Rate To Remain Same

TORONTO (CP) — Norman Manning, president of the Canadian Underwriters Association, said Thursday the body plans no increases in automobile accident-benefit premiums for one year after introduction of proposed legislation which would make no-fault automobile insurance mandatory in Ontario.

He said the association, one of the largest organizations of automobile insurance companies in Canada, plans a one-year "moratorium" on accident-benefit premiums, if and when the legislation, introduced in the provincial legislature on Thursday, becomes effective.

No-fault coverage would pay benefits regardless of who is at fault in an automobile mishap.

The legislation, introduced by Arthur Wishart, minister of financial and commercial affairs, would require the maximum weekly disability payments to victims of automobile mishaps be doubled to $70 a week on a no-fault basis.

In addition, the proposed legislation would require rehabilitation supplements of up to $5,000 for dismemberment of limbs and loss of sight.

The proposed legislation would eliminate the seven-day waiting period before payments begin and would do away with certain age restrictions.

Hospital Price: $4 Per Person

DUNCAN — For $4 each a year, Cowichan Valley residents can have a 100-bed extended care hospital and an improved Chemainus general hospital.

Jack Dobson, co-chairman of publicity and promotion of the advisory hospital board, today made a last appeal to the valley's 15,500 ratepayers to approve the $1.6 million referendum on Saturday.

"The hospital is definitely needed in this area," Dobson said.

He said there are 33 extended care patients in the 148-bed acute care hospital here and the figure keeps growing.

"This situation not only interferes with operations but it disrupts the general efficiency of the Cowichan and District Hospital. Acute care and extended care are not compatible."

Dobson said the referendum is the cheapest health insurance a taxpayer can buy.

The $4 figure is determined from the house that is assessed at $8,000 with a market value in excess of $20,000.

"You can't buy medical care any cheaper than that."

Ratepayers must vote 60 per cent in favor the hospital to be built on the old King's Daughter's Hospital site in Duncan and for renovations to Chemainus General Hospital.

Residents living in the unorganized areas of the regional district will also be voting on Sunday sports.

There will be 23 polling stations which will be open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

They are: Duncan city hall, North Cowichan municipal hall, Crofton, Westholme, Maple Bay schools, Southend firehall, Chemainus United Church, George Bonner Junior High, Shawnigan Lake Elementary, Cobble Hill, Cowichan Station, Bench, Old Koksilah, Glenora, Sahtlam schools, Lake Cowichan municipal hall, Honeymoon Bay community hall, Mount Brenton, Thetis Island, Diamond, North Oyster schools, Youbou community church, and Ladysmith municipal hall.

CRASH VICTIM IDENTIFIED

City police Thursday afternoon identified Murray Gordon Slack, a 21-year-old serviceman, as the victim of a motorcycle crash earlier in the day.

Slack, police said, died at 1:10 a.m. in St. Joseph's Hospital about 15 minutes after his motorcycle slammed into a power pole on Esquimalt Road near Tyee.

Police said the dead man, attached to HMCS Yukon, was attending fleet school here but was originally from Ontario.

Family Loses Everything In House Fire

NORTH COWICHAN — A family of six lost all its possessions early Thursday morning when their home was destroyed by fire.

North Cowichan, Southend, fire chief Pete Henry said the fire, which left the John van Lieuwen family of 3049 Lake Cowichan Road homeless, started in a garbage can on the back porch after an ashtray had been emptied into it.

Henry said Mr. and Mrs. van Lieuwen had been watching television when they saw flames reflected on the trees on neighboring property.

Flames interfered with van Lieuwen's efforts to telephone the fire department and one of his children was sent to phone from a neighbor's house. At the same time a truck driver put in a call.

Firemen fought the blaze for over 90 minutes.

Whale Census Set for Summer

The killer whale, otherwise known as kak-a-wan by Indians, will be counted this summer.

The federal biological station at Nanaimo will make a census of the mammal on Monday, July 26.

Everyone is asked to become a census taker that day.

Census sheets are being sent to all government departments, ferry and shipping companies, fishing vessel owners, Canadian Armed Services, airline companies, yacht clubs and Indians living on reserves situated along the coast of Vancouver Island and the mainland.

Coast-dwellers are asked to complete the sheets when they see a whale or a group of whales.

The object of the census is to assist in the management of killer whales.

"We have no idea of the number of killer whales in B.C. waters," said Alan Macaskie, biologist. "They are protected animals, but we know little about them."

Starting today, you've got a good deal more than you thought you had.

There's a new deal in town.

A place that's selling the best looking, best performing cars on the market . . . the American Motors line for 1971.

Cars like Ambassador, that come equipped with air conditioning and automatic transmission at no extra cost. Like Matador, the biggest car and the biggest value in the mid-size field.

Like Hornet, the value packed compact that has just introduced Sportabout the only wagon in its size and price range. Like Gremlin, the original subcompact and still the only one that offers you the comfort and security of six cylinder power. And finally, like Javelin, completely re-styled this year to give you more racing flair, more unsurpassed comfort.

There's more to this great new deal.

A good deal more.

BILL WALKER

Times change, and people are getting there faster than ever before. Take the qualifying standards for the 1972 Olympic Games, for instance. Did you know that Percy Williams, who won the 100 metres at Amsterdam in 1928, couldn't make the Olympic team today? Not with his winning Olympic time, that is.

If that sounds out of line, then how about this? The great Jesse Owens, who won four gold medals at Berlin in 1936, wouldn't have made the 1968 Olympic 100-metre finals at Mexico City if he had run the same time as he did at Berlin.

That's what the figures say. And if they never lie, as the saying goes, then the conclusions do, and ofttimes must be considered ridiculous. Because taking a trip down memory lane would quickly stir the old-timers, renew some arguments and perhaps open up some new ones.

In their day, Williams and Owens were the fastest people around, and lost very few races proving it. Williams, a double winner at Amsterdam, was unbeatable for the longest time against what often has been said was the best group of world-class sprinters ever put together in one era. Owens' simply was the fastest runner of any time when he competed at Berlin, and at one time held all the world sprint records.

When Williams won the 100 at Amsterdam, his winning time was 10.8. The standard to get to run at Munich is 10.3, When Owens won at Berlin in 1936, his time was 10.3, and equalled the world record. Yet at Mexico City, the eighth and last of the 100-metre finalists was timed in 10.2.

What does it mean? Little perhaps to the new crowd because after all, it's the price of time. For even if Owens, for example, could have made the '52 Olympic team on his times in the 100 and 200, and his distance in the long jump, it still doesn't deny the obvious fact that the world has speeded up.

Immeasurably perhaps, except for the super-stars. Because not one other athlete in the Berlin Games could meet today's standards. Not one.

And if the youngsters are getting quicker, it's for several reasons.

They are getting more opportunity, the facilities have been improved tremendously, track surfaces are almost perfect, and the coaching has become first class. The competition never changes. It is always there.

Where there once was clay, or cinders, now there is a synthetic underfooting. Where once mud would stick to spikes, now there is a solid track ahead. Where before, runners had to dig their own starting holes, now there are easily adjustible and removable starting blocks. The blocks didn't become legal until after the '36 games.

Sure there are inconveniences. Hot weather makes the tartan tracks sticky and cold weather sometimes produces a marble like surface. When Tommie Smith, the U.S. Olympic star, ran here, he said Centennial Stadium was "great" the first day, when it was sunny and warm, but he felt "A pounding effect" the next day, when a cold wind blew across the plain. Now it is said that this can be overcome.

Or take the pole vault. When Don Bragg of the U.S. won in 1960, which is almost like last week, he got a gold medal for a leap of 15'5". Now he wouldn't get to Munich with a jump like that. He would have to clear 16'8¾" to get out of the country even. Here again the equipment has to be a factor. Those fibre-glass poles literally throw a man over the bar, if he can hang on. And furthermore, the pole-vaulter of today doesn't have a sand-pit, or a sawdust-fill to land in. It's a billowy foam-rubber cushion he can fall on. Upside down or head first. It doesnt' matter now. It once was the jumpers had to be careful where they lit.

But that is simply the ravage of years. Records are made to be broken. And if the youngsters of today are lining up for the chance to get at those that were set yesterday, that's reason enough why the Olympic standards are higher now than ever before.

But could the kids of today beat Williams and-or Owens head-to-head? Or even a latter-day Harry Jerome? At best the conclusion is fail-safe. Because who could say who would win, a runner from one era being mached against one from a different time capsule?

Besides, Williams and Owens are legends. And legends get better with time, too.

McNally, Slaton Hold Opposition To Four Hits

By The Associated Press

Dave McNally and Jim Slaton have little in common.

McNally has been pitching for Baltimore Orioles for 10 seasons while Slaton wasn't even in the major leagues when this one began.

But they both had the opposition in the palms of their hands Thursday as they tossed four-hitters, McNally stopping Washington Senators 6-1 at night and Slaton carrying Milwaukee Brewers to a 6-0 win over California Angels in a day game.

In the only other American League night game on the abbreviated schedule, Detroit Tigers silenced Cleveland Indians 3-0. Oakland Athletics' game at Minnesota Twins was rained out.

DODGERS ROMP

In the National League, the Los Angeles Dodgers took advantage of a rare weekday home game and clobbered the St. Louis Cardinals 11-4, while New York Mets got a big hand from ace right-hander Tom Seaver, who combined a five-hitter with a tie-breaking home run in the eighth inning to upend the Montreal Expos 2-1.

In the only other game, Philadelphia Phillies beat the Cincinnati Reds again, this time 3-1 in 10 innings.

McNally's 12th triumph of the year against four setbacks put him second only to Oakland's 15-game winner Vida Blue in major-league victories.

The Baltimore left-hander got all the runs he needed in the first inning as Don Buford crashed a leadoff homer and Brooks Robinson followed walks to Boog Powell and Frank Robinson with a single for the first of his three runs batted in.

BROOKS WAS BUSY

Brooks Robinson also lofted a bases-loaded sacrifice fly in the third and singled in a run home in the fifth, then took second on a walk and scored himself when Andy Etchebarren, grounding into a force out, kept the Senators busy on a rundown play between first and second.

The victory was the Orioles' 20th in 25 games and kept them 6½ games ahead of Detroit in the American League East.

The Brewers staked Slaton to a five-run lead in the fourth inning and the young hurler protected with a two-hitter until the Angels opened the eighth with a pair of singles. But a force out and Tony Gonzales' double play grounder got him out of danger.

Mickey Lolich scattered eight hits and fanned 11 Cleveland batters as the Tigers slipped past idle Boston into second place in the East Division.

Sikes Breaks Away

CLEVELAND (AP) — First-round leader Dan Sikes admitted he had "a little added incentive going this week" in the $150,000 Cleveland open golf tournament.

"A lot of us are in the same position," the golfing lawyer from Jacksonville, Fla., said Thursday after firing a sparkling, seven-under-par 64.

"We're trying to make the Ryder Cup team and this is the last week for it."

Sikes broke a massive log jam when he finished late in the afternoon at the 6,643-yard, par-71 Beechmont Country Club course.

Three Canadians were well back in the field. George Knudson of Toronto and Ken Fulton had identical nines of 36-37 for 73 while Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver was another stroke back.

Burrards Fleeing League Basement

NEW WESTMINSTER — Vancouver Burrards proved Tuesday's win against the defending-champion New Westminster Salmonbellies was no fluke Thursday, coming up with an 11-10 victory on the leaders' own floor.

Now just eight points behind the Western Lacrosse Association leaders, the last-place Burrards have closed to within two points of Victoria Shamrocks and Coquitlam Adanacs, deadlocked in second place.

Burrards floored three Taskers for the first time Thursday and one of the newcomers sparked the Vancouver side, Bob leading all point-getters with two goals and three assists while regular Al chipped in two assists. Brian was blanked.

Bob Salt, Dave Litzenberger and Brian Davidson also scored twice each for Burrards, who broke a 3-3 first-period tie by outscoring the hosts, 5-2, in the middle frame and then held on for the win.

Goalkeeper Don Hamilton was instrumental in stopping the leaders before a New Westminster crowd of 2,375, coming up with 41 saves to only 24 for rival Joe Comeau.

Dave Matheson, with three goals, and Mac Tyler and Wayne Goss, each with two goals, led the Salmonbellies' offence.

MORE SPORT PAGES 15, 17

A 68-game schedule lies ahead for Victoria's Cougars, fledgling member of the Western Canada Hockey League.

This number of games and the divisional setup of the league were decided by the WCHL annual meeting Thursday. Cougars will play 34 home dates.

Cougar manager Eric Bishop said the club would play five games at home and five away against the Vancouver and New Westminster entries, four home and away against other division opponents Edmonton, Medicine Hat and Calgary, and two games at home and two away against the six members of the league's other division — Brandon, Swift Current, Saskatoon, Flin Flon, Regina and Winnipeg.

The season will run from Oct. 8 to March 22 over the 68-game schedule.

Bishop said he has made a bid for 20 Saturday dates and 10 Tuesdays. The other games could be made up on Wednesdays, Thursdays and Sundays.

LEADER HELPING

He said Al Leader, former president of the Western Hockey League, was handling the tentative schedule, which will be discussed at a series of meetings in Regina July 5-6.

An attempt will be made to schedule the league's east-west all-star game in Vancouver.

It was also decided that Dick Chubey, sports editor of the Calgary Albertan, will stay on as the league statistician.

Bishop said the league will operate with no president but that an executive-secretary is due to be appointed at the July meetings. Ron Butlin resigned as president earlier in the meeting of the WCHL. League spokesman will be Jim Piggot of Saskatoon.

Hayes Happy With Dallas Contract

DALLAS (AP) — Bob Hayes, the Dallas Cowboy wide receiver who has been holding out for a year in a salary dispute, says he's definitely satisfied with his new contract.

The six-year National Football League veteran signed a five-year pact Thursday. It includes a rare clause whereby the Cowboys must get Hayes' authorization before they can trade him.

No salary was disclosed but sources close to the Cowboys said it was about $60,000. The former Olympic sprint champion was asking about $75,000.

He was reported at one time ready to play in the Canadian Football League if his contract negotiations failed.

James Bay Ends B.C. Tel Streak

James Bay Athletic Association hung one up on B.C. Telephone in a Commercial Men's Softball League game Wednesday night at Macdonald Park.

B.C. Tel possessed a seven-game unbeaten streak before absorbing the 12-5 loss from JBAA.

In other games, Royal Trust nipped Butler Brothers 4-3, Independents downed London Boxing Club 9-8 and Dicker-Martens bounced Saanich 24-12.

Battle Royal Headlines Card

Eleven grapplers will tangle in an "over-the-top-rope" battle royal for a $1,000 jackpot Saturday in the feature bout of a professional wrestling card at Memorial Arena.

In preliminary bouts, Bearcat Wright meets Wolfman Gorky, Gene Kiniski faces Duncan McTavish, one of the Skull Brothers tangles with Muir while the other fights Eric Froelich, and Fred Baron battles Pancho Lopez.

Events begin at 8 p.m.

Glamorgan 114 and 322; Pakistan 158 and 15 for no wicket.

DELTA (CP) — Three golfers ended up tied for first place Thursday after the second round of the British Columbia seniors' golf tournament in wet, cold and windy weather.

Hank Mitchell and John Berry, both of Vancouver, and Jack Ellis of the host Beach Grove course were tied at 155 after 36 holes on the 6211-yard, par-72 course.

Mitchell and Ellis had rounds of 79 while Berry shot a 76.

Wednesday's leaders, Clarence Carroll of Chilliwack and Ernie Brown of Vancouver, slipped Thursday as the weather again sent scores soaring.

Brown carded an 83 for 158 while Carroll faltered to 87 for 169. Dave Sears of Richmond stayed closest to the co-leaders with an 81 for 157.

Dr. George Bigelow of Victoria, just one stroke behind the first-day leaders, took 84 strokes and was tied at 160 with Lloyd Harder of Quesnel.

"After an eagle three on the 527-yeard 18th hole on Wednesday, I took a seven," Bigelow pointed out. "That was about the difference in play in the two days."

T. A. P. Jackson of Nanaimo, who had a 90 on Wednesday, carded a 94 on the second round.

WINNING COMBINATION

Dolly Haynes and Rene Robbins combined for a net 66 to win a fourball competition for ladies of Victoria Golf Club. Dorothy Morahan and Jane Dohan were runners-up.

Hunters Clip Bread Crew

Rob Mosses, Dan Green and Jim McCreesh each pounded in three goals Thursday night to lead Saanich E. J. Hunter to a narrow 16-14 victory over Victoria McDonald's Bread in a South Vancouver Island Intermediate Lacrosse League game at Pearkes Arena.

Mike Wilson added two goals to the Hunter total while singletons were chipped in by Matt Mannix, Glen Faust, Dale Hoskins, Leigh Hegan and Mark Patterson.

Kim Bowles set the pace for Victoria with four goals, one more than the total accumulated by Rick Sylvester. Jeevan Dillon, Danny Green and Al Francis each had two goals while Roger Hill counted a single.

Tennis Tourney Spread Around

Courts at the Racquet Club of Victoria, University of Victoria and Carnarvon Park will see heavy use during the Pacific Regional Junior tennis championships starting Saturday and winding up with finals on Tuesday.

Officials expect a large number of entries from all parts of Vancouver Island as well as between 75 and 100 from the Vancouver area. One entry has been received from Calgary.

The tournament will include events for boys and girls under 18, under 16, under 14 and under 12.

Driving Conditions Tough

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — A tired field of competitors entered in the British Columbia Centennial '71 car rally rolled into Sault Ste. Marie in a driving rainstorm early today after completing the run from Toronto on roads that were described by most of the drivers as "a dustbowl second to none."

The first car to arrive was a Renault R8 Gordini driven by Hayden Gozzard of London, Ont., who along with navigator David Grundy, also of London, Ont., took over the number one spot in the rally with 189 penalty points.

In second place with 209 points against them were Paul McLennan of King City, Ont., and Dave Phippen of Kingston in a Fiat 124.

Third place belonged to Bruce and Betty Schmidt of Tavistock, Ont., also in a Fiat 124, with 208 penalty points.

Stan and Suzanne Crews of Fayetteville, N.Y., in a Saab CL2, finished the run in fourth place with a penalty-point total of 235.

DATSUN FIFTH

Rounding out the top five was the Datsun PL510 team of Ole Petersen and Tony Woodlands of Elora and Guelph, Ont., respectively, with a total of 310 penalty points.

The husband and wife team of Mike and Charly Cosner of San Jose, Calif. went off a bridge about 40 miles north of the Sault while Tammi Ruutopold and Don Leonard of Kitchener ran off the road into the bush 30 miles north of the city. No one was injured.

The early leaders in the first-leg Ottawa-to-Toronto run, Jim and Randy Black of Coquitlam, B.C., dropped to 10th place after picking up 546 penalty points in their Datsun PL510.

The cars and drivers leave the Sault at mid-afternoon today.

Blacker the Fish — Better the Day for Fishing

STEWART LANG Reports on The Outdoors

"Fish and wildlife, when expressed in cash and income terms, provide only a modest portion of the national income of Canadians; yet, if their full value is considered, they constitute one of the most valuable resources of the country."

Such is the motif of a background study prepared for the Science Council of Canada entitled "Scientific Activities in Fisheries and Wildlife Resources" which was released Thursday in Ottawa.

The co-authors of this concise report, which contains information of interest to professional and layman alike, are Dr. Douglas Pimlott of the University of Toronto, Dr. John Bider of McGill University and Dr. James Kerswill of the federal Department of Environment.

Though the authors "attempted to be objective" they point out that they are not "unbiased observers".

"We feel very strongly that the perpetuation of fish and wildlife is important to man and the world; we make an unabashed attempt to make this the outstanding aspect of our report because we consider that the maintenance of high-quality environments throughout the world is vital to men's continuing survival."

And, obviously, one goes hand in hand with the other!

Layman (like ourselves) are provided with excellent background material to make the conclusions, proposals and suggestions of the study understandable.

Interest, far beyond that attached to most scientific reports, is generated by the mingling of quotes from a wide variety of sources within the nation and "meaty" specific material in note form.

Most of the current socio-economic patterns of Canada are touched in the reports.

This may be seen in a partial list of headings within the report: goals as a guide to resource policies and programs, social values of fish and wildlife (in detail), economic aspects of fisheries and wildlife, organization for research management and development, organization to manage international resources, scientific activities in fisheries, scientific activities in wildlife, education and use of resources, influence of resources development on fisheries and wildlife and priorities and requirements to achieve goals.

Because of the lack of space, we cannot delve too deeply into even the "subheads" under each of these varied topics. But it might be worth mentioning something more about the last-mentioned heading.

The report states:

"The highest priorities of fisheries and wildlife programs for the next 10 to 20 years should be associated with maintaining, or restoring, a high-quality environment.

"The second level of priorities lies in the modification of administrative arrangement and in blending ecological, social and economic factors of resource management in more realistic and meaningful ways.

"At the third level, we recognize that there is considerable need for reorientation of many research and management programs in fisheries and wildlife and for intensification of some areas of scientific activities."

But enough of the tidbits for now . . . the whole is far more impressive than the individual parts.

And since the science council's prime function is to carry recommendations from its studies to the prime minister, we hope that august figure can find the time to listen, and maybe act.

Beaten Ashe Likes Aussies At Wimbledon

LONDON (CP) — A prophet from Gum Spring, Va., has predicted that either Rod Laver or John Newcombe will win the All-England men's tennis championship as the biggest tournament of them all began the survival countdown today.

Arthur Ashe, himself knocked out of contention by fellow American Marty Riessen Thursday, wasn't going out on shy limb with his pick of the two Australians, however.

Laver is the No. 1 seed with All-England victories in 1961, 1962, 1968 and 1969, and second-seeded Newcombe is the defending champion. His 1970 triumph was his second.

"Laver and Newcombe . . . must be favorites to win," said fifth-seeded Ashe, dumped 6-1, 9-8, 8-9, 6-4 by Riessen in the third round and failing again to become the first black to capture the Wimbledon classic.

"But Stan Smith is right there behind them," Ashe added. "Stan has a good chance because he's playing better than he has ever done before.

"I think Ken Rosewall's chance gets a little slimmer each year."

LAVER PICKS UP

As the battle for quarter-final berths in both the men's and women's singles got under way today, here's how Ashe's favorites in the men's competition fared Thursday and what's in store in the fourth round:

—Laver, now 32 and his service so far in this tourney lacking some of its usual left-handed steam, started moving into high gear by handily disposing of American Clark Graebner in straight setts, 9-8, 6-2, 7-5. Laver goes against always-tough Tom Okker of The Netherlands today.

—Newcombe, who meets Alex Metreveli of the Soviet Union in today's round, trounced Gerald Battick of Britain 6-4, 6-4, 6-4.

—Smith, an American who is the No. 4 seed, whipped Andrew Pattison of Rhodesia 6-3, 6-4, 7-5. His next match will be tough —against veteran Aussie Roy Emerson.

—Australian Rosewall, the No. 3 seed, swept to his fourth-round match against countryman Fred Stolle by overwhelming Jaime Fillol of Chile 6-3, 6-1, 6-4.

AUSSIE LOOKS GOOD

Ashe had no female fortune-telling counterpart, but the defending women's singles champion and No. 1 seed, Margaret Court of Australia, seemed the best pick at this stage.

Mrs. Court, who outclassed Cecelia Artinez of the U.S. 6-1, 6-1 Thursday, was matched against Marijke Schaar of The Netherlands today.

Her main rivals for the title are American Billie Jean King, seeded second, and third-ranked Evonne Goolagong of Australia. Mrs. King defeated Danielle Bouteloux of France 6-2, 6-0 to advance against Christine Janes of Britain, while Miss Goolagong eliminated Julie Heldman of the U.S. 6-3, 6-3 and went up against countrywoman Lesley Hunt in the fourth round.

In women's doubles play Thursday, Jane O'Hara of Toronto and partner Marilyn Pryde of New Zealand defeated Ana Maria Estalaella and Carmen Mandarino of Spain 2-6, 6-1, 7-5, while Andre Martin of Quebec City and Kerry Harris of Australia lost to Americans Mary Anne Curtis and Valerie Ziegen Fuss 6-1, 6-4.

Alberta Puck Body Has Financial Woes

RED DEER (CP) — The Alberta Amateur Hockey Association could cease operations July 25, George Harvey, president of the association, issued that warning this week.

Harvey said a meeting will be held here on that date and the future of the association is "up to the members."

He said the AAHA had incurred a large deficit, partially because of the refusal of member teams to approve a proposed annual participants' fee for coaches, players and managers. The fees would have brought in $18,000 a year to finance operations.

Financing of any future operations would depend upon suggestions members have for the meeting, said Harvey.

PEACOSH RETURNING

KIMBERLEY (CP) — Walt Peacosh has been hired to coach Kimberley Dynamiters of the Western International Hockey League for a second year. He steered Kimberley to a second-place finish in his rookie season.

Louise Strikes Blow for Women's Lib

Part of the hide-bound tradition of the U.S. navy's college in Annapolis, Maryland went by the board last week — thanks to a visit from a slim 20-year-old from Victoria.

In the somewhat suug superiority of those that make the sea their business the college has always had a rule that females, if taken along in one of the college's boats for a rde, did so strictly as passengers. They were not allowed to crew, let alone skipper.

Women's Lib struck the college when Uvic student Louise Anstey, after having won her semi-finals, arrived at Annapolis to compete in the Intercollegiate Yacht Racing Association of North America's championships.

The tradition was scuttled and may never surface again!

Louise is the first gal to ever make the finals of this toughie and she reports that at the beginning of the five days' racing a lot of the "hot shots" were giving her the sneering routine.

Their grins became a little lop-sided when Louise and her crew, Lynn Hilsden, trounced most of them handsomely, finishing up third in their division! The winning skip was "Skip" White of Rhode Island and second-place went to Argyle Campbell of the University of Southern California.

If the "hot shots" had done their homework, they'd have been a little more wary — Louise has been racing since she was 14 and is not a gal to rest on her laurels.

This weekend she'll be at Tacoma to compete in Area H competition which if she wins, will take her to the semi-finals — then the finals for the Mallory Cup, which is the top trophy to be won by an all-women crew in North America.

This time she'll have along as crew Lix Holland, Shirley Jefferson and Joanne Oliver. They'll be racing in San Juan 21s, a boat that Louise has only seen in pamphlets. She's looking forward to yet another new experience.

According to the weatherman the rig may have to be wet weather gear and boots this weekend but at least three local yacht clubs are planning fun excursions.

Thirty-eight boats belonging to the Canoe Bay Sailing Club will set to sea Sunday to hold a picnic and prize-giving in the Sidney Spit area. Organizer Peter White reports there'll be plenty of food and prizes for everyone. How can they miss?

The Royal Victoria Yacht Club will hold its annual picnic Sunday too. This takes place on Strongtide Island with festivities getting under way at 1:30 p.m.

Foreshoreman Ed Peterson, better known as Big Ed, will be showing his usual expertise in barbecuing salmon. There'll be a treasure hunt and other games for the youngsters.

Boats of the Esquimalt Squadron, Canadian Forces Sailing Association, will be heading for American shores.

This is the weekend for the CFSA's annual cruise to Roche Harbor and they'll get things going Saturday morning with a race to Mosquito Passage that leads into the resort on San Juan Island.

Robin Spear and Derek Bissell placed first and second in both races sailed by

LOUISE ANSTEY
... topples tradition

CFSA 420s at Esquimalt Wednesday. Mel Steffens was third in the first race, and Norm Burke, the second.

It was Tony Sayle first and Roger Vayle second in both races sailed in C-Flys.

Rick Lloyd won both races sailed in Fireballs, beating out Bot Wittet and Leo Panatelo in the first one, and Jean Whitby and Leo the second time around.

Victoria Canoe Club members scooped the field last Sunday in competition at Gorge Park. Dave Wild and John Ozard won in senior men's racing, Peter Smith and David Newell captured the junior men's trophy and top women canoists were Lorraine Wilkie and Kathie Kromm. In mixed competition top honors went to Keith and Diane Bell.

It has to be the first time crews have had to use compasses in Cadboro Bay! Last Saturday, peasoup fog clamped down on the bay and Cal 20s mounted compasses for the first half of a four-race series.

But there was wind — although not much — and all races were completed with Sue North's Pegasus placing first. Tied for second spot were George Dufour's Semiramis, Bill Tidy's Litewind and Ken Kidd's Por Gusto.

The wind was even lighter off Victoria where Haidas held a three-race series for the international championship and Thunderbirds a similar series for the Thunderbird fleet championship.

George Mason of the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club won in Haidas, being followed by fellow club member Vernon Forster in Ashanti and Royal Vic's Denny Coverdale in Melee.

Results of Thunderbird racing have yet to be sorted out. Protests and appeals hae yet to be heard, caused by confusion on a windless crowded start line!

SHORT TACKS. . . . Royal Vic. sailors made a clean sweep of the three top spots on the weekend when OK dinghies sailed it out for the B.C. championships at Esquimalt. John Ganton placed first, followed by Andrew Burton and Alan McGillivray.

Semi-Finals At Oak Bay Rained Out

Rain on Thursday evening forced postponment of semi-final matches in the Oak Bay Tennis Club tournament until tonight.

Both the second and third seeded pairs in the men's doubles competition advanced to the semis during play Wednesday but the fourth-seeded duo ran into trouble.

Second seeded Ted Davies and Jim Hassard downed Jake Sotkowy and Ernie Wilson 6-3, 6-3, and third-seeded Peter Bousfield and Tim Cummings defeated Bruce Robertson and Joe Lachmund 6-3, 6-4, to move into tonight's semi-final round.

But fourth seeded Greg Miller and Howard Tooby lost to the pair of John Nichol and Bob Hutton 6-4, 7-5.

In mixed doubles, Pat and John Nichol downed Rene Palmgren and Jake Sotkowy 6-0, 6-2, while fourth seeded Rose Hawthorne and Howard Tooby lost 4-6, 7-5, 6-4, to Jodie Wilson and Ted Davies, who were unseeded.

When Pontiac priced LeMans they must have been thinking of you.

Le Mans Sport Hardtop Coupe.

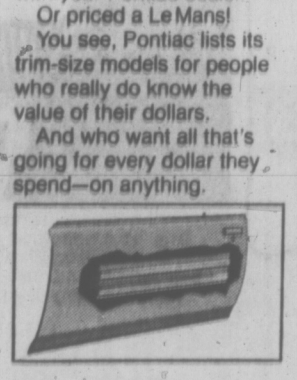
Or priced a Le Mans!

You see, Pontiac lists its trim-size models for people who really do know the value of their dollars.

And who want all that's going for every dollar they spend—on anything.



People like you?

Le Mans has them!

There's more on safety over to your right. "Must" reading for every driver.

What do you think about surrounding the grille and headlamps with fiberglass that resists dings and dents and won't ever rust?

Only trim-size Pontiacs give you that!

So you get a car that will look better, and be worth more, when you trade. The time to think of a car's resale value is when you think of buying.

Make it easy on yourself and get a trim-size Le Mans that's easy to drive, to park, to get your family into (with their luggage), and it's easy on your eyes.

Wide-Track Le Mans! Trim-size, even trimmer priced.

Make a little visit to your Pontiac dealer's. He'll be happy to show you just how easy it is to ease into a new '71 Pontiac.

He'll have a good choice on hand so it should be easy finding the model you want equipped the way you want.

Like a test drive?

Immediate delivery?

As easily done as said.

And that also goes for the deal!

See your Pontiac dealer today. He is very easy!

GM MARK OF EXCELLENCE

The business of auto safety.

Auto safety is everyone's concern. But it's our business.

And we think the attention that's being paid to auto safety is a good thing. Because it will result in better driving for everyone.

And, frankly, better driving for everyone means better business for us.

That's why we're trying to make it easy to be safe by putting in safety features that work by themselves. You don't have to do anything to make them work.

Like Side-guard beams. And the energy-absorbing steering column. And the Cargo-guard between the trunk and back seat. They start "working" even before you get in the car.

But two safety features, two of the most vital, are worthless unless you do something first.

Seat and shoulder belts.

Unfastened they do nothing. And you've seen enough statistics to know what a difference they can make. So use them.

But that's not all you can do. Because the most effective safety feature of all can't be added to our cars or anybody else's.

That feature is you. And the way you drive.

Which should be defensively. And rested. And sober.

We're all in this together. And together we can solve the auto safety problem once and for all.

And the time is now.

Drive a Pontiac deal...

We'll make it easy for you

Police Mop Up Festive Montreal

By DICK VOKEY

MONTREAL (CP) — Riot police moved in ranks through the narrow cobblestone streets of Old Montreal early today clearing out small clusters of the tens of thousands of Montrealers who earlier sang, danced and drank the night away in celebration of French-Canada's national holiday.

The policemen, fully equipped with helmets and two-foot wooden truncheons, moved in after most of the 30,000 St. Jean Baptiste day celebrants had left the historic section on the city's waterfront.

No one was injured by the explosion, but 12 policemen and nine demonstrators suffered injuries in the ensuing street battle and some windows were smashed.

Thursday night's massive street party among the area's stone buildings, some as old as the city itself, capped the annual week-long celebrations honoring Quebec's patron saint.

Nestled between the financial district and the harbor, historic Vieux Montreal came alive with masses of young and old.

TAVERNS WIDE OPEN

Bars, taverns and restaurants opened on to the streets where bands, rock and traditional French-Canadian, kept the crowd alive with music blared over loudspeakers set up by the city and local radio stations.

In Quebec City, as throughout most the rest of the province, the holiday was marked by similar celebrations.

About 10,000 Quebecers invaded the Laval University campus in suburban Ste. Foy where a cultural carnival of film, music and street theatre went into the early hours of today.

In addition, some 12,000 spectators looked on as the annual St. Jean Baptiste parade wended its way along downtown St. Jean street.

Montreal, without an organized parade for the second year because of violent demonstrations on previous June 24 holidays, made the best of it with a rag-tag march through downtown streets to kick off the celebrations early in the evening.

SEPARATISTS MARCH

About 5,000 marchers, including contingents from some of the province's most militant separatist groups, carried the red, white and green flag of the 1837 Quebec "patriotes" revolt and waved the blue and white provincial fleur-de-lis banner on their way to Old Mostreal.

Early in the evening, politics played its part as the street-corner bands tuned up to warm up the crowd.

Entertainers commented on Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa's rejection Wednesday of the Victoria charter agreement.

"Quebec aux Quebecois, le Canada aux Canadiens—Quebec to Quebecers, Canada to Canadians," shouted one rock group leader before breaking into some hard sound that soon had hundreds gyrating.

Oblivious to the singing and dancing around them, some young men handed out leaflets calling for demonstrations July 1 to show that Quebec had said no to the Victoria charter and would now reject Confederation.

But the politics began to fade as the evening advanced.

The taverns nailed back their doors and allowed in the young ladies in hotpants and mini-skirts who are normally barred from the men-only establishments by provincial law.

There was dancing and drinking in the streets and later in the night, bonfires were set as the party continued.

Chair Endowed

NEW YORK (AP) — The Romanian government will endow a chair at Columbia University for a visiting professor of Romanian and Southeast European studies, it was announced. It will be the first Columbia professorship endowed by a Communist nation since 1954, when a professorship in Polish studies endowed by the Polish government was discontinued. It will be named for Nicolae Iorga, Romanian statesman and historian who died in 1940.

THE WEATHER

The storm which crossed the south coast Thursday dumped up to two inches of rain on southwestern B.C. and pounded exposed areas with 50-m.p.h. southeasterly winds. Heaviest rainfall occurred at Tofino which had two inches, with Abbotsford close behind with just under two inches. The storm is giving rain to the eastern Interior today and will cross the Rockies into Alberta later. Cool, moist air has spread over B.C. behind it and cloud continues to blanket most of the province. Some shower activity is expected in all areas today. Rising pressure over western parts of the province Saturday will result in a slight drying of the air giving partial clearing late in the day.

Mine Goes Ahead

SASKATOON (CP) — Gulf Minerals of Canada Ltd. will likely go ahead with a $50 million uranium mine near Wollaston Lake in northern Saskatchewan, company president Nick Ediger of Toronto said Thursday. He said the company was counting on the newly elected NDP government to honor commitments made by the old Liberal government to build an all-weather road and help construct the townsite.

Surprise . . . No Vote

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta premier Harry Strom had the press and the legislature primed for an election call that never came Thursday. Instead the packed press conference was told by mines minister Russ Patrick he had "no clues as to when the election will be."

Blast, Quake Linked

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A California mining official says there could be some connection between the devastating Feb. 9 earthquake and a fiery natural gas explosion that ripped through an underground tunnel apparently killing 17 workers.

Dr. Gordon B. Oakeshott, deputy chief of the California division of mines and geology, said the quake possibly could have disturbed underground formations and caused seepage of the deadly gas that exploded Thursday.

"During an earthquake like that, underground formations are disturbed," he said. "Springs sometimes start and stop, ground water is something disturbed, any fluid, oil and gas would be disturbed."

Seven bodies have been recovered and rescue crews said dense smoke and debris hampered efforts to find the missing men.

OIL WELLS STUD AREA

The tunnel, being excavated as part of a water project, traverses foothills near the quake epicentre outside suburban Sylmar. The area is studded with oil wells. Fire officials said oil seepage doubtless helped fuel a 14-hour fire that followed the blast and blocked rescue attempts for more than 12 hours.

Fire officials say the gas probably was touched off by a spark from drilling equipment.

The explosion in the tunnel was the second in two days. On Wednesday a smaller blast, also attributed to natural gas, injured four workmen.

The tunnel is a link in the $3 billion 444-mile state water project to transport surplus northern California water to heavily populated southern California.

Assassination Theory Probed

CHICAGO (Reuter) — Secret servicemen and Chicago police are reported investigating whether a man shot and killed by police Thursday night might have intended to assassinate President Nixon.

The man, identified as James E. Beavers, 47, of Squire, W. Va., was killed in a gun battle with police in downtown Chicago during the evening rush hour a few hours before Nixon arrived in the city for a speech he will deliver today.

The Chicago Sun-Times quotes a high-ranking Chicago police officer as saying: "There is no doubt that Beavers came to Chicago with the definite intention of attempting to do some kind of bodily harm to the president."

No one in authority was available at Chicago police headquarters early today who could confirm or deny the report.

A spokesman for the Secret Service, which has the responsibility with protecting the life of the president, when questioned about the report, said: "The Secret Service is not making any statement at this time."

MAY BE INVOLVED

Leaving open the possibility of a statement on the affair later, the Secret Service appeared to indicate at least that it was investigating the case.

As always when the president travels, strict security precautions surrounded his overnight visit to Chicago and there was no sign that any extra security plans were made.

While The Sun-Times quotes Assistant Deputy Superintendent Howard Pierson as saying Beavers intended to harm the president, it also reported that John H. Hanly, special agent in charge of the Chicago Secret Service office, said that to his knowledge there was no basis for believing this.

The gun battle took place on busy Michigan Avenue after police suspicions were aroused by a report that a revolver fell from a man's pocket as he sat on a box near a bus stop.

BATTLE RESULTS

Police were rushed to the scene, and demanded the man hand over the gun. The man refused and the gun battle ensued.

The incident took place near the hotel where President Nixon was to address a convention of retired people on a two-day, campaign-style swing he is making through the Midwest.

Relatives of Beavers interviewed by The Sun-Times told the newspaper that Beavers had recently commented bitterly about Nixon and his conduct of the Vietnam war.

Beavers' relatives, say the newspaper, also said he had a history of mental illness from when he was shellshocked while serving in the army in the Pacific during the Second World War.

LIFE ALOFT

Apple Green Hair And Spider Fuzz

jack scott

Chapter Two of our term-end essay, How I Spent My Summer Vacation, is all about painting a house — or an entire house, as you soon come to think of it — and is offered, for want of any other reason, as an educational feature. The lesson to be learned is this: one should never spend one's vacation painting an entire house.

Two weeks ago the house in question seemed to me a medium-sized house. It appeared to have smooth, flat sides which might be transformed from their tattle-tale grey into a shining Apple Green in just three or four days, perhaps five at the outside.

Today I see this house as a gigantic pile of pitted, absorbent lumber that soars to dizzying heights with cracks and crevices and odd little corners high among the eaves and 18,000 small window panes.

It is the same house, of course, except that in the beginning I appraised it's paintability with a lunatic optimism—"Oh," I said, "three or four days, perhaps five at the outside." It was only when I'd fallen six days behind schedule that the vastness, the enormity of it began to induce the kind of schizophrenia that engulfed A. Hitler, history's most famous house-painter.

I once thought of the house as remarkably well constructed, built in a time when craftsmen were judged by the quality of their work. Now I'm just as convinced it was laboriously fitted together by some mad eccentric who hated the human race. Indeed, I've come to visualize him poring over his secret blueprints and his evil design for upper works that might be reached with a paint brush only by an agile, left-handed orang-outang. "They'll never paint this one," I hear him muttering.

A thing I discovered very quickly was that one does not paint an entire house alone. Next to a sudden appearance of Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey, there's no surer, swifter way to attract an audience.

You've only to set foot on the ladder's bottom rung to be aware of figures drifting in from all points of the compass, come to see you sustain your double fracture. They are a sartorial lot. Any furtive ideas you may have to use a little Tom Sawyer psychology to enlist helpers may be abandoned immediately. These are watchers, not doers. They are dressed for contemplation, never participation.

My early work was devoted to painting up under the eaves. The professionals, I daresay, have some technique for this, but the amateur, do-it-yourselfer instantly faces the problem of Apple Green paint cascading down the forehead and arms. Naturally, this gives birth to much original wit.

"Ah," one of the spectators will surely remark, "It's the boy with the Apple Green hair." Or: "You're doing a nice job with yourself and the ladder, but when are you going to start on the house?"

Beneath this merry exterior, of course, they're all critics. There was one fellow who stood by the hour at the foot of my ladder, tireless in pointing out the places I'd missed.

"You missed a place there," he would say, pointing. "Go home, friend," I urged him repeatedly. He never did.

Another unexpected aspect of painting an entire house, a part of the painter's trade unknown to the world at large, is the war with the insects. I had thought I'd come to terms with the insect world, having unconditionally surrendered my garden to them, but here they were again, bent on attrition.

There is one species of gnat which has a mass suicide complex unequalled by anything in nature except possibly the human race and the Lapland lemming. As soon as you have completed a nice, virgin stretch of wall and climbed down from the ladder to stand back admiring it (a thing I seemed to do with great regularity) a cloud of these self-destructing bugs would hurl itself against the shining surface, instantly gaining a memorial that will remain until some other poor sap, in the long-distant future, may decide to cover the evidence of their folly.

I had repeated encounters, as well, with a great many little fuzzy, wool-like balls that are said to be deposited, for reasons known only to themselves, by a type of spider.

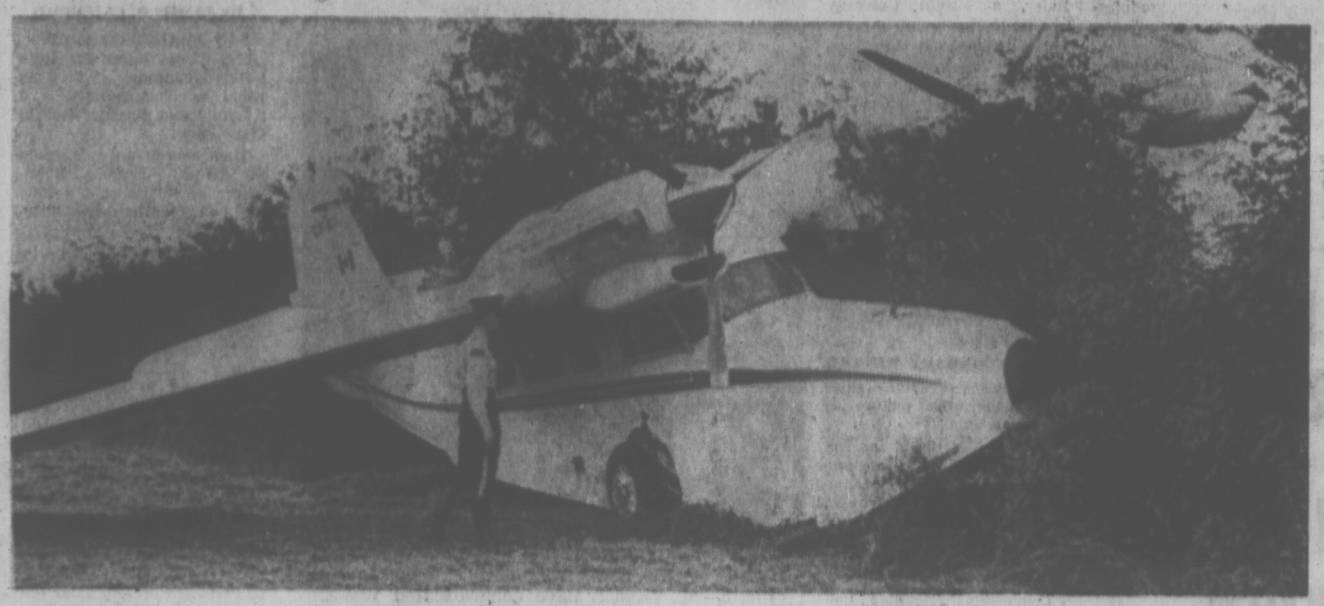
This poses a harrowing problem for the harassed painter. There he is, you see. Brush in one hand. Pail of Apple Green in the other. Leaving his teeth and only the will to live to maintain his position on the ladder.

With a back-breaking effort he plucks off the wool-like ball which has an incredible adhesive quality magnified 40 times by all that sticky Apple Green on the painter's hand.

Carefully, delicately, holding the fuzz between thumb and forefinger, he transfers it to the other thumb and forefinger, unwittingly drawing the paint brush diagonally from one ear to the other. He shakes his hand, snaps his fingers. The fuzz remains, much to the delight of the fans in the crowded bleachers below. In the end he must descend the ladder to wipe it off on the grass, just as the spiders planned all along.

You might think that there would be some fleeting reward of satisfaction when the day arrives, as it eventually did, that marks the completion of the job. It is not to be. You stand back and you see every imperfection, every place you missed. Already the spiders are spinning their woolen balls. And there is the neighbor, still there, telling you, "It badly needs a second coat."

It's not a nice thing to do, but you must kill him.



Heavily Damaged Aircraft Lies in Field Near Victoria Airport

'I never realized what a lucky man I am'
—Chabot

Pilots Survive Crash of Government Plane

CHABOT

A B.C. government plane, returning from taking Labor Minister James R. Chabot to Golden, crash-landed in a field near the Victoria International Airport Thursday evening.

The only persons on board the Grumman Goose at the time were the pilot and co-pilot, who are in good condition today, one at Rest Haven Hospital and the other at home.

Page was thought to have a fractured spine but today hospital officials said the injury might be confined to a crushed vertebra.

After receiving landing instructions at about 6:25 p.m., one of the plane's engines failed, then the other.

The McKinnon conversion carried out on the plane two years ago increased her fuel capacity from 108 to 154 U.S. gallons by installing extra fuel tanks in the outer wings.

The two 200-horsepower radial engines were exchanged for two turbo-prop 270-horsepower ones.

The hull and landing gear was also changed to allow heavier loads to be carried, sound-proofing was installed in the cabin as well as picture windows. An escape hatch was also part of the conversion.

Lorette was unable to say how old the plane was, saying that only Capt. J. B. Toye, chief pilot of the B.C. highways department, would know.

But Toye said he was not allowed to give out any information.

"I'm sorry," he said, "our orders are no dice."

In the past, Minister of Rehabilitation and Social Improvement Phil Gaglardi, the most constant user of government planes, has complained about the aged aircraft.

An investigation team from the federal department of transport was on the scene shortly after the accident, worked all night, and was continuing the investigation today.

In Vancouver, regional superintendent Cy Leyland, said the field investigation could take three or four days and it would probably be six months before the findings were released from Ottawa.

Heavily damaged, the plane lies partly imbedded in bush, and guarded by RCMP.

Chabot, who had flown to Golden on government business, was unaware of the accident until contacted by the Times at his Invermere home today.

He said there had been no indication of any mechanical problems while he was aboard although the planes were "fairly old ones that had been converted."

After asking about the accident and being assured the two men aboard were alive, he added,

"I never realized what a lucky man I am."

Family Service Faces Choice

The Family and Children's Service will decide Monday whether it can support the idea of coming under the jurisdiction of the Capital Regional District.

Acting on behalf of the regional board, Community Council executive director Garth Homer has been meeting F and CS executive director Gordon Wright for the past three weeks.

Homer will report to the regional district Wednesday.

"The Family and Children's Service is in no way committed. We feel once the Capital Regional District has decided whether it thinks the proposal is good, we will be able to say more about it.

"All I can say is it presents to the Family and Children's Service a great many serious questions," Wright said today.

He said the meetings have been a continuation of work begun in 1970 when the Community Council released a regional social services feasability study.

The report was commissioned by the regional district. It recommended the F and CS, Victoria, Saanich and provincial government welfare officers here be brought under one jurisdiction.

Wright would not say whether the F and CS board of directors will support the proposal. Several questions will be discussed at Monday's board meeting.

These include:

Whether a body of elected persons is the best administrative unit to set policy on child welfare matters.

Whether the contrast of the F and CS's 150 staff and group home parents will be honored in a reorganization.

Whether such a large-scale reorganization will improve social services.

Northwestern Prof Succeeds Courtney

A Canadian scholar regarded as the outstanding authority on children's drama on this continent will join the University of Victoria's theatre department, it was announced today by Dean Peter Garvie of the Fine Arts Faculty.

Born in Saskatchewan, Dr. Barbara McIntyre took her undergraduate degrees and her master of arts at the University of Minnesota and her doctorate at the University of Pittsburgh.

Most recently she has been on the faculty of Northwestern University, considered the founding institution for studies in children's and creative drama.

Dr. McIntyre replaces Professor Richard Courtney who resigned recently under controversial circumstances and leaves for Calgary to join the University of Alberta theatre department at the end of this month.

In 1967-69, Dr. McIntyre organized the International Children's Theatre Conference for the American Educational Theatre Association of which she has been a director for seven years.

SPEC Hits Big Gaps In Pollution Report

There are substantial gaps in an interim report stemming from public hearings held last August into forest industry pollution, a senior SPEC officer said today.

One of the biggest is lack of any timetable for introducing proposed new pollution control standards, said Kurt Horn, president of the Cowichan-Malahat branch of the Society for Pollution and Environmental Control and vice-president of SPEC's provincial body.

The report was prepared for the provincial Pollution Control Director, William Venables, by the panel of technical experts which took part in last year's enquiry. Venables has circulated it among the 39 parties which appeared at the hearing for their comments and criticisms by July 7.

PESTICIDES IGNORED

Horn said the recognizes the draft nature of the report but it deals only with mill pollution aspects in the forest industry and ignores such problems in logging as lack of green belts, stream protection and use of pesticides and herbicides.

These criticisms will be be made in a SPEC brief, he added.

The preliminary report, which has not been released to the public, suggests Venables should review all pollution control permits and advise the industries operating under them of new requirements as they are completed.

It suggests three levels of pollution control and says all new installations should be required to achieve the top level from the outset.

UPGRADED

It says insiallations at the lesser of two lower levels should be upgraded on an interim basis to the intermediate level.

The report recommends that where feasible all existing discharges should be upgraded by planned stages to achieve the top level.

Emily Ostapchuk, a member of the panel which prepared the preliminary report, said Thursday:

"Economics is the whole thing involved. The companies don't want to spend a lot of money if they don't have to. But unfortunately I think they are going to have to."

Mrs. Ostapchuk said the proposed top level is probably not now being met by any pulp and paper mill in the world.

DISON APPEAL TUESDAY

A Jordan River mining company will get its chance next week to convince the pollution control board to permit the dumping of tailings into Juan De Fuca Strait.

Dison Development Ltd., will appeal a decision of the pollution control branch which prohibited the dumping into the straits from the Sunro mine near Jordan River this month.

The hearing is set for 10 a.m. Tuesday in room 104 of the Provincial Museum.

A TIME OR TWO EACH year, I'm visited by a gentle old woman who exists quietly in the present, but lives in the past. We start out by making small-talk about the quality of the weather, or the state of her cat's health, or the damage that slugs can do in a garden. Then she remembers how her husband used to patrol their garden for slugs, and present is exchanged for past.

She has returned to her real life, in which her husband makes war on slugs, and they go shopping together, and once in a while drive up to Parksville or Qualicum for a fishing weekend.

"I'm afraid of the water," she will say. "But Frank gets so much pleasure out of his fishing . . ."

She is a widow, and since the recollection of good days when her husband was alive is her chief pleasure, why grudge her that easement?

There are other dwellers in the past whose excursions are of a darker sort. I try to steer clear of them, but that isn't always possible. One casual word, and you find that you have tripped the latch of a Pandora's box. Out come the troubles.

It is reasonable to assume that a man comfortable in the present should be glad to turn his back on a past that was marked by hardship, disappointment and worry. Most of us who lived through the depression of the thirties are content to do so. When we remember that period, it is chiefly with satisfaction at having muddled through it.

We don't make a fetish of it. Yet there are some who do, and more than one jobless young man or woman in these less than piping times suffers endless re-hashings of The Great Depression, when times were really tough.

Not all that was bad or hurtful in the past can be forgotten, by the same token, it's both pointless and damaging to establish a pattern of embittered brooding over what's gone and can't be mended.

Once in Nova Scotia, I made the mistake of admiring a photograph on a commercial fisherman's living-room wall. It showed a boat at moorings — a high-nosed Cape Islander rigged for sword-fishing.

Yes; she had been a fine boat. And I was to know that she would still be afloat if one of those damned Newfie junks hadn't held on a collision course, and rammed her while she was closing on a fin.

And so on, until my ears grew weary . . . an episode sourly reviewed in excruciating detail, as if it had happened that same week instead of a dozen years earlier.

True, no man forgets a good boat, even when he has a better one to serve him in the present. But unless he has let memory turn malignant, he doesn't force every possible opportunity to tell his tale of woe again.

I heard that account three separate times, then found sense and became hard to catch.

There are also those who are never happier, if that's the word, than when comparing the present unfavorably to the past.

They are constitutionally opposed to change. Then was good, now is bad, and their conversation reflects this viewpoint.

The politician who was a bit of a rascal in his day becomes a great leader: they don't make them like that any more.

The boy who wears his hair long is automatically a no-good: it wasn't that way when they were boys.

The modern car isn't a patch on the automobile as it used to be. The modern school dispenses a far shakier brand of education than the little red schoolhouse.

The present, in fact, can't hope to win a round against times-as-they-once-were.

Sometimes when listening to such barkings-back, it occurs to me that the best possible cure for this addiction to yesterday would be a return to the past. Not as the speaker chooses to remember it, but as it really was.

I have no quarrel with the past. There are times and happenings, faces and places that I like to remember. But life has other dimensions. We can't bring back the past, or hurry the future, but we do have the present. And it's in the present, like it or lump it, that we live.

DEMONSTRATOR FINED $200 FOR ASSAULTING OFFICIAL

Paul Watson, 20, of Vancouver today was fined $200 after being convicted here of assault causing bodily harm, a charge arising from the noisy demonstration at the opening of the legislature last January.

Judge William Ostler gave Watson three months to pay.

Mackay was cut twice in the face in the legislative public gallery during a scuffle. Demonstrators at the time were shouting "we want jobs" during the throne speech.

Ostler said he realized the incident occurred "in the excitement of the moment" when Watson saw another man being choked.

But the judge added that he felt the force used by the accused was unreasonable.

Ostler also said Watson was being sentenced "only for the assault."

Watson was to appear in traffic court this afternoon before Judge E. F. M. Robinson charged with causing a disturbance by shouting arising from the same incident.

Court officials at noon, however, were not sure whether this charge would continue following the conviction by Ostler.

CURRICULUM BLAMED

Ecology Not Taught

OTTAWA (CP) — The curriculum in almost every Canadian school prevents teachers in environmental science from conveying their full knowledge and interest to students, says a special Science Council of Canada study released Thursday.

As a result the teachers can present interesting facts to their students, but cannot deal adequately with the interrelationships between man and nature.

The study, Scientific Activities in Fisheries and Wildlife Resources, was prepared by Douglas Pimlott, a University of Toronto ecologist; C. James Kerswill, a program co-ordinator at the Fisheries Research Board headquarters in Ottawa, and John Roger Bider, a McGill University wildlife biologist.

Recommendations based on the study were presented to the government by the science council last October

The study says high school teachers are usually sufficiently trained so that only an adjustment of curriculum would be needed to improve the quality of environmental education.

But on the elementary level, there is an urgent need to establish schools at which teachers can receive instruction in ecology.

POST-SECONDARY BETTER

In colleges and universities in Canada, the picture is brighter.

"Biology is listed as an optional science for arts students at virtually every Canadian university. In addition, faculties of education in some provinces send some or all of their students to departments of biology."

Conversely, Canadian university biology departments tend to restrict their own students from studying in other departments.

The successful management of fish and wildlife requires "an intricate blend of biological knowledge, social understanding, political realism, legal appreciation and economic and financial acumen."

"Unfortunately, the education of biologists has not usually taken them much beyond things biological."

LITTLE INFORMATION

The scientists also took government resource departments to task for their failure to provide more than "shoestring" information.

The study recommends an increase in government expenditures for information and education programs in renewable-resource departments, as well as publication of a high-quality popular conservation magazine by the federal government.

READING the news from Braille script is Paul Caputo, 26. Viewers have congratulated WWLP-TV in Springfield, Mass., for taking the gamble on him. (AP Wirephoto.)

Station Accepts Blind Newscaster

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — When you first watch Paul Caputo reading the news over WWLP—TV, you wonder why he is wearing dark glasses.

If you watch carefully, you see his arms are moving back and forth. He is reading the news in braille.

WWLP believes Caputo, 26, is the first blind newscaster on U.S. television.

Blind since birth, he joined the station's news staff this month. Viewers have congratulated the station for taking the gamble.

Caputo takes notes by tape recording interviews on pocket-sized recorder. For on-the-air material, he uses a braille typewriter.

He didn't mention his blindness when he telephoned WWLP owner William L. Putnam last November for a job, because "people tend to stereotype blind people and not give them a chance."

When he came for an interview Putnam promised him a try, contingent on research at Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Cambridge where a team was developing a machine which can be connected to newswire teleprinters to produce instant reports in braille.

Divorce Decree Gets Champagne Reception

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Jack Stephan, 53, the swinging plumber, values his new bachelor freedom. He values it highly enough to have the official proof of it delivered in an armored car by an armed guard.

And that was how Stephan's final divorce decree arrived Wednesday for a champagne reception.

Waiting for it were Stephan, his son and daughter by his first marriage, his secretaries, several dozen less flambouyant — and less wealthy — plumbers, an uneasy lawyer, an accountant, and 60 bottles of champagne.

"I want three copies of that divorce certificate," exulted Stephan.

"One for my desk, one for my wall and one to wear."

The certificate put asunder Stephan and his second wife.

"I'm going to look up that guy who wrote the song about the second time around and kill him," was Stephan's obituary for the marriage.

Stephan started out as a plumber 25 years ago with his bag of tools and a pickup truck. Today he owns a chain of plumbing shops, and is regarded as one of the richest plumbers in Southern California.

He has full, stylishly coiffed hair, dresses with a modish flair, drives a 71 Cadillac with a sun roof and leaves $5 tips.

Delivery of the divorce decree was originally his lawyer's idea of a little joke. It was Stephan's idea to throw the champagne reception for the arrival of the decree. The lawyer watched the hullaballoo and muttered uneasily about disbarment proceedings.

Larry Lewis Jogs Into 105th Year

By JAMES O. CLIFFORD

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Larry Lewis began his 105th year Wednesday with his usual morning regimen — a 6.7 mile run through Golden Gate Park.

Then he ran an extra mile to the St. Francis Hotel, where he works as a waiter, for a party celebrating birthday No. 104.

Lewis was followed by puffing newsmen, some a quarter his age, as he trotted the last mile to show them "how to do it."

"The trouble with Americans is when they grow up they forget to keep fit the way they did when they were kids," he admonished the reporters.

Lewis, a waiter at the St. Francis for 24 years, was reared on the Navajo Indian reservation. He said he joined the P.T. Barnum circus at 15, was an assistant for 33 years to magician Harry Houdini, and charged up San Juan Hill in the Spanish-American war — ahead of Theodore Roosevelt.

"Teddy Roooseveltgets credit for leading the charge but he was 40 miles away," Lewis said.

Lewis, who doesn't have an ounce of fat in the 136 pounds he carries on a 5-foot frame, still works up to 13 hours a day at the hotel.

He is considered a medical miracle by his doctor — who pays Lewis to let him examine him.

Dr. S. Barrie Paul said he makes frequent examinations in an effort to gain insight into the reasons for Lewis' longevity.

WAITER Larry Lewis celebrated his 104th birthday Wednesday.

"He has more kinetic energy than most of us have ever known," the doctor said. "Larry Lewis had the right combination of parents, the proper start in physical training and the right personal habits."

Lewis' mother lived to be 97 and his father died at about 80.

"But Larry did a lot of it himself," the physician said. "He does not abuse his body by smoking, drinking or keeping late and irregular hours." Paul said the 104-year-old also "eats the right foods — foods low in fat, lots of fruit, and abstained from dessert."

Lewis' wife of 19 years, Bessie, 73, attended the party that featured what Lewis calls his "fountain of youth," an elixir of fresh mountain valley water.

"I drink thred gallons of it a day," he said.

"There's no such thing as a diet," he added. "The good Lord designed us to eat just three meals a day — and no coffee breaks in between."

TIME OF CHANGES

Teen Health Studied

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Too old for the pediatrician, too young for the regular doctor — this is the young person caught in the middle medically and often left out of any sort of medical attention until a crisis arises.

Yet the years between 10 and 19 see some of the most important changes physically, emotionally and psychologically in a whole lifetime.

It's estimated that more than 39 million persons in the nation fall into this age group, generally called adolescence. Now, the adolescent is getting new attention from the medical world, whether it's treatment of that teen-age bugaboo, acne, to proper nutrition, or to chronic diseases which do strike the young too.

Gradually being established in medical centres are adolescent units — with a goal of "total care" which may include vocational guidance, counseling and rehabilitation under the supervision of a primary physician.

In the last decade a lot of changes have been made, Dr. June V. Schwartz, M.D., says more doctors have become interested in the special health problems of the teenager.

"They are approaching him, not as a 'case' of asthma or a 'case' of acne or appendicitis, but as a patient with a number of problems and needs that could affect him not only now but also later in his adult life," says Dr. Schwartz.

A look at teen-ager ailments is carried in her current health care and the adolescent, a pamphlet distributed by the non-profit educational pubic affairs committee.

Adolescence is called the second most rapid "growth spurt" in life, second only to that of the first year. And the body changes are just as rapid — breasts develop, voices change, hair grows on the body, body proportions change — all can affect the adolescent's emotions, behavior and future outlook.

Fortunately, says Dr. Schwartz, the common illnesses like infectious mononucleosis and menstrual disorders are usually not severe. But there's obesity, now being studied widely because of its possible relationship to heart and circulatory disorders in later life.

One warning: No crash diets. Adolescents require more protein, calories, calcium and iron than either in childhood or later life. Rather than harping on eating habits . . . perents can instead try to make nourishing foods more attractive and be more tolerant of their children's preferences as long as a balanced diet is achieved.

The teen-ager with acne needs sympathetic support and a realistic explanation of what it is, along with the doctor's advice about skin hygiene and general health care. "An understanding physician can encourage the teen-ager . . . by teaching techniques of face washing, principles of good nutrition and rest, and correcting any other health problems," says the writer. Some skin lesions need special medical attention and severe acne may require a dermatologist's care.

Venereal disease certainly is a teen-ager problem and parents are advised to speak frankly, and doctors to increase their efforts to find and report cases.

"It is estimated that 25 per cent of the one million cases . . . reported each year is among teen-agers," Dr. Schwartz says.

LOSE IT —OR GO TO JAIL

MIAMI (AP) — Mary Louise Peterson must shed 60 pounds in the next five months or go to jail for the next three years.

The deadline diet was imposed on the 38-year-old mother of six after she was found guilty of disorderly conduct and resisting police. Criminal Court Judge Murray Goodman made the weight loss mandatory as a term of her three-year probation.

"Her attorney said she was on welfare and was too overweight to hold down a job," Goodman said. "If I put her in jail or fine her, I just penalize the children."

At the time of her May 24 trial, Mrs. Peterson, who is six feet tall, tipped the scales at 315. Tuesday, she said she was down to 310.

"I'm on a strict protein diet," she said.

"The judge told me I had to lose three pounds a week until I got down to 250. I'm going to lose more than that, I'm not going to stop until I get down to 200."

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By SYDNEY OMARR

I have yet to meet an astronomer who ridiculed astrology after first making a serious study of the subject. I admit that open-minded astronomers are usually as rare as pearls in oysters — but, nevertheless, they do exist.

SATURDAY, JUNE 26

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Activity is intensified where children are concerned. Make extra effort to fulfill promises. Seeking excuses now would result in serious loss of confidence.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Be a self-starter. Depending on "authorities" now would be an error. Those at the top exhibit traits of uncertainty and doubt. Do your own personal survey.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Steer clear of disputes with neighbors, relatives. Some are attempting to get something for nothing. Self-control now can be your greatest ally.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): If seeking trouble, make commotion with mate, partner about money matter. This simply is not the time to press financial issues. Be receptive. Complete chores.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Opposition that had been hidden surges to forefront. Take initiative, state your needs, outline original concepts, prepare format. Sense of drama is highlighted.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Some of your secrets should be subject to exposure. Be discreet. Keep confidential matters confidential. Someone is trying to draw you out. Protect yourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Social life accelerates. Relations with opposite sex are intensified. Pride soars as you receive meaningful compliments. You go places, do things.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Read between the lines — study fine print. Be aware of apparent minor details. Key is to be thorough. What appears an obstacle will work in your favor.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Emphasis on change, travel and variety. Be analytical. Find out the why of events. One you trust may act in peculiar manner. It's only spring fever.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Check medical, dental appointments. Applies also to family members. You gain most through diplomatic approach. Some funds will be released.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Where there was inaction, there now is likely to be direct confrontation. Brother or sister is apt to be involved. Some who insist are whistling in the dark.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Secrets are in danger of being exposed. Others now may not be as discreet as required. Means associates are talking out of turn. Protect self in clinches.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY your emotions seldom are halfway; when you decide, it is all the way or nothing. You possess natural executive abilities, you can be counted on to save for proverbial rainy day. By December, you should be in better position to direct your own affairs.

Agoraphobia: Housebound Terror

By MAUREEN DUFFUS

Anyone who has ever "Come all over queer" with dizziness or nausea from fear of heights knows a mild form of the panic an agoraphobe feels at the very thought of leaving the house.

The dictionary defines agoraphobia as fear of open spaces, but those who suffer from it know this is an understatement.

Social worker Fran Sadler, who has conducted self-help therapy sessions, says it is one of the most restrictive phobias.

"Most others, such as fear of heights or snakes, can be overcome by avoiding heights or snakes. Agoraphobia, in its worst forms, keep victims in the house for years."

Although the phobia is sometimes called the housebound housewives syndrome, there are many men who suffer from the problem, too.

Only recently has it been recognized that the condition is widespread — in County Kent, England, alone, a self-help program for the problem reports a membership of 100,000.

"Intense depression is added to the panic," Mrs. Sadler explained, "So one of the first things done by the self-help groups (called Se-Cure here and in Vancouver) is to assure sufferer that she is not alone.

"Just to hear someone else say 'I break out into a cold sweat just thinking about going outside' makes them feel better."

The problem is to get agoraphobes out of their homes and to the meetings in the first place. They need incredible will power to force themselves to attend.

An article in Woman-to-Woman Service magazine describes the symptoms:

"When the victim is forced to face the situation she dreads, she experiences blind panic. Almost without warning, she feels helpless and desperate. Her limbs shake and feel like lead, her mouth is dry, her heart races, she cannot breath properly and her vision is blurred.

"Worst of all is the feeling of unreality that dominates her, a feeling with nightmare qualities from which she cannot escape."

"To add to the error is the fact that she doesn't know what she is afraid of, and this merely intensifies the after-effects of the attacks which, in themselves, leave her physically and mentally exhausted.

"Once the acute phase is over, the victim begins to worry about further attacks, and soon her life may be dominated by this dread.

"She realizes her fears are irrational and this is enough to convince her that she's heading for a mental breakdown.

This isn't so.

Most agoraphobes are normal, intelligent people in other respects.

The causes are varied, and there is no special type of person likely to be afflicted.

The fear can start with a single situation, such as an unpleasant experience in a restaurant, which leads to an avoidance of restaurants. It then spreads to other situations — eating out anywhere, going to the theatre, going shopping.

A surprising number of sufferers experience their first panic in supermarkets, worry about future attacks, until grocery shopping turns into a nightmare experience.

Then a fiendish inner voice whispers, "But this could happen anywhere!"

And there she is, another housebound housewife.

This is where the Se-Cure groups come in.

There are now two groups in Victoria, meeting with a counsellor Monday evenings and Thursday mornings.

Of the original eight who struggled out to the first meetings, two have controlled their phobia sufficiently to take jobs, and a third "graduated" when his work shift was changed.

The groups work on the principle that you have to force yourself to go, then to keep forcing until you have the fear sufficiently under control.

"One woman, who later became president of her group, hadn't been out of her house for 14 years, yet she forced herself to a group meeting," Mrs. Sadler said.

"Counsellors or other members of the group always tell newcomers, 'If you feel like running out, go ahead, but try to talk about it first. If you can't, no one is going to laugh at you.'

"Some of them do flee. The panic is too overpowering.

Some are completely cured after four or five sessions. Occasionally it only takes the one effort of getting to a first meeting to prove that the fear is controllable.

"At first, the best thing is being able to hear other people talk about their symptoms, and realize they're just like your own. The relief of knowing you're not a basket case is tremendous.

"Then the members set projects," Mrs. Sadler continued. A little goal at first like walking around the block — around rather than to a point and back or a shopping trip.

Many have tried relaxation and are taking yoga lessons.

Trips downtown or to restaurants are organized, and the groups can make exchange visits for tea to get back into the habit of socializing.

"And still it's amazing the excuses they can think of for staying home," Mrs. Sadler said.

Counsellors have noted that nearly all the husbands of agoraphobes are understanding.

"This suggests that they may themselves have some form of agoraphobia, although it is less evident because men usually have to get out to their jobs.

"It's also possible, though, that they could be relying on the wife's excuses to stay home, thankful that they don't have to go out either."

Local counsellors Mrs. Doreen Appleton and Mrs. A. M. Newton-White report that there still is room in the groups for anyone who needs help in overcoming this crippling phobia.

The Canadian Mental Health Association arranges interviews.

LITTLE VICTORIES

Comments from newsletters of Se-Cure groups indicate how small successes become major triumphs for agoraphobes:

"Bunny C. spent a half hour in a department store, browsing around without one panic. This is really a terrific accomplishment for her."

"Shirley is now doing distance on the bus, 10 blocks so far . . ."

"One of the girls drove over the Pattullo bridge, a real hangup. She was reluctant but got mad at herself and did it."

"Stella's husband was so pleased that she had found the courage to invite us over."

"Barbara is back with us, and has walked all around her block."

FAMILY SECTION

Raped Tenant Wins Suit

NEW YORK (UPI) — A civil court has ordered a Manhattan realty firm to pay a woman tenant $10,000 damages for failure to repair a window that a rapist climbed through. The court decided the broken window was a "cause of the woman's rape.

The court papers released Wednesday identified the woman only as "Janet Smith" and the firm as "ABC Realty Co." The glass of a window in Miss Smith's fifth storey walkup apartment had been cut in early June, 1969, and still had not been replaced when she was raped at knifepoint on June 20, 1969.

Her attacker crawled through the window after climbing a fire escape.

Judge Martin B. Stecher found that "Miss Smith" had made "numerous . . . demands on the superintendent to repair the window."

The landlord announced he would appeal the ruling.

Lawyer Emily Lee Is a First for B.C.

The first graduate of the University of Hong Kong to be called to the B.C. bar still considers Edmonton her "first home in Canada."

Emily Lee has been practising in Victoria nearly two years. She is growing fonder of the Coast, but adds that "one good thing about Victoria is the large number of people from the Prairies."

Mrs. Lee came to Canada on a World University Scholarship to take her MA in education at the University of Alberta.

She expected to stay eight months, so didn't bother to bring her summer clothes. She stayed 10 years.

During the 10 years she took her MA, taught as director of the Edmonton reading clinic, married Y. Jim Lee, a graduate in forestry from the University of Taiwan, and graduated in law from UBC. Mrs. Lee enrolled at UBC while her husband was completing his Phd. in forestry there.

Mrs. Lee said she always wanted to study law because she had been brought up under the British system of government and admires the "British sense of justice."

She suspects one motive for entering law school when she did was "because I didn't want to support my husband."

Another reason, she says bluntly, was to make money. "Men have an excellent nose for money," she said. "It is only in the last few years since so many men have entered elementary teaching that salaries have improved."

Mrs. Lee had her first encounter with Victoria's famous old-world courtesy when she articled here.

She was pregnant and thought the firm would suggest she take a year off. "I was afraid I might never get back to it, so I just didn't tell them," she said.

"They were perfect gentlemen and never mentioned it either." Even such "perfect gentlemen" were a trifle nonplussed when Mrs. Lee worked until the day her son was born.

They admitted afterwards that they had been "very worried."

The Lee family visited Hong Kong, Taiwan and Japan last year. Mrs. Lee thinks the economic situation in the crown colony has improved greatly. She bases her opinion on the fact that for the first time well-to-do families are unable to hire domestic servants. Mrs. Lee believes this will help make women there more independent.

"My mother used to tell me that I didn't need to know how to cook. I would always have servants," said Mrs. Lee.

"When I came to Canada I couldn't boil water."

She feels having to do housework will be good for the wealthy women of Hong Kong who have long spent their time playing Mah Jong and giving dinner parties.

"Once they have raised their families they will be in a position to do something useful with their lives," she said.

Mrs. Lee's decision to do something useful is a life-long commitment. She is not one of the many wives who plan to work only until children are educated or the mortgage is paid off.

She likes her profession and intends to work at it "as long as I am any good."

TRILINGUAL LAWYER Emily Lee, who runs one-woman law firm, speaks English, Cantonese and Mandarin. Her 20-month-old son promises to outdo her. He already speaks English, Mandarin and Finnish—picked up from the housekeeper.

Dad Teaches Baby To Smoke a Pipe

MIDDLESBOROUGH, England (UPI) — Every night before he goes to bed, Lee Goult puffs away on one of his father's pipes. Lee is 17 months old.

"I don't believe it does him any harm," the infant's father, Allan, 36, said Wednesday. He said he has been sharing quiet smokes with Lee for the past seven months.

The father said Lee began smoking after he gave him an empty pipe to suck on instead of a pacifier. "Now when he wants a smoke, we let him have one — a good bowlful just like myself," Goult said.

"He inhales it and blows it down his nose. He does cough a bit sometimes but it never makes him sick. I always light the pipe and keep an eye on him. There's nothing he enjoys better than a quiet smoke with me and it seems to give him a lot of satisfaction.

"I think there's a lot of nonsense talked about the hazards of smoking and I don't believe it will do him any harm. I've been smoking cigars since I was five and am still perfectly healthy.

Goult's non-smoking wife, Jacqueline, 35, said: "I don't encourage my husband to let Lee smoke, but I wouldn't stop him."

Informed of Lee's pipe-smoking habits by newsmen, local medical officer Dr. Raymond Donaldsons said: "I'm speechless. This is very distressing. We are always concerned with children seven, eight or nine starting to smoke, but when parents encourage them at this age we might as well give up."

Infants Get Too Much Salt

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Because baby food manufacturers try to make their product taste good to mothers, the average infant receives eight times more salt in a day than he needs, a Michigan pediatrician says. The result may be that the infant will suffer high blood pressure as an adult, Dr. Charles F. Whitten of the Wayne State School of Medicine in Detroit told a seminar at Meharry Medical College.

Bacardi Rum(s) Produced by Special Authority and Under the Supervision of Bacardi & Co. Ltd.
"Bacardi" and Bat Device are Registered Trademarks of Bacardi & Co. Ltd. Bottled by Caribbean Distillers Ltd., Canada.

As you've probably discovered, you're not the only one who likes Bacardi. The fact is, it's the world's largest-selling rum. Why? Maybe because it's so smooth, light and dry. Or because it mixes with so many things. With soda, water, ginger ale, cola, vermouth, juices. You name it, Bacardi goes with it. Light-amber or white-dry, you'll find Bacardi listed under "Canadian Rums." But, remember, once you buy it, be prepared to share it.

"WATCH ME," says Grace Anderson, as she makes a call in response to a message relayed to her by electronic secretary. See Elizabeth Forbes' column below.

elizabeth forbes

Telephone Grace Anderson, and even if she is miles away from home her friendly voice will answer and explain that if you leave a message she will call you later.

Ask her "how come?" and she laughs and says, "That's my electronic secretary."

Mrs. Anderson runs a baby-sitting agency from a basement office in her attractive home on Aldridge Street, and to substantiate her boast that she gives round-the-clock service, the electronic secretary is a necessity.

If she is going out she puts a recording of her voice in place and when the phone rings, she answers.

What makes the whole exercise doubly interesting is the fact you can talk back to this "secretary," leave your name and telephone number with "it" and be certain Grace will get the message in a play-back when she returns home.

The Andersons — Lloyd, Grace and son Danny — came to Victoria from Burnaby two years ago, when the husband was transferred to Vancouver Island with the forestry service.

Young and energetic and with a wish to do something in the way of work outside her home, yet be able to spend time with a 10-year-old son, Grace hit on the baby-sitting idea.

"There seemed to be a need here for a service that would give parents a real feeling of security."

Before she opened the basement office last September, Mrs. Anderson examined services of this kind in Victoria and on the mainland and finally decided to affiliate with the Vancouver Baby-Sitting Agency, "because of its unique and efficient set-up."

"We employ only mature and responsible women, aged 45 and up, who love children and at the same time wish to make some pin money to augment small incomes."

Hoe does she know if a woman is responsible and really loves children. "We give them a simple written test with a few loaded questions, of course, that will tell us these things."

Once a woman passes the test and is accepted, she is bonded and "again through the insurance company, we get a further opinion of her maturity and ability."

Right now Mrs. Anderson has on her roster between 40 and 50 older women who go out baby-sitting. "They are all working steadily. Some go back to the same places over and over again."

Assisting her with this unique service is Mrs. Beverley Thomas. "We make a good team."

The agency is licensed and registered with the Better Business Bureau. Rates are 75 cents an hour "and we won't send anyone out for less than four hours."

The group includes some retired nurses "so we are equipped not only to sit with babies and children but also with invalids and older people who cannot be left alone."

Every three months all the baby sitters get together at the Aldridge Street home for a talk-fest. "It's a two-way street. We get to know each other. Complaints are aired, if there are any, and we plan for the future."

That future includes an ambitious dream of opening an efficient well-run day-care centre next fall. "I have a hall in mind," Grace says, "and I'm looking at various programs in the city to see if there is a real need."

On top of all this, Mrs. Anderson is cubmaster (or den mother) of First Douglas B Pack, again assisted by Mrs. Thomas as cub leader. In spare time, they are planning summer projects for the young lads.

If you'd like to get in on a piece of the action, be it baby sitting, cub work, establishing a day-care centre or finding a good baby sitter, telephone Grace Anderson.

She'll answer, even if she is not at home. Her electronic secretary sees to that.

Easily Confused

TORONTO (CP) — German measles, or rubella, may easily be confused with other rashes and many women who think they had the disease in childhood had something else, a Vancouver doctor said here recently. "About half the women who think they had them, German measles, didn't and visa versa," said Dr. Dennis Vince, professor of pediatrics at the University of British Columbia.

DEAR ABBY...

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: When I see a woman in pants I wonder what's wrong with her legs. I cannot for the life of me understand why a woman with good-looking legs would wear pants. And another thing, men love long hair on their women. I don't know one man who likes to see a woman in a mannish haircut. Give us men long hair and short skirts! — Loves the Ladies.

DEAR LOVES: Some women wear pants for convenience, but if a woman wants to please a man, she will indeed let her locks grow and her legs show.

DEAR ABBY: I own a really good horse and I am going to enter him in the horse show soon. My girl friend asked me if she could ride him in the horse show, and I told her she could. Here is the problem. If my horse wins a ribbon, who should get it, she or I? I will leave it up to you. — Girl Horse Owner: Kenly, N.C.

DEAR HORSE OWNER: If your horse should win a ribbon, the ribbon goes to you. (I got this straight from the horse's mouth.)

DEAR ABBY: My 13-year-old daughter Sandra (made up name) has a big problem I am very anxious to help her with. Sandra is a quiet, shy girl who has always stayed in the background. She has a girl friend "Pat" call Janice. Janice is pushy and loud and has a big mouth. Whenever my Sandra makes friends with another girl, this loud-mouthed Janice takes this friend away from her. If Sandra were aggressive and pushy like Janice she would fight to keep her friends, but she just can't do it. She is too nice. How can I help Sandra so Janice won't take any more friends away from her? — Sandra's Mother.

DEAR MOTHER: Sandra will have to cultivate and maintain her own friendships. No one can "take" a friend away as if she were a sack of flour. Mothers who try to run interference for their children in such matters tend to weaken, not strengthen them.

DEAR ABBY: My sister's husband died eight years ago, leaving her with sons, ages 4 and 5. Sis seemed so alone and helpless, so Ralph and I encouraged her to come over often. Ralph and I had a good marriage and a nine-year-old daughter.

It all happened so gradually I never knew it was taking place, but you guessed it. Sis was so much like me, only six years younger, and she soon replaced me.

Ralph is now Sis' husband. He's adopted her two sons, and I am now the extra woman.

How I wish I had told my sister not to come so often. It may have been effective to say Ralph didn't like it. — Not Jealous Enough.

DEAR ABBY: I am a shoplifter. I started out as a teen-ager. I always took small things and got away with it. I kept telling myself it would be the last time, but I just couldn't stop. I prayed to God to help me stop and I thought I had because I didn't take anything for over a year, then tonight it happened again. I just had to take something, and just as I was walking out of the store they came after me. They caught me with less than a dollar's worth, but I ended up paying a $40 fine plus the hurt to my family, myself and mostly to God.

I have promised God and myself that I will never again steal as much as one bobby pin, and I think now I can keep that promise.

This letter is for everyone who thinks it is not so bad to shoplift an item or two. Never start! It can get to be a habit, or a game, and it's hard to stop. Please correct my mistakes in spelling, Abby, but print this. It may help someone. Thank you. Sign me—Shoplifter.

DEAR FORMER SHOPLIFTER: You have paid the price, so drop the label. There is a lot of good in one who wants to help others through his own sad experiences. Thank you for writing. God bless.

High DDT Level

HONEY HARBOR, Ont. (CP) — Nursing mothers have a higher concentration of the pesticide DDT in their milk than the government allows in cows' milk, Prof. D. A. Chant, chairman of the zoology department at the University of Toronto, said here recently. Dr. Chant told the Ninth Canadian Cancer Research Conference the pesticide is stored in body fat at about a concentration of 12.5 parts per million in Canadians.

HOME GARDEN

Long Flowering Period Ahead

By HILDA BEASTALL

June is the beginning of a long-flowering period for a number of old fashioned herbaceous perennials, well loved by gardeners who grow them.

Coming into bloom now is Tradescantia virginiana, a native of eastern U.S. cultivated in gardens since the early 1700's.

Many fanciful names have been given during the 250 years. Spiderwort, Widow's Tears, Flower of a Day are a few, none of which do justice to the plant.

Hilda

Perfectly suited to those partially shady, sometimes sunny corners in a patio or beside steps, the hardy tradescantia will grow its narrow dark green leaves to about 18 inches each year.

Then in late June, the leafy stems begin to produce quaint triangular violet-purple blossoms about an inch across. Golden stamens light the center of each three-petalled flower.

Clusters of buds hang like small green grapes, and every day a new flower opens in each cluster. There is no untidiness. Nothing to cut off until all buds have opened and closed.

A glistening pure white form called Innocence has been available locally at times. This is quite enchanting with the gold stamens gleaming, especially if planted near hardy dark green ferns.

There is a pinkish form too, but this I have not seen.

Older by a half century is Astrantia major, a native to eastern Europe. It grows best in a rather dry soil.

This was called Masterwort by herbalists in the 16th century, though its uses are now obscured by time. Some kinds are weedy in habit and of poor flower color.

Astrantia major is the best, a dainty, pretty plant, no higher than 12 inches. It will naturalize in a bed or border where warm sunshine reaches it for part of the day.

In shade it will grow, but the flowers have less of the lovely deep old rose tints brought out by hot sunshine.

There is a lacy effect created by the clusters of tiny old rose flowers on half inch stems, surrounded by the pointed old rose segments of the calyx. An inch and a half wide, the whole flower head lasts several days. Produced on branching leafy stems, astrantia goes on blooming in great profusion for many weeks once the roots are established.

Spreading by underground creeping runners, this pretty plant need not become a nuisance for it is easily controlled. Plant it in a suitable place where it can be enjoyed for its unusual beauty.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

Today's deal is presented as a bridge mystery. You are informed that our South declarer committed an error in his play, and thereby failed to fulfill a makable game contract. Can you find South's error?

Neither side vulnerable. North deals.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 NT	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Six of ♣.

Had West guessed to open a heart, South's four-spade contract would have been defeated automatically, since the defenders could then not have been prevented from making one heart trick, one club, and two trumps. But West had a pure guess as to what to lead, and he selected the club six.

East won dummy's ten with his ace, and returned a club, hoping perhaps that West had started with a singleton. Dummy's jack won the trick, after which the club king was played. South discarding a heart. Declarer breathed a sign of relief when West followed suit to the third club lead.

A trump was led next — and East discarded a diamond. South put up the king, which West took with the ace. He then led a heart to East's ace. Eventually West's ten of trumps took the setting trick. Where did declarer err?

As South undoubtedly viewed the situation, when he discarded a heart on dummy's king of clubs, he was home. From here in he figured he would lose just one heart and one trump trick. But his play was wrong, for he could have overcome the 4-0 division of defenders' trumps.

After the king of clubs had won the third club lead, dummy's queen of clubs should have been led. On it South would have discarded his remaining heart as West trumped. From here in, declarer's only loser would have been a trump trick to West's ace.

The play of the fourth club could never have been a losing play. Even if West had ruffed with the (theoretical) singleton four-spot, from here in all South would have lost would have been a trump trick to the defender's ace.

And if, in theory, it had been East who trumped the fourth club lead, declarer would overtrump. With but three trumps now outstanding, declarer's only trump loser henceforth would be to the ace. He would, of course, also lose a heart trick, but his contract would be there for the taking.

For shame, South, for shame!

Mary placed three five dollar bills on the counter. "That'll cover it," she said, watching the man make out a check for her three purchases. "The kettle's a real bargain at $6.25."

Bill looked up and smiled. "It won't let you down," he told her. "But here's something funny. Multiplying the three amounts together I get exactly the same total as when I add them together."

What was the strange total?

"'BLUE WATER, WHITE DEATH' IS ABSOLUTELY BREATH-TAKING" —Judith Crist, NBC-Today Show

Sharks—passionless killers—they attack anything. And one above all: The Great White Shark.

Early in the Spring of 1969, a group of divers—three men and a woman —began a 12,000-mile odyssey determined to shoot a Great White Shark. Not with harpoons, or spear-guns—with cameras.

This is the story of that hunt and finally of the awesome encounter between man and the sea's most deadly and breathtaking creature, the world's most beautiful eating machine, The Great White Shark.

1970 ACADEMY AWARD NOMINEE

January, 1943. The Nazi tiger has Yugoslavia by the throat. If it falls Germany can lock one more door of Europe against an Allied invasion. The overwhelming Juggernaut and the Beggar Army of the Balkans meet at last...at a place called Neretva. And among all the wars since Time began, all the defeats and victories, there is no equal to this battle, this chronicle of raw courage and naked, stubborn, savagery.

FAVORITE PASTIME CAUSES BLUSHES

BECKENHAM, England (UPI) — When the announcer read beauty contestant Penny Browne's hobby, women at the Conservative Association festival blushed.

For 20-year-old Penny's entry form said her favorite pastime was sex.

But even she was startled to hear the announcer's words, she explained later. "Actually it was all a joke," she said. "My boyfriend and a few others egged me on. I thought of putting 'men' but everyone said 'No, put sex.'

"I didn't know the details were going to be read out by an announcer.

Top Mainland Band Coming to Island

The award-winning West Vancouver Band will participate in a wide variety of northern Vancouver Island Centennial and July 1 celebrations.

The band, won a bronze medal in 1970 at the World Music Festival in Kerkrade, Holland.

This year the group was named one of the honor bands for Queen Elizabeth during the royal tour and garnered two more firsts in the Kiwanis Music Festival. The group was also named regional champion in the B.C. Centennial Band Festival.

The band, composed of 55 boys and girls aged 11 to 18, is directed by Roy Cornick.

Tour repertoire ranges from light classics to the Dixieland beat.

First scheduled free concert is 8 p.m. Tuesday, June 29, in the Qualicum Beach High School Gymnasium.

July 1 the band will play in the Courtenay parade which begins at 9:30 a.m. and later in Lewis Park, Courtenay, from 12:45 to 1:30 p.m.

Also on July 1, the group will attend the opening ceremonies of the Campbell River Salmon Festival at 6 p.m. at Foreshore Park, stay to play an evening concert there and also give a 2 p.m. concert at Foreshore Park Friday, July 2.

The band will play in the Salmon Festival parade which begins at 10 a.m. Saturday July 3.

The band will make music on the cruise ship Italia while it is anchored off Alert Bay from 9 to 11 a.m. Monday, July 5, and then travel to Port McNeill for a noon concert Tuesday, July 6, followed by a joint concert with Indian musicians Tuesday evening at the Alert Bay Longhouse.

SPEED TICKET SAVES MOTORIST'S LIFE

Miss Sullivan, of Modesto, Calif., was stopped by two highway patrol officers for driving at speeds in excess of 90 miles per hour south of here.

Ganges Hospital Expansion Gets Nod

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark today authorized the trustees of Lady Minto Gulf Islands Hospital, Ganges, to call tenders for a 15-bed extended care addition to the existing acute care facilities.

The project will also include new dining facilities, a new lounge and mechanical additions.

(Vera) Davis, Cornwall, Ont.; ten grandchildren; three great-grandchildren; sisters, Mrs. Florence Anderson, Winnipeg, Man., and Mrs. Doris Bolton, Vermont, U.S.A.; brothers, Rex, and Art, Smith Falls, Ont. and Ted, Ottawa, Ont. Mr. Stilwell was a former employee of the C.N.R. at Saskatoon, Sask. and Winnipeg, Man.
Service will be held in the Lannin Funeral Home, Smiths Falls, Ont., on Saturday, June 26, 1971 at 2:00 p.m. Interment in the Hillcrest Cemetery, Smiths Falls, Ont. Arrangements by the Sands Mortuary Limited, Victoria, B.C.

The Lord is my shepherd: I shall not want.

He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: He leadeth me beside the still waters.

He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake.

Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.

Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies; thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.

Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

9 IN MEMORIAM

ELLISON—Bill, who passed away one year ago, June 25, 1970.
In loving memory of my husband.

I do not need a special day
To bring you to my mind;
The days I do not think of you
Are very hard to me.

They say time heals all sorrow
And will help me to forget;
But time so far has only shown
How much I miss you yet.

God gave me strength to bear it
And courage to face the blow,
But what it meant to lose you
No one will ever know.

It was God's will to take you,
He knew you needed rest;
His garden must be beautiful,
He only takes the best.

When I am sad and lonely
And everything goes wrong,
I seem to hear you whisper,
Cheer up and carry on.

Each time I see your photo
You seem to smile and say,
Don't cry, I'm only sleeping;
We'll meet again some day.

"Forever in my thoughts."
—Emma.

ELLISON — In loving memory of our brother-in-law, Bill, who passed away June 25, 1970.
Our family circle has been broken,
A link gone from our chain;
But though we're parted for a while,
We know we'll meet again.
Some day we hope to meet you,
Some day, we know not when,
We shall meet in a better land,
And never part again.

We shall meet with many a loved one
That was torn from our embrace,
We shall listen to their voices,
And behold them face to face.
Sunshine passes, shadows fall;
Love's remembrance outlasts all.
—Always remembered Al and Belle

ELLISON—Bill, who passed away one year ago, June 25, 1970. In loving memory of Dad.

"The pearly gates were opened,
A gentle voice said "Come,"
And with farewells unspoken he gently entered home.

—Lovingly remembered by son Roy, daughter-in-law Eleanor and grandchildren.

DES O'CONNOR. 7 p.m., Channel 6. This is the third time around this season for this particular Music Hall production . . . guests include Dom DeLouise, Connie Stevens and Jack Douglas. Dom does a nervous banker doing his first television commercial and Jack shows Des the fine points of karate.

THE INTERNS. 7:30 p.m., Channel 7. (Rerun). Martin Sheen is tonight's guest star in a routine playboy-gets-into-trouble story with a twist. The playboy accepts the blame in a fatal hit-run auto crash. Dr. Greg Pettit is the only one who knows the playboy's brother, who is running for the Senate, was really responsible.

HIGH CHAPARRAL. 7:30 p.m., Channel 5 (Rerun). John Cannon (Leif Erickson) sees an opportunity to turn a profit by selling guns, ammunition and horses to ill-equipped Mexican rebels, despite the objections of his wife (Linda Cristal) and her brother (Henry Darrow).

COMEDY SPECIAL. 8 p.m., Channels 2 and 6. Michaels and Pomerantz offer up their final hour of nonsense for this season. They are joined by the Metropolitan Toronto Police Choir and singer Tom Rush. Lorne interviews the Canadian Beaver (Hart) again the two play the moderators on a TV quiz game called Karma. This show was postponed from last week.

THE PARTRIDGE FAMILY. 8:30 p.m. Channel 4. (Rerun) In "Mom Drops Out," Shirley Jones gets the family ready to start their European tour without her — because European kids aren't supposed to dig the older generation. But her own kids won't go for the deal, and legal difficulties arise. Gino Conforti is guest with regulars David Cassidy and Susan Dey.

THE NAME OF THE GAME. 8:30 p.m., Channel 5. (Rerun). Robert Stack is tonight's series regular with guests William Shatner, Dina Merrill and Howard Duff. Stack, as editor Dan Farrell, investigates the financial dealings of a well-known evangelist (Shatner), considered a saint by some, a huckster by others. The story involves family problems, press agentry, business and politics.

THE FRIDAY NIGHT MOVIE. 9 p.m., Channels 7 and 12. "Doctor Faustus" (1968) stars Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor in the film version of Christopher Marlowe's literary classic of the scholar who sold his soul to the devil, Andreas Teuber, Ram Chopra and Richard Carwardine co-star.

THE ODD COUPLE. 9:30 p.m., Channel 4. (Rerun). Richard X. Slattery is tonight's guest star in "the Flight of the Felix." Greater love has no man than to fight a hockey player for a roommate. When a hockey player hits Oscar, Felix challenges him to a boxing match. With Felix, naturally, everything has to be just right. Ann Elder and Fabian Dean are featured.

STRANGE REPORT. 10 p.m., Channel 5 (Rerun). "Cult-Murder Shrieks Out" Spiritualism and a religious cult are the focus tonight as Adam Strange (Anthony Quayle) agrees to look into the death of a guitarist (Jay Brand) who was electrocuted while playing at a benefit for the sect. His girl friend (Pamela Franklin) suspects he was murdered.

TONIGHT'S MOVIES

5:30: Channel 12: Outlaw of Red River (1966 Western) George Montgomery. A former desperado turned lawman finds himself in a difficult situation: his fiancee's brother is the area's leading troublemaker.

7:30: Channel 13: Lady in the Death House (1944 Mystery), Jean Parker. A pretty blackmail victim is accused of murder when the blackmailer is killed.

8:00: Channel 8: My Six Loves (1963 Comedy), Debbie Reynolds, Cliff Robertson. Broadway star finds six abandoned kids living at her country home, decides to adopt them.

9:00: Channels 7 and 12: Doctor Faustus (British 1967 Drama) Richard Burton, Elizabeth Taylor. Drama about an elderly scholar who bargained with the devil for a chance to be young again.

11:00: Channel 13: Treasure of Monte Cristo (1949 Adventure), Adele Jergens, Glenn Langan. A seaman with the key to the fabulous Monte Cristo treasure is waylaid by crooks. Photographed entirely in San Francisco.

11:05: Channel 12: Eagle Squadron (1942 Drama), Robert Stack, Diana Barrymore. In 1940, a handful of Americans join the RAF to fight the Nazis. Excellent war melodrama.

11:30: Channel 7: The Black Castle (1952 Melodrama), Boris Karloff, Richard Greene. Moderately chilling horror tale about sinister castles, unscrupulous counts, and strange happenings.

11:50: Channel 2: One, Two, Three (1961 Comedy), James Cagney, Pamela Tiffin. In West Berlin, C. R. MacNamara is trying to win a big promotion.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Some middle-aged women owe many of the distresses and discomforts they feel to the emotional and physical storms of the menopause; they may have flushes and sweats and brief spells of depression; sometimes a woman feels pain as the bones of her spine begin to soften and to collapse and she starts to get a "dowager's hump."

Other women go through this time without a symptom of any kind. Their menstrual periods simply become irregular and eventually stop. If before the change the woman was in love with her husband, affectionate, and able to respond normally to sexual intercourse, the chances are good that after the change she will continue to be happy and sexually responsive. Actually, in some cases the woman is even more interested and sensitive sexually after the menopause.

I have found that the giving of ovarian hormone to the disturbed woman can bring her great relief, and can make her feel immensely better, if she has been suffering greatly from a difficult menopause. I was delighted, when around 1935, female hormone came on the market, and I was able to help many a patient with it. What kept distressing me was that for years, many doctors would frighten their menopausal patients, and would refuse to prescribe female hormone for them, because they said that it would produce cancer.

I couldn't see any logic to this, and I would try to reassure my patients by reminding them that since the age of 14 or so, the woman's body had been full of female hormone that was produced by her own glands, and she had not developed cancer, so why should she get a cancer when I gave her a little more hormone? I had been giving female hormone to hundreds of women for 30 years, and I have never heard of a single patient who got a cancer apparently because of it, and so I have no fear of it.

I was so glad when some four years ago at a national convention of gynecologists it was decided that they did not know of any good reason why they should fear female hormone. Also, the statistics show no sign of an increase in women's cancers in the past 30 years during which time female hormone has been prescribed.

I prescribe usually a tablet of ovarian hormone a day, but if this does not give good relief, I tell the woman to run up the daily dose until her breasts hurt, and then to drop the dose back down a bit until she finds the amount that will relieve her flushes and sweats without making her breasts sore. I advise her to keep taking the hormone for the rest of her life. It will tend to keep her tissues young, and it may keep her bones from becoming so lacking in lime salts that her spine will cave in, or a hip may become easily fractured if she should fall.

Some menopausal women need a great deal of psychological help from a sensible doctor, especially if the flushes are very frequent and so disturbing that the poor woman can get little sleep or rest. Fatigue may tend to make everything seem worse to her. It is serious when psychic changes come, and particularly such changes as tend to bring a rift between the woman and her husband.

If, as sometimes happens around this time of life, the woman lets herself get fat, unattractive, not too clean, and poorly groomed, and if she keeps complaining continually about her discomforts, until her husband's capacity for sympathy is exhausted, there will not be much happiness or comfort left for him in the home. He may then separate himself from the wife emotionally, or he may move out of her room or even out of the house. He may seek the affection of another woman, or at least, the wife many suspect or fear that he might, and this will bring her mental torture and great insecurity. Naturally, the woman feels terribly lonesome, and she joins the "nobody-wants-me" club.

It may help and encourage such a woman to remind her that she is going through a stage that millions of her sisters are going through, and that like them, she will recover after a few months or years. It may help also to encourage her to lose some weight, get a new hair-do or take some make-up lessons, and develop some of her own interests and talents outside her home.

My greatest difficulty is with the depressed woman who has always been more or less psychopathic. In her case, the female hormones may perhaps stop the flushes, but they may not greatly change her depressed mental outlook. Then she can often be helped miraculously by a few electroshock treatments.

Nurses Urged For Homes

A coroner's jury Thursday recommended that rest homes caring for persons with mental problems be required to have at least one registered nurse on staff.

The jury was probing the death of John Allan, 78, a patient at Mount Newton Rest Home, 912 Mount Newton Crossroad.

He died June 13 the day after he suffered injuries in a fall from a bathroom window at the home.

The jury ruled that the man died of congestive heart failure aggravated by the fall and it occurred while the "balance of his mind was disturbed."

The jury also said at the time there was a lack of lines of responsibility at the home and an "undue delay in seeking professional medical attention was the direct result of this lack of responsibility."

Evidence showed that the owner, Mrs. Rosemary Rudolph, was in California June 12. Instructions to the staff said not to call a doctor for "every little thing" but if problems arose to contact Mrs. Rudolph's 19-year-old daughter, a receptionist at Rest Haven Hospital in Sidney.

Miss Rudolph saw Allen about an hour after his fall but doctor wasn't called until 10 hours later, the jury was told.

Electronic Bartender

The computers are taking over the world. And the latest bastion of humanity to fall is the bartending business.

Owen and Sons Cash Registers of Victoria will be demonstrating an electronic drink-dispenser at the Olde England Inn June 29.

The electronic bartender, capable of dispensing up to seven drinks in 10 seconds, measures and dispenses exact portions and is linked with a pre-set cash register on which it punches the price.

About all that will remain for the bartender is to collect the money and listen to people's troubles.

60 SEA OTTERS FROM AMCHITKA

COOS BAY, Ore. (AP) — A four-engine Hercules transport landed at Coos Bay Thursday with a cargo of 60 otters from Amchitka Island, Alaska.

The sea otters are to be transplanted off the southern Oregon coast as part of a project in which the Oregon game commission and the Alaska fish and game department are co-operating. Last year, 31 sea otters were transplanted to the Oregon coast. Only one is known to have died.

Before the transplant last year, the last reported sighting of a sea otter on the Oregon coast was in about 1870.

The animals were flown in individual tank cages containing sea water. A fire department water truck met them at the airport to wet them down prior to transfer by truck to floating holding pens just offshore where they'll be kept for a few days for observation before being turned loose.

The transplant was one of a series along the coasts of Oregon, Washington, British Columbia and southeastern Alaska where the sea otter flourished before being hunted almost to extinction in the last half of the 19th century.

PRINCE RUPERT — Three young adventurers leave this north-coastal city Sunday on a 475-mile kayak trip down the coast to Vancouver. Doug Christison and Rayn Mitchell, both 20, and Les Whitely, 17, will use glass fibre kayaks, hoping to complete the trip in a month.

ASHFORD, England — Prince Philip told a group of service intelligence officers Thursday the most important thing "is to get your envelopes stuck down firmly." "You want to watch some of these modern envelopes which stick themselves" the prince said. "They are very easy to unstick. "The last stage of this exercise for anyone who doesn't stick his envelope properly is a court martial."

WATERLOO, Iowa — A restaurant cook who was fired for refusing to serve a badly-burned stew to a customer cannot expect unemployment benefits. A state hearing officer ruled that serving the stew might damage the reputation of the restaurant but not that of the cook, Dortha Gardner, 57. He said her remarks in warning a customer from ordering the stew "were derogatory and not in the best interests of the employer."

DECATUR, Ill. — It took a pork chop to enable Jerry Sheehy to serve a subpoena. Sheehy, a state's attorney's investigator, was confronted by an unfriendly dog Thursday when he attempted to serve a subpoena to a witness in a murder case being conducted in Ciruit Court. The investigator could not get past the dog until Basil Granias, Macon County state's attorney, drove by the house on his way back from the grocery store. Granias, seeing Sheehy's plight, produced a pork chop from a shopping bag, offered it to the dog and Sheehy walked by the dog to deliver the subpoena.

YUBA CITY, Calif. — Mass murder suspect Juan Corona is well enough to return to his jail cell today, one week after he was hospitalized with chest pains, doctors have decided. Physicians said Corona, 37, who has lost 25 poinds since his arrest as suspect in the killing of 25 itinerant farm workers, had suffered no heart damage although tests "suggested there was a disturbance."

21 Years Ago Korean War Erupted

By K. P. HONG

SEOUL (AP) — Twenty-one years ago today North Korea invaded South Korea and started the Korean War. Occasional clashes still interrupt the uneasy peace along the 151-mile frontier between the two countries.

A 600,000-man South Korean forces equipped with United States jet fighter-bombers, missiles, tanks and artillery stands guard along and below the demilitarized zone set by the 1953 armistice.

U.S. soldiers protected 18 miles of the DMZ front until March, when they were pulled back prior to the reduction of U.S. forces in South Korea to 42,000 from 62,000 by July 1.

Across the buffer zone are 466,000 North Korean troops armed with Soviet military equipment, including MiG-21 jet fighters, heavy artillery and missiles.

When the North Korean army crossed the 38th parallel at dawn on June 25, 1950, it had 10 combat divisions armed with 500 Soviet tanks and 2,000 artillery pieces. South Korea was defended by 100,000 ill-trained men armed with rifles and light machine-guns supplied by the United States.

Seoul fell to the invaders in three days and a large part of South Korea was occupied within a month. The United States rushed to South Korea's defence and rallied a 16-nation force under the banner of the United Nations.

PUSHED THROUGH NORTH

These forces pushed all the way through North Korea, to the Chinese border, but late in November, 1950, 300,000 Chinese Communist troops went into action on two fronts and within a month had forced the UN forces back to the 38th parallel.

The war resulted in only slight territorial changes along the 38th parallel. South Korea gained some land in the middle and eastern portions of the frontier while losing some territory along the west coast.

But the three-year war was costly in lives for both sides.

About 500,000 South Koreans were killed, 380,000 of them civilians, and 430,000 were wounded. The United States suffered 142,091 casualties, including 33,629 killed in action.

Canada's contribution to the UN force was a brigade of approximately 5,000 men, three naval destroyers and a squadron of RCAF transport aircraft flew an airlift across the Pacific. Canada's casualties totalled 1,554, including 310 dead and one missing.

Communist totals were even heavier. Nearly 300,000 North Korean soldiers and 200,000 Communist Chinese troops were killed, and almost 220,000 North Koreans and 700,000 Communist Chinese were wounded, says a U.S. defence department estimate.

U.S. Senate Extends Draft 2 Years

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Senate has voted to extend the draft two more years, sweeten soldiers' pay $2.7 billion and chart an Indochina withdrawal plan disowned in advance by the White House.

But after seven weeks of debate the Senate's 71-to-16 approval Thursday of the draft extension bill may well be too late for Congress to finish final action before the current Selective Service Act expires next Wednesday at midnight.

Some senators threaten a filibuster if a House of Representatives and Senate conference kills or weakens an end-the-war amendment added by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield.

One knowledgeable senator predicts final action may not come before mid-July.

The Mansfield amendment calls for a phased withdrawal of U.S. troops during nine months if all U.S. prisoners of war are released.

The White House has said the Mansfield measure won't affect war policy.

The conference has more than a dozen differences to reconcile between the House and Senate versions of the bill. One of the most important is an amendment by Senator Gordon Allott (Rep. Colo.), which raised the military pay boost to the same level approved by the House, but spread most of it among lower ranks.

Some senators had hoped to kill the draft outright as a means of forcing the military to accept the all-volunteer armed force concept now.

Mayor Tries to Muzzle Source of Float Funds

Mayor Courtney Haddock Thursday prevented the assistant city clerk from reading a report mentioning the source of funds for Victoria's float in the centennial parade July 20 in Vancouver.

Haddock interrupted by saying the matter is "not for publication." The mayor did not explain why.

The float, which will spoof Victoria's reputedly stuffy Edwardian character, will ride on a borrowed chassis and $1,500 handout from the province. The city will pay only $665.

After council's finance committee heard July 3 that a new float would cost as much as $5,620, aldermen accepted without question the new estimate of $2,155 made possible through a float chassis borrowed from another unnamed municipality and the province's grant.

The report partly read to council Thursday said: "It is intended to utilize a stripped chassis borrowed from another municipality. The concept is essentially a spoof at Victoria utilizing a theme similar to the Norris cartoons."

The report goes on to say "while Mr. Jerry Gosley will not be able to make the trip himself, he has been kind enough to provide the city with four persons to man the float."

When George Merz, assistant city clerk, began to read the next paragraph with "Yesterday, June 23, word was received from the provincial government . . ." Haddock cut him off.

The Times learned the sentence continued: "that they would contribute $1,500 toward the cost of constructing this float and sending it to Vancouver. Accordingly, it is requested that city council authorize an additional $655 from the city of Victoria to make up the total cost of $2,155."

The city decided to build a special float for the July 20 parade because its existing float would be seen in Vancouver later in the summer during the Pacific National Exhibition.

Loan Deal Made

OTTAWA (CP) — A $2.5 million interest-free advance to the Caribbean Development Bank is being made by Canada under an agreement just signed, the first major commitment of funds from the $5 million Caribbean development fund announced last December. The money, which must be repaid to Canada is to provide credit to farmers.

GRAVE YIELDS CELT AND HIS CHARIOT

YORK, England (UPI) — The grave of a Celtic chieftain buried with all his possessions, including his battle chariot, has been unearthed in northern England. Archaeologists Thursday were calling it one of the biggest finds of the century in England.

Archaeologist Tony Brewster said the grave dates from Britain's Iron Age, about 200 BC. He said he discovered the site from the air after a quarry company had stripped topsoil from an area 200 yards long and 100 yards wide.

"It is the first grave of its kind to be found in the past 60 years," Brewster said.

"This is probably the richest of all, and is the first to be excavated by modern methods," he said.

Lemon Hart.
The rum with the 5,700 mile difference.

Like most good rums, Lemon Hart comes to Canada from the Caribbean.

Unlike every other rum, Lemon Hart comes via Britain. Why, you ask?

The reason is simple. It's been found that the moist, gentle British air does something special to great rums, to make them even greater. So they wait there, coming to a unique and glowing maturity.

Only then does Lemon Hart complete the journey to Canada, and to you. In fact, Lemon Hart goes 5,700 miles out of its way to please you.

The best way to repay the compliment is to buy some. Lemon Hart rums. The adventurous spirits.

U.S.-Owned Stores Face Pickets

Victoria stores dominated by American financing will be picketed in July.

Peter Kuzzan, chairman of the Victoria branch of the Committee for an Independent Canada, said picketing will start as soon as study has been completed on U.S. financed or controlled stores in the city.

The object is to start people buying Canadian goods, he explained.

"If people buy Canadian we can get our people back to work with increased production," he said.

The group will distribute pamphlets to identify Canadian-made products, he said.

The 120-member Victoria branch also plan to show a National Film Board film, "Countdown Canada" at the Newcombe Auditorium and at the University of Victoria, some time in July.

The film has a fictional plot in which Canada is absorbed by American financing, Kuzzan said.

Language 'Too Common'

TORONTO (CP) — The establishment of a truly-Canadian identity has been greatly hampered by the ethnic diversity of the population, the French and English languages and the high degree of influence of the United States, a leader in the arts said Thursday.

Dr. Pauline McGibbon, chancellor-elect of the University of Toronto, said: "Canadians are mass consumers of the American culture, and most Canadians don't oppose this influence.

"Our constant exposure to the American way subtly and substantially moulds our values, our view of the world, our careers, leisure time and homes," she told the Ontario conference on economic and cultural nationalism.

Ontario Premier William Davis, announcing the conference March 30, said the object was to hear a wide range of viewpoints and put into perspective the diverse problems inherent in foreign participation in Canada's economy and society.

LANGUAGE A BARRIER

Dr. McGibbon, vice-chairman of the Ontario Youth Theatre and vice-president of the Canadian Conference of the Arts, said one obstacle to the development of a national character is the language.

"Canada must face the world without the cultural insulation of a distinctive language. We share with other countries . . . two of the most widely-spoken languages in the world today, particularly English."

This fact "enormously smoothes our transactions with allies, friends and even antagonists; but also facilitates the easy transplantation to our cultural soil of other mens' flowers, and a good many of their weeds."

She told about 100 delegates the inundation of U.S. culture and the influence of other countries' cultures on the growing number of immigrants "constitute serious impediments, perhaps even threats to the development of a thriving and distinctive Canadian culture."

Louis Applebaum, executive director of the Ontario Council for the Arts, suggested that governments and the people pay more attention to creative artists and their ideas and how they see Canada's future.

He said artists can be valuable leaders, serving as "weathervanes or barometers showing where society should go."

LACKS CAPITAL

At an earlier panel discussion, Robert W. Bonner, former British Columbia attorney-general and now vice-chairman of MacMillan-Bloedel Ltd., said Canada has not the potential capital sources to create the number of new jobs that will be needed during this decade.

Canada needs a free flow of cash to create jobs, he said.

Edwin A. Goodman, a Toronto lawyer and former national campaign chairman for the Progressive Conservative party, said the inflow of United States money during 1966-68 led to inflation and policies to combat inflation created unemployment.

L. R. Wilson, economic research director for John Labatt Ltd., argued that foreign investment has been more prominent in the growth of the "have" regions of Canada and this has increased regional disparities.

Senator Eugene Forsey of Ontario said if Canada decided to go it alone economically, blocked foreign investment and eliminated foreign control already established, Canadians would pay highly for it.

"We can have all freedom from multinational corporations and foreign investment if we so choose, but if we are going to promote Canadian economic independence we need a strong central government, perhaps even stronger than the one now in power," the Liberal senator said.

EARLY MORNING CRASH today sent driver to hospital with head and leg injuries. Edward Craig, 26, of 2980 Pickford, police said, was the only occupant of the vehicle when it hit the pole on Superior near Menzies about 7 a.m. He was pinned briefly in the wreck and was later reported in fair condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital. Strike Hits Hydro HQs

The electrical workers' strike against B.C. Hydro was extended today, with pickets posted at the main office building in Vancouver and a number of regional offices including Victoria.

Office workers, members of the Office and Technical Employees Union, did not cross picket lines, leaving only supervisors on the job.

About 1,500 non-electrical employees were affected, most of them at Vancouver. Sixty-five union office workers stayed out in Victoria. Other centres picketed today included offices at Prince Rupert, Prince George, Vernon and Newton.

Almost 2,000 electrical workers have been on strike since late Monday. Skeleton crews have remained in generating stations and emergency crews are available.

JORDAN RIVER

At noon, B.C. Hydro said the picket line outside its Vancouver head office ended but pickets remained at the Victoria regional office.

In Victoria, B.C. Hydro regional manager A. J. Macdonald said the only other operation being picketed was the hydro-electric construction site at Jordan River, which has been closed for a week, affecting 250 persons.

The power outages — Thursday night when a car smashed a hydro pole in front of Cherry Bend Motel on the Patricia Bay Highway and this morning when a swan flew into conductors cutting power to Rest Haven Hospital, Sidney — were repaired by emergency crews of striking members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

John Hiebert, assistant business manager of IBEW Local 258, said there was 100 per cent support by office employees for the electrical workers picket lines at the B.C. Hydro building on Pandora Avenue.

NO PUBLIC HURT

"We don't intend to hurt the public if at all possible," he said. Asked if transit service will be picketed, he said "not yet."

From Vancouver, Local 258 business manager Doug Cronk, asked why picketing was only planned for part of today, said "We are not desirous of creating a wage loss for other employees of B.C. Hydro unnecessarily. It indicates to B.C. Hydro what they may expect."

Hydro and the electrical workers are deadlocked over terms for a new collective agreement. Wages, job security, job classifications, sick benefit and isolation pay are among the main issues. Hydro has offered 14 per cent more over two years while the union wants 18½ per cent. Linemen, one of the major job groupings, now earn $5.39 an hour.

The union began rotating 24-hour strikes 23 days ago, gradually stepping up the momentum.

TRUDEAU, BENNETT TO LEAD CEREMONIES

A "symbolic" federal cabinet meeting in Victoria will help celebrate the July 1 holiday next week.

Prime Minister Trudeau and his cabinet will meet briefly in the provincial cabinet chamber before joining Premier Bennett and his cabinet in ceremonies in front of the legislative buildings.

The federal cabinet will be led by two pipers from the Empress Hotel to the Legislative Buildings at 9:30 a.m.

Trudeau and Bennett will make brief speeches shortly after 10 and at 10:28 the pair will jointly start the London-Victoria air race by trans-Atlantic telephone call.

LBJ Memoirs Confirm Advance War Planning

GARDEN CITY, N.Y. (AP) — Newsday says Lyndon B. Johnson's still unpublished White House memoirs acknowledge that his administration was privately preparing in early 1964 for large-scale United States military involvement in Vietnam, long before the depth of the U.S. commitment was known to the public.

The memoirs, to be published in November, support many of the findings of the classified Pentagon study of the war's origins which the government has been fighting to keep secret, says the Long Island newspaper.

The former president's book, now largely in galley form at the New York publishing firm of Holt, Rinehart and Winston, is entitled, The Vantage Point: Perspectives of the Presidency.

Newsday says it obtained information about the material from a publishing industry source. It gives this account:

Johnson depicts himself in the book as having been hesitant for several months over approving military advisers' recommendations for bombing raids against North Vietnam. But in February, 1965, he writes, he told his aides that he was approving the bombing.

MADE DECISIONS EARLY

In the book, Johnson says that he first decided to pursue President Kennedy's policy of defending South Vietnam sovereignty while flying back to Washington only a few hours after Kennedy's assassination in November, 1963.

Pentagon Case Splits Court Five to Four

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Supreme Court agreed today to hold a hearing on government attempts to restrain publication of articles in the New York Times and the Washington Post on a Pentagon study of the Vietnam war.

The cases will be heard by the justices at 11 a.m. EDT Saturday. Meanwhile, the court barred the two newspapers from running any stories to which the government has objections.

Had the court not acted before nightfall, the Post would have been free to resume its series without restrictions. In a plea filed this morning, the newspaper said the public interest required free discussion of the war and that any further restraint would be "totally intolerable."

The court split 5 to 4 in keeping the paper from running uncensored articles beginning with the Saturday edition.

CONTINUE LIMITED BAN

By the same vote the court continued restrictions placed on the Times by the U.S. Circuit Court in New York City. The Times will be able to print Saturday only material that the Justice Department considers safe for public consumption.

The Times told the court in a petition Thursday that the restraint, imposed by the U.S. Circuit Court in New York City, "imposes an insupportable burden on a free press."

The justice department, meanwhile, tried to block The Post from resuming its series of reports on the study. Solicitor-General Erwin N. Griswold argued in an application for a stay that publication would damage national security and the conduct of foreign relations beyond repair.

TV President Faces Charge

WASHINGTON — Columbia Broadcasting System president Frank Stanton faces charges, as a result of his contempt-of-Congress charges, as a result of his refusal to supply film and sound recordings in the possession of CBS to a subcommittee of the House of Representatives.

The committee had ordered him to supply material edited out of the documentary Selling of the Pentagon, and Stanton Thursday replied "I respectfully decline."

Constitutional Talks Finished for Now—PM

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said today he is not thinking of convening another federal-provincial constitutional conference at this time.

He made the comment to reporters after indicating in the Commons he does not regard as final Quebec's veto of proposed constitutional changes contained in the "Victoria charter."

Mr. Trudeau told reporters he has no plans for a meeting with Premier Robert Bourassa of Quebec.

But if Quebec wanted to talk about something in the charter it considered unclear, Ottawa would listen with an open mind.

If Quebec wanted to change its "no" to a "yes" the other governments probably would not hold out for the Monday deadline for response to the charter.

UP TO OTHERS

If any new conference is convened, it will have to be at somebody else's initiative, Mr. Trudeau added.

Quebec had said "no" to the results of three years' work.

In Quebec, constitutional matters were of interest to only a "small group," Quebecers were much more interested in jobs and the economy.

Mr. Trudeau said there could still be compromise on top of the Victoria compromise. But he was not looking for one. If Quebec wanted one it would have to convince 10 other governments.

The prime minister also said he is not seeking extension of the Monday deadline. If the provinces wanted to extend it, that was OK by him.

PROMISE TO CO-OPERATE

In the Commons, Mr. Trudeau said that if Quebec can rephrase the proposed amendment to which it objects and thus remove uncertainty about it, the federal government would try to work out a solution with the other provinces.

At one point in his statement, Mr. Trudeau used the phrase "if the charter is not accepted." The charter comprises the proposed constitutional amendments.

The prime minister said that apparently Quebec objects to only one suggested amendment which would give the provinces joint jurisdiction with the federal authority in the field of family, youth and manpower training allowances.

Premier Robert Bourassa has said there is "uncertainty" about joint jurisdiction and that Quebec wants full

MEDINA TO BE TRIED FOR MY LAI—JUDGE

MEDINA
. . . dismissal bid fails

ATLANTA, Ga. — A military judge today ruled that Captain Ernest L. Medina must stand trial by court-martial on charges that he murdered 102 South Vietnamese civilians in My Lai.

Judge Col. Kenneth A. Howard ruled at the end of a four-day pre-trial hearing in which Medina's lawyer, F. Lee Bailey, sought to have charges dismissed on grounds that the United States Army conducted an illegal conspiracy in its efforts to try the captain.

One man, Lieut. William Calley, has already been convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment as a result of the My Lai massacre. His conviction is under review.

Expelled Admiral Disliked by Premier

LONDON (AP) — Malta's new neutralist prime minister has expelled NATO's naval commander for the Mediterranean, an informed source confirmed today, but he said the action was due to personal antipathy toward the admiral and his native Italy, not toward the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Prime Minister Dom Mintoff, whose Labor party was elected last week, is reported to have ordered Admiral Geno Birindelli, the commander of allied naval forces in Southern Europe, off the island south of Sicily Wednesday night.

"Mintoff doesn't like Italians in general," said the source, "and he doesn't like Birindelli in particular."

Sources at NATO's Brussels headquarters said the admiral has returned to Italy but retained his NATO command. They explained that the job didn't depend on the commander's location.

NATO maintains an administrative headquarters in Malta by arrangement with Britain since Malta is a member of the Commonwealth and Britain is responsible for its defence.

The 60-year-old admiral was a frogman hero of the Italian navy in the Second World War and now is one of Italy's most controversial military figures.

He has publicly berated the Italian government for not appropriating more funds for the Italian navy.

Mintoff during his election campaign talked of eventually severing Malta's defence ties with Britain and the West in favor of neutralism and depending for protection from aggression on guarantees from the United States and the Soviet Union.

Crunch . . . . . No Car

Ross Payne parked his car Thursday afternoon, got out with a friend, walked across the street and turned just in time to see a two-ton dump truck roll over on his vehicle.

Payne, 54, of 1840 Grandview, had parked his auto on the Old Island Highway near Fort Rodd Hill about 1:30 p.m.

Colwood police said the truck was coming down a hill, when it tipped over. Driver Kenneth Cameron, 18, of 5134 Metchosin, was not injured.

Damage to the truck was estimated at $400 and the car, $1,000.

TALKS ON TAX REFORM

OTTAWA (CP) — Tax reform will be the main subject for discussion at the meeting next month of federal and provincial finance ministers, Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons today.

Trudeau said he hopes to acquaint the provincial leaders with the tax reform proposals presented to the Commons last week and to canvass them for their opinions.

TENANT VOTING RIGHTS PUSHED BY CAMPBELL

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said today he hopes tenants in B.C. municipalities will get the right to vote on money bylaws next year.

Campbell said he will recommend that the Municipal Act be amended to extend the right to non-property-owners. An attempt by the city of Vancouver to make the changes was delayed at the 1971 legislative session because the change should be made for all municipalities together, Campbell said.

The matter is "still in the study phase," Campbell said in Nanaimo today. But he hopes the right will be approved by the legislature.

Modified versions of money bylaw voting rights are available to tenants in some other provinces, Campbell said.

He said there is some opposition to the idea in all the political parties and among municipalities, but personally favors allowing tenants to vote on money matters.

GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Trading in all commodities was easier as prices remained steady at the close of the grain exchange.

Rapeseed futures had fractional losses on heavy hedge offers from elevator companies. Some exporter and crusher buying was done on a scale-down pattern.

Flax had some exporter buyers and posted fractional advances on light hedges.

First Trade Group Leaves On Chinese Selling Trip

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada hopes to sell "much more than wheat" to China, the federal minister of trade, industry and commerce said Thursday on the eve of departure of the first Canadian trade delegation to China in 25 years.

Jean-Luc Pepin said the entire spectrum of trade possibilities between China and Canada will be examined during the group's 10 day visit.

"We have gone over long lists of products China has been buying from other countries and will try to get a share of this market for Canada," he said.

NEW MARKETS

The delegation is especially interested in new markets for pulp and paper. "You people in B.C. have already shown us that there is a market for these products in China. We hope to find more."

"Last year our sales to China amounted to $140 million but all but a few million of this was in wheat. Chinese sales to Canada were about $20 million in textiles and processed foods."

The delegation is to meet seven state trading corporations and all government ministries in Peking. Pepin said he is to make arrangements there for a Chinese trade delegation to tour Canada.

The Canadian trade mission leaves Vancouver today and returns July 4.

FOUR-WEEK TOUR

A group of 25 persons, under the auspices of the department of continuing education at the University of B.C., also leaves Vancouver today for a four-week tour of China, including Shanghai, Soochow, Nanking, Tsinan, Peking, Changsha and Saoshan, birthplace of Mao Tse-tung.

Roy Atkinson of Saskatoon, president of the National Farmers' union, said he was going to get an insight into the structure of Chinese institutions, cultural development and education.

"We have an added incentive in this area because China has become a very large user of Canadian grain. We are interested in developing relationships that will lead not only to cultural relationships, but to important exchanges of commodities."

Clive Ansley, a teacher of Chinese history and language at the University of Windsor said he was going to assess the changes in the country since he was last there, during the cultural revolution in 1966.

"I am also trying to make contact to set up student exchanges between the University of Windsor and the University of Peking," he said.

ONLY ONE VETO

Kenneth Woodsworth of UBC, who organized the tour, said the only hitch encountered in planning was the Chinese veto of one of the travellers, UBC professor F. Edgar Wickberg, a U.S. citizen. No explanation was given by the Chinese, he said.

One American is still among the travellers, Samuel Moumoff of McGill University in Montreal, a specialist in Chinese studies. Among the 10 academics, four public school teachers and two librarians on the tour there is a lawyer, a secretary, an electrical engineer and an artist.

One journalist is in the group. She is Lisa Hobbs, a reporter for the Vancouver Sun. An Australian, Mrs. Hobbs has visited China before and written a book about the country.

'We Can Profit By Growing Consumerism'

MONTREAL (CP) — James N. Doyle, incoming chairman of the Retail Council of Canada, says he doesn't think that growing consumerism is making life for retailers any more difficult.

"Consumerism isn't something we want to combat. On the contrary, it's something we can profit by."

Mr. Doyle, vice-president and general counsel of the Steinberg's Ltd., the Montreal-based food and department store chain, succeeds J. D. Muncaster of Toronto, president of Canadian Tire Corp., for a two-year term.

The retailer, far more than the manufacturer, is in an excellent position to know what the consumer wants in products and service, said Mr. Doyle.

Being in daily contact with customers, retailers can anticipate trends ranging from what's new in women's fashion to the latest demands of those engaged in the improvement of the environment.

TASTES CHANGE

"Tastes and concerns are changing. But we're in a perfect position to keep up with them. And we have to, to stay profitable."

Mr. Doyle said that Canadian retailers are on an excellent footing with various government departments and agencies, including the federal department of consumer and corporate affairs.

The Retail Council often is consulted on proposed legislation or regulations affecting member companies before the legislation is enacted.

The council is made up of department store chains, supermarkets, variety and specialty shops and even small neighborhood stores from coast to coast.

PROMOTES DIALOGUE

"All forward-looking retailers have to promote better dialogue with consumers. Many companies already are arranging sessions with customers to discuss how they can serve them better.

"This type of contact could become more general. In addition to being done by individual companies, perhaps the council itself could get involved."

Mr. Doyle defended the record of retailers, particularly those in food, in fighting inflation.

He underlined the fact, however, that retailers need operating savings in order to pass on cost savings to the customer, and these generally come with increased productivity.

"You are going to see more self service in stores, particularly when small, high-value items aren't involved. Larger retail units instead of the small corner store type will become more prominent.

"And I think there will be room for more computerization between the retailer and his suppliers and manufacturers," he said.

Rail Union Says Yes

OTTAWA (CP) — A spokesman for the United Transportation Union announced Wednesday that railway operating employees represented by the union have voted 70 per cent in favor of accepting the terms of a two-year contract offered by Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways.

About 20,000 conductors, brakemen, yardmen, yardmasters and switchmen accepted increases of eight and seven per cent over two years as well as fringe benefits comparable to those offered to the non-operating employees. Trainmen's salaries will increase by an average of $1,200 over two years. Trainmen are paid on a mileage basis.

There was no change in the make-up of road freight crews, although both railways had said they would reduce the road crew to two men from three.

The contract for the union expired Dec. 31, 1970, and the operating employees were the last major group to vote in favor of acceptance.

Railway firemen, also represented by the UTU, now are voting on the contract.

Thomson Buys Another

BELLEVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Sale of The Intelligencer to Thomson Newspapers Ltd. was announced Thursday.

G. A. Morton, president of Ontario Intelligencer Ltd., said the sale involves the daily newspaper, a commercial printing department and the Intelligencer building.

Price was not disclosed.

Morton will remain as publisher of the newspaper and H. Myles Morton as general manager.

Acquistion of The Intelligencer brings to 31 the number of daily papers owned by Thomson in Canada. The company also owns 15 weekly papers.

Diefenbunker Pact Talks A Puzzler

NANAIMO — Striking "Diefenbunker" tradesmen expected to learn today which branch of the federal government their union is negotiating with.

The 28 tradesmen, who maintain services into the regional emergency headquarters, walked out Monday following a breakdown in negotiations between the Union of National Defence Employees and a crown agency, Defence Construction Ltd.

Workmen at a similar underground installation at Valcartier, Que. went on strike Tuesday.

The union's head office in Ottawa charged Thursday the government was involved in some behind-the-scenes negotiating, and telegrams were sent to Defence Minister Donald Macdonald, the public service commission and the federal treasury board asking which of the three the union should negotiate with.

"I believe our research officer will receive word today on who we are to deal with," said Norman Heathorn, president of the Nanaimo local.

EMERGENCY CENTRE

The underground emergency centre was nicknamed the Diefenbunker when it was built by the government of former prime minister John Diefenbaker as a refuge for provincial and municipal government officials in event of a nuclear war.

It is being picketed around the clock. Pickets are also at a transmitter site 17 miles north of Nanaimo at Nanoose Bay.

Pickets have been withdrawn from the naval research station operated by Canada and the United States at Nanoose Bay until the union establishes the legality of such action.

jurisdiction in the field of social security.

Mr. Trudeau announced that the federal government has formally accepted the proposed charter worked out at Victoria last week.

He said the charter is a compromise, but a good compromise. Ottawa had made a number of important concessions. So had the provinces.

Though none of the 11 governments got exactly what it wanted, all felt that Canada would be better served with the charter than without it.

"That being the nature of compromise, and therefore the nature of the charter, it is a matter of particular disappointment and regret that the government of Quebec has decided that it is not prepared to accept the charter as it stands," Mr. Trudeau said.

However, there was "some hope" in the fact that Quebec's refusal was based on objection to only one aspect of the charter.

chapters on Vietnam, Johnson says:

On March 17, 1964, he approved a recommendation by Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara that U.S. forces should be prepared for a "program of graduating military pressure against the North."

In September, 1964, Johnson approved a contingency plan for bombing recommended by the military to be implemented if Communist forces made a "spectacular" attack in the South. But he then waited until Feb. 7, 1965, to start bombing, twice rejecting military advice from advisers, to begin earlier.

About three weeks after the first major battle involving American ground troops in a campaign in June, 1965, Johnson authorized a 25,000-man troop increase to 75,000. He writes: "I was convinced that our retreat from this challenge would open the path to World War III."

Ads Will Hit Drinking Driver

The provincial government today warned drinking drivers that a newspaper advertising campaign will be launched soon against their dangerous habits.

An announcement from Attorney-General Leslie Peterson's office said statistics for the first quarter of 1971 showed an increase in automobile accident deaths and at least 50 per cent of the fatalities involved drinking drivers.

The advertising campaign will be jointly sponsored by the motor vehicle branch and the B.C. automobile insurance board.

Port Delay By Ottawa Irks Mayor

The federal government has again assured Victoria its request for a locally controlled harbor is under consideration, but Mayor Courtney Haddock says he wants more information.

Haddock said today it has been 18 months since Victoria first asked for a harbor commission and no decision has been made.

In an interview, Haddock quoted from a letter received recently from Transport Minister Don Jamieson that says "please be assured that we are cognizant of your concern."

The letter adds that Ottawa will be in touch later on the matter, but Haddock said he will write back first, asking how soon he can expect a decision.

"In the first place," Haddock said, "the federal government (has said it) wants to have ports run locally.

"It's been 18 months and they haven't come to grips with it."

Mediator Sought

Saanich police commission has applied for a mediation officer to try to settle the contract dispute with the Saanich Police Association, it was announced Thursday.

Talks broke off last week with the association saying no firm counter offer was made by the commission while the commission said three separate offers were made. No details were disclosed.

A mediation officer has also been applied for by Victoria in its dispute with the Victoria Policemen's Union. City police rejected an offer which would have raised the monthly salary of a first-class constable to $884 by July 1, 1972. He now receives $728 a month.

Greater Victoria police unions, which have scheduled a mass meeting this Wednesday night, are seeking salary parity with Vancouver and lower mainland forces. Vancouver police will be paid $887, for first-class constables, on July 1 of this year.

Oak Bay and Esquimalt police unions, meanwhile, have announced that they have joined Victoria and Saanich police in "working to rule." No one explained what the move means and there has been no slowdown reported. Negotiations were continuing.

The Victoria Policemen's Union, through its spokesman, Vancouver lawyer Charles Maclean, has written the city police commission asking for a meeting with the full commission.

The letter said this was "not an attempt to circumvent" Victoria lawyer E. E. Pearlman, who has acted as spokesman for the commission's bargaining committee.

Pickets Interrupt Rest Home Work

Pickets appeared at the National Nursing Homes Ltd., retirement apartment site in Oak Bay this morning, stopping work for a brief period.

It was the first time the site, at Cadboro Bay Road and Bowker Avenue, has been picketed since construction started 10 days ago.

Eight women and three men picketed two entrances to the site of the retirement centre, variously estimated to be costing $3 million to $5 million.

Some of the pickets carried signs reading "legal strike for workers rights, CUPE 1311." This union has been on strike for 269 days at Sandringham Private Hospital, which is managed by National Nursing Homes Ltd.

'SWEET WORDS' BID TO GET ROUGH RIDE

Mayor Courtney Haddock's attempt to make abusive language directed at police officers a crime was accepted Thursday by council, but Haddock said he expects it to get a "rough ride" in future.

The only objection came from Ald. Peter Pollen who said he appreciated Haddock's intentions but thought it "most unwise" to send the mayor's resolution to the September convention of the Union of B.C. Municipalities.

The resolution would have to get by B.C.'s municipal leaders to gain any momentum in B.C. It is also planned to send a copy to all major cities in Canada for endorsement, and to all-attorneys-general.

To become law, the measure would be written into the Criminal Code of Canada and passed by the House of Commons.

It calls for a law to make it an offence punishable upon summary conviction to "use grossly insulting or abusive language in addressing a police officer while such officer is engaged in the performance of his duties."

Ald. Hugh Ramsay asked if the attempt was redundant since it is already an offence to use gross language in public.

City solicitor Terry O'Grady answered that such language directed at a police officer is not the same as using it in public.

Haddock did not enter the discussion, except to say that his resolution "probably will get a rough ride" when it goes to the UBCM convention.

Language 'Too Common'

TORONTO (CP) — The establishment of a truly-Canadian identity has been greatly hampered by the ethnic diversity of the population, the French and English languages and the high degree of influence of the United States, a leader in the arts said Thursday.

Dr. Pauline McGibbon, chancellor-elect of the University of Toronto, said: "Canadians are mass consumers of the American culture, and most Canadians don't oppose this influence.

"Our constant exposure to the American way subtly and substantially moulds our values, our view of the world, our careers, leisure time and homes," she told the Ontario conference on economic and cultural nationalism.

Ontario Premier William Davis, announcing the conference March 30, said the object was to hear a wide range of viewpoints and put into perspective the diverse problems inherent in foreign participation in Canada's economy and society.

LANGUAGE A BARRIER

Dr. McGibbon, vice-chairman of the Ontario Youth Theatre and vice-president of the Canadian Conference of the Arts, said one obstacle to the development of a national character is the language.

"Canada must face the world without the cultural insulation of a distinctive language. We share with other countries . . . two of the most widely-spoken languages in the world today, particularly English."

This fact "enormously smoothes our transactions with allies, friends and even antagonists; but also facilitates the easy transplantation to our cultural soil of other mens' flowers, and a good many of their weeds."

She told about 100 delegates the inundation of U.S. culture and the influence of other countries' cultures on the growing number of immigrants "constitute serious impediments, perhaps even threats to the development of a thriving and distinctive Canadian culture."

Louis Applebaum, executive director of the Ontario Council for the Arts, suggested that governments and the people pay more attention to creative artists and their ideas and how they see Canada's future.

He said artists can be valuable leaders, serving as "weather vanes or barometers showing where society should go."

LACKS CAPITAL

At an earlier panel discussion, Robert W. Bonner, former British Columbia attorney-general and now vice-chairman of MacMillan-Bloedel Ltd., said Canada has not the potential capital sources to create the number of new jobs that will be needed during this decade.

Canada needs a free flow of cash to create jobs, he said.

Edwin A. Goodman, a Toronto lawyer and former national campaign chairman for the Progressive Conservative party, said the inflow of United States money during 1966-68 led to inflation and policies to combat inflation created unemployment.

L. R. Wilson, economic research director for John Labatt Ltd., argued that foreign investment has been more prominent in the growth of the "have" regions of Canada and this has increased regional disparities.

Senator Eugene Forsey of Ontario said if Canada decided to go it alone economically, blocked foreign investment and eliminated foreign control already established, Canadians would pay highly for it.

"We can have all freedom from multinational corporations and foreign investment if we so choose, but if we are going to promote Canadian economic independence we need a strong central government, perhaps even stronger than the one now in power," the Liberal senator said.

EARLY MORNING CRASH today sent driver to hospital with head and leg injuries. Edward Craig, 26, of 2980 Pickford, police said, was the only occupant of the vehicle when it hit the pole on Superior near Menzies about 7 a.m. He was pinned briefly in the wreck and was later reported in fair condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital. Police said car was "a write-off." (Irving Strickland Photo.)

Strike Hits Hydro HQs

1,500 Employees Affected

The electrical workers' strike against B.C. Hydro was extended today, with pickets posted at the main office building in Vancouver and a number of regional offices including Victoria.

Office workers, members of the Office and Technical Employees Union, did not cross picket lines, leaving only supervisors on the job.

About 1,500 non-electrical employees were affected, most of them at Vancouver. Sixty-five union office workers stayed out in Victoria. Other centres picketed today included offices at Prince Rupert, Prince George, Vernon and Newton.

Almost 2,000 electrical workers have been on strike since late Monday. Skeleton crews have remained in generating stations and emergency crews are available.

JORDAN RIVER

At noon, B.C. Hydro said the picket line outside its Vancouver head office ended but pickets remained at the Victoria regional office.

In Victoria, B.C. Hydro regional manager A. J. Macdonald said the only other operation being picketed was the hydro-electric construction site at Jordan River, which has been closed for a week, affecting 250 persons.

Two power outages—Thursday night when a car smashed a hydro pole in front of Cherry Bend Motel on the Patricia Bay Highway and this morning when a swan flew into conductors cutting power to Rest Haven Hospital, Sidney — were repaired by emergency crews of striking members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

John Hiebert, assistant business manager of IBEW Local 258, said there was 100 per cent support by office employees for the electrical workers picket lines at the B.C. Hydro building on Pandora Avenue.

NO PUBLIC HURT

"We don't intend to hurt the public if at all possible," he said. Asked if transit service will be picketed, he said "not yet."

From Vancouver, Local 258 business manager Doug Cronk, asked why picketing was only planned for part of today, said "We are not desirous of creating a wage loss for other employees of B.C. Hydro unnecessarily. It indicates to B.C. Hydro what they may expect."

Hydro and the electrical workers are deadlocked over terms for a new collective agreement. Wages, job security, job classifications, sick benefit and isolation pay are among the main issues. Hydro has offered 14 per cent more over two years while the union wants 18½ per cent. Linemen, one of the major job groupings, now earn $5.39 an hour.

The union began rotating 24-hour strikes 23 days ago, gradually stepping up the momentum.

TRUDEAU, BENNETT TO LEAD CEREMONIES

A "symbolic" federal cabinet meeting in Victoria will help celebrate the July 1 holiday next week.

Prime Minister Trudeau and his cabinet will meet briefly in the provincial cabinet chamber before joining Premier Bennett and his cabinet in ceremonies in front of the legislative buildings.

The federal cabinet will be led by two pipers from the Empress Hotel to the Legislative Buildings at 9:30 a.m.

Trudeau and Bennett will make brief speeches shortly after 10 and at 10:28 the pair will jointly start the London-Victoria air race by trans-Atlantic telephone call.

Constitutional Talks Finished for Now—PM

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said today he is not thinking of convening another federal-provincial constitutional conference at this time.

He made the comment to reporters after indicating in the Commons he does not regard as final Quebec's veto of proposed constitutional changes contained in the "Victoria charter."

Mr. Trudeau told reporters he has no plans for a meeting with Premier Robert Bourassa of Quebec.

But if Quebec wanted to talk about something in the charter it considered unclear, Ottawa would listen with an open mind.

If Quebec wanted to change its "no" to a "yes" the other governments probably would not hold out for the Monday deadline for response to the charter.

UP TO OTHERS

If any new conference is convened, it will have to be at somebody else's initiative, Mr. Trudeau added.

Quebec had said "no" to the results of three years' work.

In Quebec, constitutional matters were of interest to only a "small group." Quebecers were much more interested in jobs and the economy.

Mr. Trudeau said there could still be compromise on top of the Victoria compromise. But he was not looking for one. If Quebec wanted one it would have to convince 10 other governments.

The prime minister also said he is not seeking extension of the Monday deadline. If the provinces wanted to extend it, that was OK by him.

PROMISE TO CO-OPERATE

In the Commons, Mr. Trudeau said that if Quebec can rephrase the proposed amendment to which it objects and thus remove uncertainty about it, the federal government would try to work out a solution with the other provinces.

At one point in his statement, Mr. Trudeau used the phrase "if the charter is not accepted." The charter comprises the proposed constitutional amendments.

The prime minister said that apparently Quebec objects to only one suggested amendment which would give the provinces joint jurisdiction with the federal authority in the field of family, youth and manpower training allowances.

Premier Robert Bourassa has said there is "uncertainty" about joint jurisdiction and that Quebec wants full

TALKS ON TAX REFORM

OTTAWA (CP) — Tax reform will be the main subject for discussion at the meeting next month of federal and provincial finance ministers, Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons today.

Trudeau said he hopes to acquaint the provincial leaders with the tax reform proposals presented to the Commons last week and to canvass them for their opinions.

MEDINA TO BE TRIED FOR MY LAI—JUDGE

Times News Services

ATLANTA, Ga. — A military judge today ruled that Captain Ernest L. Medina must stand trial by court-martial on charges that he murdered 102 South Vietnamese civilians in My Lai.

Judge Col. Kenneth A. Howard ruled at the end of a four-day pre-trial hearing in which Medina's lawyer, F. Lee Bailey, sought to have charges dismissed on grounds that the United States Army conducted an illegal conspiracy in its efforts to try the captain.

One man, Lieut. William Calley, has already been convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment as a result of the My Lai massacre. His conviction is under review.

LBJ Memoirs Confirm Advance War Planning

GARDEN CITY, N.Y. (AP) — Newsday says Lyndon B. Johnson's still unpublished White House memoirs acknowledge that his administration was privately preparing in early 1964 for large-scale United States military involvement in Vietnam, long before the depth of the U.S. commitment was known to the public.

The memoirs, to be published in November, support many of the findings of the classified Pentagon study of the war's origins which the government has been fighting to keep secret, says the Long Island newspaper.

The former president's book, now largely in galley form at the New York publishing firm of Holt, Rinehart and Winston, is entitled, The Vantage Point: Perspectives of the Presidency.

Newsday says it obtained information about the material from a publishing industry source. It gives this account:

Johnson depicts himself in the book as having been hesitant for several months over approving military advisers' recommendations for bombing raids against North Vietnam. But in February, 1965, he writes, he told his aides that he was approving the bombing.

MADE DECISIONS EARLY

In the book, Johnson says that he first decided to pursue President Kennedy's policy of defending South Vietnam sovereignty while flying back to Washington only a few hours after Kennedy's assassination in November, 1963.

Pentagon Case Splits Court Five to Four

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Supreme Court agreed today to hold a hearing on government attempts to restrain publication of articles in the New York Times and the Washington Post on a Pentagon study of the Vietnam war.

The cases will be heard by the justices at 11 a.m. EDT Saturday. Meanwhile, the court barred the two newspapers from running any stories to which the government has objections.

Had the court not acted before nightfall, the Post would have been free to resume its series without restrictions. In a plea filed this morning, the newspaper said the public interest required free discussion of the war and that any further restraint would be "totally intolerable."

The court split 5 to 4 in keeping the paper from running uncensored articles beginning with the Saturday edition.

CONTINUE LIMITED BAN

By the same vote the court continued restrictions placed on The Times by the U.S. Circuit Court in New York City. The Times will be able to print Saturday only material that the justice department considers safe for public consumption.

The Times told the court in a petition Thursday that the restraint, imposed by the U.S. Circuit Court in New York City, "imposes an insupportable burden on a free press."

TV President Faces Charge

Life-Saving Boats Inadequate—Sailor

By IAN HAMILTON

One of six fishermen rescued after battling heavy seas and gale-force winds off the West Coast of Vancouver Island Thursday feels official life-saving boats now in operation are inadequate.

Stewart Mackay of Vancouver said in an interview this morning that lifeboat crews did a first-class job, but that they were hampered by failures in navigation equipment, such as radar.

The 37-year-old fisherman with eight years of experience suffered an engine-breakdown on the Taranui in mid-morning after the storm broke and drifted until rescue in late afternoon.

CONFUSION

"There was nothing but confusion out there," he said with regard to communication problems. "Something is radically wrong here."

He suggested Coast Guard 104 and 105, assigned to such rescue operations on the west coast of the island, are inadequate to ensuring the safety of hundreds of boats in the fishing fleet.

"Let's face it, the real tough conditions are on the exposed west coast, and bigger, superior rescue vessels should be in operation here."

Rescue officials this morning credited action taken by other fishermen, among them a Victoria man, as "invaluable" factors in the safety of six fishermen who reported in trouble on four boats off Tofino.

Crunch . . . . . No Car

Ross Payne parked his car Thursday afternoon, got out with a friend, walked across the street and turned just in time to see a two-ton dump truck roll over on his vehicle.

Payne, 54, of 1840 Grandview, had parked his auto on the Old Island Highway near Fort Rodd Hill about 1:30 p.m.

Colwood police said the truck was coming down a hill, when it tipped over. Driver Kenneth Cameron, 18, of 5134 Metchosin, was not injured.

Damage to the truck was estimated at $400 and the car, $1,000.

TENANT VOTING RIGHTS PUSHED BY CAMPBELL

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said today he hopes tenants in B.C. municipalities will get the right to vote on money bylaws next year.

Campbell said he will recommend that the Municipal Act be amended to extend the right to non-property-owners. An attempt by the city of Vancouver to make the changes was delayed at the 1971 legislative session because the change should be made for all municipalities together, Campbell said.

The matter is "still in the study phase," Campbell said in Nanaimo today. But he hopes the right will be approved by the legislature.

Modified versions of money bylaw voting rights are available to tenants in some other provinces, Campbell said.

He said there is some opposition to the idea in all the political parties and among municipalities, but personally favors allowing tenants to vote on money matters.

LIFE ALOFT

Apple Green Hair And Spider Fuzz

Chapter Two of our term-end essay, How I Spent My Summer Vacation, is all about painting a house — or an entire house, as you soon come to think of it — and is offered, for want of any other reason, as an educational feature. The lesson to be learned is this: one should never spend one's vacation painting an entire house.

Two weeks ago the house in question seemed to me a medium-sized house. It appeared to have smooth, flat sides which might be transformed from their tattle-tale grey into a shining Apple Green in just three or four days, perhaps five at the outside.

Today I see this house as a gigantic pile of pitted, absorbent lumber that soars to dizzying heights with cracks and crevices and odd little corners high among the eaves and 18,000 small window panes.

It is the same house, of course, except that in the beginning I appraised it's paintability with a lunatic optimism—"Oh," I said, "three or four days, perhaps five at the outside." It was only when I'd fallen six days behind schedule that the vastness, the enormity of it began to induce the kind of schizophrenia that engulfed A. Hitler, history's most famous house-painter.

I once thought of the house as remarkably well constructed, built in a time when craftsmen were judged by the quality of their work. Now I'm just as convinced it was laboriously fitted together by some mad eccentric who hated the human race. Indeed, I've come to visualize him poring over his secret blueprints and his evil design for upper works that might be reached with a paint brush only by an agile, left-handed orang-outang. "They'll never paint this one," I hear him muttering.

A thing I discovered very quickly was that one does not paint an entire house alone. Next to a sudden appearance of Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey, there's no surer, swifter way to attract an audience.

You've only to set foot on the ladder's bottom rung to be aware of figures drifting in from all points of the compass, come to see you sustain your double fracture. They are a sartorial lot. Any furtive ideas you may have to use a little Tom Sawyer psychology to enlist helpers may be abandoned immediately. These are watchers, not doers. They are dressed for contemplation, never participation.

My early work was devoted to painting up under the eaves. The professionals, I daresay, have some technique for this, but the amateur, do-it-yourselfer instantly faces the problem of Apple Green paint cascading down the forehead and arms. Naturally, this gives birth to much original wit.

"Ah," one of the spectators will surely remark, "It's the boy with the Apple Green hair." Or: "You're doing a nice job with yourself and the ladder, but when are you going to start on the house?"

Beneath this merry exterior, of course, they're all critics. There was one fellow who stood by the hour at the foot of my ladder, tireless in pointing out the places I'd missed.

"You missed a place there," he would say, pointing. "Go home, friend," I urged him repeatedly. He never did.

Another unexpected aspect of painting an entire house, a part of the painter's trade unknown to the world at large, is the war with the insects. I had thought I'd come to terms with the insect world, having unconditionally surrendered my garden to them, but here they were again, bent on attrition.

There is one species of gnat which has a mass suicide complex unequalled by anything in nature except possibly the human race and the Lapland lemming. As soon as you have completed a nice, virgin stretch of wall and climbed down from the ladder to stand back admiring it (a thing I seemed to do with great regularity) a cloud of these self-destructing bugs would hurl itself against the shining surface, instantly gaining a memorial that will remain until some other poor sap, in the long-distant future, may decide to cover the evidence of their folly.

I had repeated encounters, as well, with a great many little fuzzy, wool-like balls that are said to be deposited, for reasons known only to themselves, by a type of spider.

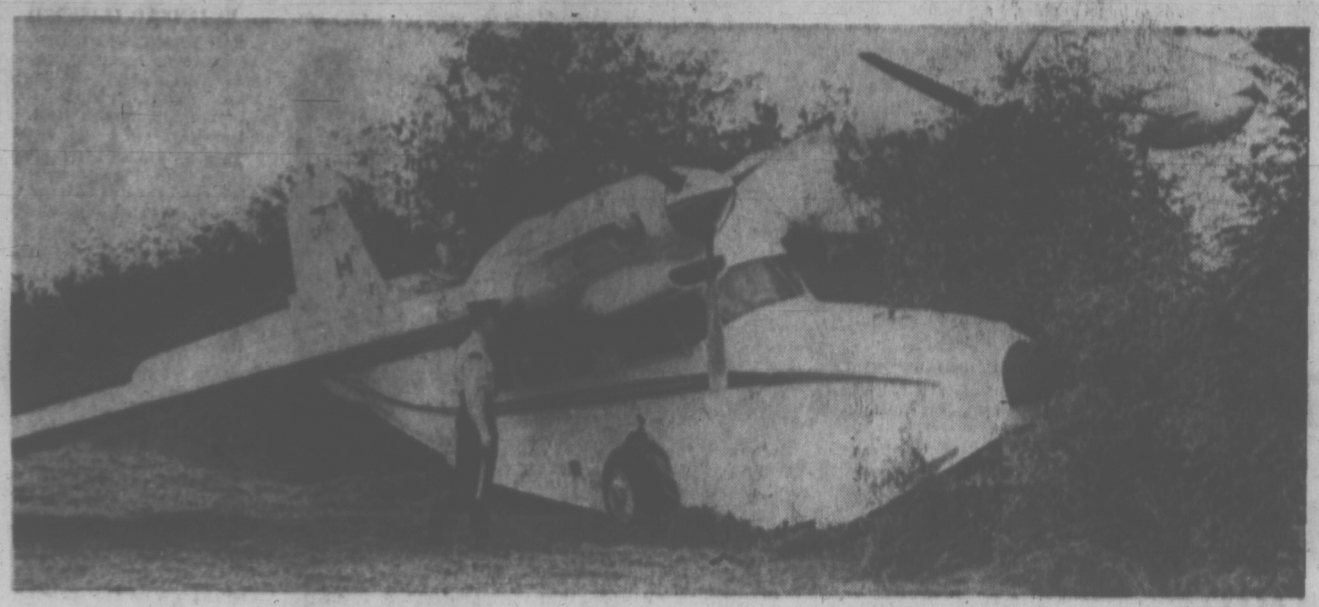
This poses a harrowing problem for the harassed painter. There he is, you see. Brush in one hand. Pail of Apple Green in the other. Leaving his teeth and only the will to live to maintain his position on the ladder.

With a back-breaking effort he plucks off the wool-like ball which has an incredible adhesive quality magnified 40 times by all that sticky Apple Green on the painter's hand.

Carefully, delicately, holding the fuzz between thumb and forefinger, he transfers it to the other thumb and forefinger, unwittingly drawing the paint brush diagonally from one ear to the other. He shakes his hand, snaps his fingers. The fuzz remains, much to the delight of the fans in the crowded bleachers below. In the end he must descend the ladder to wipe it off on the grass, just as the spiders planned all along.

You might think that there would be some fleeting reward of satisfaction when the day arrives, as it eventually did, that marks the completion of the job. It is not to be. You stand back and you see every imperfection, every place you missed. Already the spiders are spinning their woolen balls. And there is the neighbor, still there, telling you, "It badly needs a second coat."

It's not a nice thing to do, but you must kill him.



Heavily Damaged Aircraft Lies in Field Near Victoria Airport

'I never realized what a lucky man I am'

CHABOT

A B.C. government plane, returning from taking Labor Minister James R. Chabot to Golden, crash-landed in a field near the Victoria International Airport Thursday evening.

The only persons on board the Grumman Goose at the time were the pilot and co-pilot, who are in good condition today, one at Rest Haven Hospital and the other at home.

Page was thought to have a fractured spine but today hospital officials said the injury might be confined to a crushed vertebra.

After receiving landing instructions at about 6:25 p.m., one of the plane's engines failed, then the other.

The McKinnon conversion carried out on the plane two years ago increased her fuel capacity from 108 to 154 U.S. gallons by installing extra fuel tanks in the outer wings.

The two 200-horsepower radial engines were exchanged for two turbo-prop 270-horsepower ones.

The hull and landing gear was also changed to allow heavier loads to be carried, sound-proofing was installed in the cabin as well as picture windows. An escape hatch was also part of the conversion.

Lorette was unable to say how old the plane was, saying that only Capt. J. B. Toye, chief pilot of the B.C. highways department, would know.

But Toye said he was not allowed to give out any information.

"I'm sorry," he said, "our orders are no dice."

In the past, Minister of Rehabilitation and Social Improvement Phil Gaglardi, the most constant user of government planes, has complained about the aged aircraft.

An investigation team from the federal department of transport was on the scene shortly after the accident, worked all night, and was continuing the investigation today.

In Vancouver, regional superintendent Cy Leyland, said the field investigation could take three or four days and it would probably be six months before the findings were released from Ottawa.

Heavily damaged, the plane lies partly imbedded in bush, and guarded by RCMP.

Chabot, who had flown to Golden on government business, was unaware of the accident until contacted by the Times at his Invermere home today.

He said there had been no indication of any mechanical problems while he was aboard although the planes were "fairly old ones that had been converted."

After asking about the accident and being assured the two men aboard were alive, he added.

"I never realized what a lucky man I am."

Family Service Faces Choice

The Family and Children's Service will decide Monday whether it can support the idea of coming under the jurisdiction of the Capital Regional District.

Acting on behalf of the regional board, Community Council executive director Garth Homer has been meeting F and CS executive director Gordon Wright for the past three weeks.

Homer will report to the regional district Wednesday.

"The Family and Children's Service is in no way committed. We feel once the Capital Regional District has decided whether it thinks the proposal is good, we will be able to say more about it.

"All I can say is it presents to the Family and Children's Service a great many serious questions," Wright said today.

He said the meetings have been a continuation of work begun in 1970 when the Community Council released a regional social services feasability study.

The report was commissioned by the regional district. It recommended the F and CS, Victoria, Saanich and provincial government welfare officers here be brought under one jurisdiction.

Wright would not say whether the F and CS board of directors will support the proposal. Several questions will be discussed at Monday's board meeting.

These include:

Whether a body of elected persons is the best administrative unit to set policy on child welfare matters.

Whether the contrast of the F and CS's 150 staff and group home parents will be honored in a reorganization.

Whether such a large-scale reorganization will improve social services.

Whether social welfare payments should be added to F and CS programs.

Northwestern Prof Succeeds Courtney

A Canadian scholar regarded as the outstanding authority on children's drama on this continent will join the University of Victoria's theatre department, it was announced today by Dean Peter Garvie of the Fine Arts Faculty.

Born in Saskatchewan, Dr. Barbara McIntyre took her undergraduate degrees and her master of arts at the University of Minnesota and her doctorate at the University of Pittsburgh.

Most recently she has been on the faculty of Northwestern University, considered the founding institution for studies in children's and creative drama.

Dr. McIntyre replaces Professor Richard Courtney who resigned recently under controversial circumstances and leaves for Calgary to join the University of Alberta theatre department at the end of this month.

In 1967-69, Dr. McIntyre organized the International Children's Theatre Conference for the American Educational Theatre Association of which she has been a director for seven years.

SPEC Hits Big Gaps In Pollution Report

There are substantial gaps in an interim report stemming from public hearings held last August into forest industry pollution, a senior SPEC officer said today.

One of the biggest is lack of any timetable for introducing proposed new pollution control standards, said Kurt Horn, president of the Cowichan-Malahat branch of the Society for Pollution and Environmental Control and vice-president of SPEC's provincial body.

The report was prepared for the provincial Pollution Control Director, William Venables, by the panel of technical experts which took part in last year's enquiry. Venables has circulated it among the 39 parties which appeared at the hearing for their comments and criticisms by July 7.

PESTICIDES IGNORED

Horn said the recognizes the draft nature of the report but it deals only with mill pollution aspects in the forest industry and ignores such problems in logging as lack of green belts, stream protection and use of pesticides and herbicides.

These criticisms will be made in a SPEC brief, he added.

The preliminary report, which has not been released to the public, suggests Venables should review all pollution control permits and advise the industries operating under them of new requirements as they are completed.

It suggests three levels of pollution control and says all new installations should be required to achieve the top level from the outset.

UPGRADED

It says installations at the lesser of two lower levels should be upgraded on an interim basis to the intermediate level.

The report recommends that where feasible all existing discharges should be upgraded by planned stages to achieve the top level.

Emily Ostapchuk, a member of the panel which prepared the preliminary report, said Thursday:

"Economics is the whole thing involved. The companies don't want to spend a lot of money if they don't have to. But unfortunately I think they are going to have to."

Mrs. Ostapchuk said the proposed top level is probably not now being met by any pulp and paper mill in the world.

DISON APPEAL TUESDAY

A Jordan River mining company will get its chance next week to convince the pollution control board to permit the dumping of tailings into Juan De Fuca Strait.

Dison Development Ltd., will appeal a decision of the pollution control branch which prohibited the dumping into the straits from the Sunro mine near Jordan River this month.

The hearing is set for 10 a.m. Tuesday in room 104 of the Provincial Museum.

DEMONSTRATOR FINED $200 FOR ASSAULTING OFFICIAL

Paul Watson, 20, of Vancouver today was fined $200 after being convicted here of assault causing bodily harm, a charge arising from the noisy demonstration at the opening of the legislature last January.

Judge William Ostler gave Watson three months to pay.

Mackay was cut twice in the face in the legislative public gallery during a scuffle. Demonstrators at the time were shouting "we want jobs" during the throne speech.

Ostler said he realized the incident occurred "in the excitement of the moment" when Watson saw another man being choked.

But the judge added that he felt the force used by the accused was unreasonable.

Ostler also said Watson was being sentenced "only for the assault."

Watson was to appear in traffic court this afternoon before Judge E. F. M. Robinson charged with causing a disturbance by shouting arising from the same incident.

Court officials at noon, however, were not sure whether this charge would continue following the conviction by Ostler.

arthur mayse

A TIME OR TWO EACH year, I'm visited by a gentle old woman who exists quietly in the present, but lives in the past. We start out by making small-talk about the quality of the weather, or the state of her cat's health, or the damage that slugs can do in a garden. Then she remembers how her husband used to patrol their garden for slugs, and present is exchanged for past.

She has returned to her real life, in which her husband makes war on slugs, and they go shopping together, and once in a while drive up to Parksville or Qualicum for a fishing weekend.

"I'm afraid of the water," she will say. "But Frank gets so much pleasure out of his fishing . . ."

She is a widow, and since the recollection of good days when her husband was alive is her chief pleasure, why grudge her that easement?

There are other dwellers in the past whose excursions are of a darker sort. I try to steer clear of them, but that isn't always possible. One casual word, and you find that you have tripped the latch of a Pandora's box. Out come the troubles.

It is reasonable to assume that a man comfortable in the present should be glad to turn his back on a past that was marked by hardship, disappointment and worry. Most of us who lived through the depression of the thirties are content to do so. When we remember that period, it is chiefly with satisfaction at having muddled through it.

We don't make a fetish of it. Yet there are some who do, and more than one jobless young man or woman in these less than piping times suffers endless re-hashings of The Great Depression, when times were really tough.

Not all that was bad or hurtful in the past can be forgotten by the same token, it's both pointless and damaging to establish a pattern of embittered brooding over what's gone and can't be mended.

Once in Nova Scotia, I made the mistake of admiring a photograph on a commercial fisherman's living-room wall. It showed a boat at moorings — a high-nosed Cape Islander rigged for sword-fishing.

Yes, she had been a fine boat. And I was to know that she would still be afloat if one of those damned Newfie junks hadn't held on a collision course, and rammed her while she was closing on a fin.

And so on, until my ears grew weary . . . an episode sourly reviewed in excruciating detail, as if it had happened that same week instead of a dozen years earlier.

True, no man forgets a good boat, even when he has a better one to serve him in the present. But unless he has let memory turn malignant, he doesn't force every possible opportunity to tell his tale of woe again.

I heard that account three separate times, then found sense and became hard to catch.

There are also those who are never happier, if that's the word, than when comparing the present unfavorably to the past.

They are constitutionally opposed to change. Then was good, now is bad, and their conversation reflects this viewpoint.

The politician who was a bit of a rascal in his day becomes a great leader: they don't make them like that any more.

The boy who wears his hair long is automatically a no-good: it wasn't that way when they were boys.

The modern car isn't a patch on the automobile as it used to be. The modern school dispenses a far shakier brand of education than the little red schoolhouse.

The present, in fact, can't hope to win a round against times-as-they-once-were.

Sometimes when listening to such harkings-back, it occurs to me that the best possible cure for this addiction to yesterday would be a return to the past. Not as the speaker chooses to remember it, but as it really was.

I have no quarrel with the past. There are times and happenings, faces and places that I like to remember. But life has other dimensions. We can't bring back the past, or hurry the future, but we do have the present. And it's in the present, like it or lump it, that we live.

(Vera) Davis, Cornwall, Ont.; ten grandchildren; three great-grandchildren; sisters, Mrs. Florence Anderson, Winnipeg, Man., and Mrs. Doris Bolton, Vermont, U.S.A.; brothers, Rex, and Art, Smith Falls, Ont. and Ted, Ottawa, Ont. Mr. Stilwell was a former employee of the C.N.R. at Saskatoon, Sask. and Winnipeg, Man.
Service will be held in the Lannin Funeral Home, Smiths Falls, Ont., on Saturday, June 26, 1971 at 2:00 p.m. Interment in the Hillcrest Cemetery, Smiths Falls, Ont. Arrangements by the Sands Mortuary Limited, Victoria, B.C.

The Lord is my shepherd: I shall not want.
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: He leadeth me beside the still waters.
He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake.
Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies; thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

9 IN MEMORIAM

ELLISON—Bill, who passed away one year ago, June 25, 1970.
In loving memory of my husband.

I do not need a special day
To bring you to my mind;
The days I do not think of you
Are very hard to find.

They say time heals all sorrow
And will help me to forget;
But time so far has only shown
How much I miss you yet.

God gave me strength to bear it
And courage to face the blow,
But what it meant to lose you
No one will ever know.

It was God's will to take you,
He knew you needed rest;
His garden must be beautiful,
He only takes the best.

When I am sad and lonely
And everything goes wrong,
I seem to hear you whisper,
Cheer up and carry on.

Each time I see your photo
You seem to smile and say,
Don't cry, I'm only sleeping;
We'll meet again some day.

"Forever in my thoughts."
—Emma.

ELLISON — In loving memory of our brother-in-law, Bill, who passed away June 25, 1970.
Our family circle has been broken,
A link gone from our chain;
But though we're parted for a while,
We know we'll meet again.
Some day we hope to meet you,
Some day, we know not when,
We shall meet in a better land,
And never part again.
We shall meet with many a loved one
That was torn from our embrace,
We shall listen to their voices,
And behold them face to face.
Sunshine passes, shadows fall,
Love's remembrance outlasts all.
—Always remembered Al and Belle

ELLISON—Bill, who passed away one year ago, June 25, 1970. In loving memory of Dad.
"The pearly gates were opened,
A gentle voice said "Come,"
And with farewells unspoken he gently entered home.
—Lovingly remembered by son Roy, daughter-in-law Eleanor and grandchildren.

. . . RESCUE

sank and the lone occupant escaped without serious injury.

Jim Scott of 1508 Derby, aboard the Camjim, and at least four other fishermen, spent the day searching for and standing to beside boats experiencing difficulties.

Scott stood to beside the Leda Two which was "bobbing like a cork" amid 50-m.p.h. winds while another vessel, the Arlene May, located and stayed with The Toiler until rescue boats arrived.

The Taranui, with Mackay aboard, was eventually towed into Bamfield harbor late in the evening.

Heavy rain and static resulted in bad reception conditions for the many vessels attempting to use the airwaves, and Scott's large troller is reported to have acted as a communications link between rescuers and those in peril.

MAJOR WEAKNESS

Mackay says it is common knowledge among fishermen that rescuers aboard the Tofino and Bamfield Coast Guard vessels experience problems hearing their radio because of excessive engine noise. He said this factor is a major weakness with all future rescue operations in mind unless something is done.

Rescue operations started at 8 a.m. and continued until late evening with the fishing boats in peril spread out all over a wide expanse of sea, according to a Bamfield Lifeboat Station spokesman.

Ads Will Hit Drinking Driver

The provincial government today warned drinking drivers that a newspaper advertising campaign will be launched soon against their dangerous habits.

An announcement from Attorney-General Leslie Peterson's office said statistics for the first quarter of 1971 showed an increase in automobile accident deaths and at least 50 per cent of the fatalities involved drinking drivers.

The advertising campaign will be jointly sponsored by the motor vehicle branch and the B.C. automobile insurance board.

jurisdiction in the field of social security.

Mr. Trudeau announced that the federal government has formally accepted the proposed charter worked out at Victoria last week.

He said the charter is a compromise, but a good compromise. Ottawa had made a number of important concessions. So had the provinces.

Though none of the 11 governments got exactly what it wanted, all felt that Canada would be better served with the charter than without it.

"That being the nature of compromise, and therefore the nature of the charter, it is a matter of particular disappointment and regret that the government of Quebec has decided that it is not prepared to accept the charter as it stands," Mr. Trudeau said.

However, there was "some hope" in the fact that Quebec's refusal was based on objection to only one aspect of the charter.

chapters on Vietnam, Johnson says:

On March 17, 1964, he approved a recommendation by Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara that U.S. forces should be prepared for a "program of graduating military pressure against the North."

In September, 1964, Johnson approved a contingency plan for bombing recommended by the military to be implemented if Communist forces made a "spectacular" attack in the South. But he then waited until Feb. 7, 1965, to start bombing, twice rejecting military advice from advisers to begin earlier.

About three weeks after the first major battle involving American ground troops in a campaign in June, 1965, Johnson authorized a 25,000-man troop increase to 75,000. He writes: "I was convinced that our retreat from this challenge would open the path to World War III."

Port Delay By Ottawa Irks Mayor

The federal government has again assured Victoria its request for a locally controlled harbor is under consideration, but Mayor Courtney Haddock says he wants more information.

Haddock said today it has been 18 months since Victoria first asked for a harbor commission and no decision has been made.

In an interview, Haddock quoted from a letter received recently from Transport Minister Don Jamieson that says "please be assured that we are cognizant of your concern."

The letter adds that Ottawa will be in touch later on the matter, but Haddock said he will write back first, asking how soon he can expect a decision.

"In the first place," Haddock said, "the federal government (has said it) wants to have ports run locally.

"It's been 18 months and they haven't come to grips with it."

Mediator Sought

Saanich police commission has applied for a mediation officer to try to settle the contract dispute with the Saanich Police Association, it was announced Thursday.

Talks broke off last week with the association saying no firm counter offer was made by the commission while the commission said three separate offers were made. No details were disclosed.

A mediation officer has also been applied for by Victoria in its dispute with the Victoria Policemen's Union. City police rejected an offer which would have raised the monthly salary of a first-class constable to $884 by July 1, 1972. He now receives $728 a month.

Greater Victoria police unions, which have scheduled a mass meeting this Wednesday night, are seeking salary parity with Vancouver and lower mainland forces. Vancouver police will be paid $887, for first-class constables, on July 1 of this year.

Oak Bay and Esquimalt police unions, meanwhile, have announced that they have joined Victoria and Saanich police in "working to rule." No one explained what the move means and there has been no slowdown reported. Negotiations were continuing.

The Victoria Policemen's Union, through its spokesman, Vancouver lawyer Charles Maclean, has written the city police commission asking for a meeting with the full commission.

The letter said this was "not an attempt to circumvent" Victoria lawyer E. E. Pearlman, who has acted as spokesman for the commission's bargaining committee.

Pickets Interrupt Apartment Work

Pickets appeared at the National Nursing Homes Ltd., retirement apartment site in Oak Bay this morning, stopping work for a brief period.

It was the first time the site, at Cadboro Bay Road and Bowker Avenue, has been picketed since construction started 10 days ago.

Eight women and three men picketed two entrances to the site of the retirement centre, variously estimated to be costing $3 million to $5 million.

Some of the pickets carried signs reading "legal strike for workers rights, CUPE 1311." This union has been on strike for 269 days at Sandringham Private Hospital, which is managed by National Nursing Homes Ltd.

'SWEET WORDS' BID TO GET ROUGH RIDE

Mayor Courtney Haddock's attempt to make abusive language directed at police officers a crime was accepted Thursday by council, but Haddock said he expects it to get a "rough ride" in future.

The only objection came from Ald. Peter Pollen who said he appreciated Haddock's intentions but thought it "most unwise" to send the mayor's resolution to the September convention of the Union of B.C. Municipalities.

The resolution would have to get by B.C.'s municipal leaders to gain any momentum in B.C. It is also planned to send a copy to all major cities in Canada for endorsement, and to all attorneys-general.

To become law, the measure would be written into the Criminal Code of Canada and passed by the House of Commons.

It calls for a law to make it an offence punishable upon summary conviction to "use grossly insulting or abusive language in addressing a police officer while such officer is engaged in the performance of his duties."

Ald. Hugh Ramsay asked if the attempt was redundant since it is already an offence to use gross language in public.

City solicitor Terry O'Grady answered that such language directed at a police officer is not the same as using it in public.

Haddock did not enter the discussion, except to say that his resolution "probably will get a rough ride" when it goes to the UBCM convention.

Language 'Too Common'

TORONTO (CP) — The establishment of a truly-Canadian identity has been greatly hampered by the ethnic diversity of the population, the French and English languages and the high degree of influence of the United States, a leader in the arts said Thursday.

Dr. Pauline McGibbon, chancellor-elect of the University of Toronto, said: "Canadians are mass consumers of the American culture, and most Canadians don't oppose this influence.

"Our constant exposure to the American way subtly and substantially moulds our values, our view of the world, our careers, leisure time and homes," she told the Ontario conference on economic and cultural nationalism.

Ontario Premier William Davis, announcing the conference March 30, said the object was to hear a wide range of viewpoints and put into perspective the diverse problems inherent in foreign participation in Canada's economy and society.

LANGUAGE A BARRIER

Dr. McGibbon, vice-chairman of the Ontario Youth Theatre and vice-president of the Canadian Conference of the Arts, said one obstacle to the development of a national character is the language.

"Canada must face the world without the cultural insulation of a distinctive language. We share with other countries . . . two of the most widely-spoken languages in the world today, particularly English."

This fact "enormously smoothes our transactions with allies, friends and even antagonists; but also facilitates the easy transplantation to our cultural soil of other mens' flowers, and a good many of their weeds."

She told about 100 delegates the inundation of U.S. culture and the influence of other countries' cultures on the growing number of immigrants "constitute serious impediments, perhaps even threats to the development of a thriving and distinctive Canadian culture."

Louis Applebaum, executive director of the Ontario Council for the Arts, suggested that governments and the people pay more attention to creative artists and their ideas and how they see Canada's future.

He said artists can be valuable leaders, serving as "weather vanes or barometers showing where society should go."

LACKS CAPITAL

At an earlier panel discussion, Robert W. Bonner, former British Columbia attorney-general and now vice-chairman of MacMillan-Bloedel Ltd., said Canada has not the potential capital sources to create the number of new jobs that will be needed during this decade.

Edwin A. Goodman, a Toronto lawyer and former national campaign chairman for the Progressive Conservative party, said the inflow of United States money during 1966-68 led to inflation and policies to combat inflation created unemployment.

L. R. Wilson, economic research director for John Labatt Ltd., argued that foreign investment has been more prominent in the growth of the "have" regions of Canada and this has increased regional disparities.

EARLY MORNING CRASH today sent driver to hospital with head and leg injuries. Edward Craig, 26, of 2980 Pickford, police said, was the only occupant of the vehicle when it hit the pole on Superior near Menzies about 7 a.m. He was pinned briefly in the wreck and was later reported in fair condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital. Police said car was "a write-off." (Irving Strickland Photo.)

Constitutional Talks Finished for Now—PM

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said today he is not thinking of convening another federal-provincial constitutional conference at this time.

He made the comment to reporters after indicating in the Commons he does not regard as final Quebec's veto of proposed constitutional changes contained in the "Victoria charter."

Mr. Trudeau told reporters he has no plans for a meeting with Premier Robert Bourassa of Quebec.

But if Quebec wanted to talk about something in the charter it considered unclear, Ottawa would listen with an open mind.

If Quebec wanted to change its "no" to a "yes" the other governments probably would not hold out for the Monday deadline for response to the charter.

If any new conference is convened, it will have to be at somebody else's initiative, Mr. Trudeau added.

Quebec had said "no" to the results of three years' work.

In Quebec, constitutional matters were of interest to only a "small group." Quebecers were much more interested in jobs and the economy.

Mr. Trudeau said there could still be compromise on top of the Victoria compromise. But he was not looking for one. If Quebec wanted one it would have to convince 10 other governments.

The prime minister also said he is not seeking extension of the Monday deadline. If the provinces wanted to extend it, that was OK by him.

In the Commons, Mr. Trudeau said that if Quebec can rephrase the proposed amendment to which it objects and thus remove uncertainty about it, the federal government would try to work out a solution with the other provinces.

At one point in his statement, Mr. Trudeau used the phrase "if the charter is not accepted." The charter comprises the proposed constitutional amendments.

The prime minister said that apparently Quebec objects to only one suggested amendment which would give the provinces joint jurisdiction with the federal authority in the field of family, youth and manpower training allowances.

Premier Robert Bourassa has said there is "uncertainty" about joint jurisdiction and that Quebec wants full

Life-Saving Boats Inadequate—Sailor

By IAN HAMILTON

One of six fishermen rescued after battling heavy seas and gale-force winds off the West Coast of Vancouver Island Thursday feels official life-saving boats now in operation are inadequate.

Stewart Mackay of Vancouver said in an interview this morning that lifeboat crews did a first-class job, but that they were hampered by failures in navigation equipment, such as radar.

The 37-year-old fisherman with eight years of experience suffered an engine-breakdown on the Taranui in mid-morning after the storm broke and drifted until rescue in late afternoon.

CONFUSION

"There was nothing but confusion out there," he said with regard to communication problems. "Something is radically wrong here."

He suggested Coast Guard 104 and 105, assigned to such rescue operations on the west coast of the island, are inadequate to ensuring the safety of hundreds of boats in the fishing fleet.

"Let's face it, the real tough conditions are on the exposed west coast and bigger, superior rescue vessels should be in operation here."

Rescue officials this morning credited action taken by other fishermen, among them a Victoria man, as "invaluable" factors in the safety of six fishermen who reported in trouble on four boats off Tofino.

One vessel, the Maris Stella

TALKS ON TAX REFORM

OTTAWA (CP) — Tax reform will be the main subject for discussion at the meeting next month of federal and provincial finance ministers, Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons today.

Trudeau said he hopes to acquaint the provincial leaders with the tax reform proposals presented to the Commons last week and to canvass them for their opinions.

Federal officials will also be on hand to assist the provinces if they wish to plan new tax legislation of their own that will dovetail with national tax laws.

1,500 Employees Affected

Electrical workers pickets left the B.C. Hydro regional office on Pandora Avenue early this afternoon.

Office workers, who earlier declined to cross the picket lines, were not at work.

An official said the office workers probably weren't aware the pickets had gone. "We are not being caught by an onslaught at the door," he said.

Office workers, members of the Office and Technical Employees Union, did not cross picket lines, leaving only supervisors on the job.

About 1,500 non-electrical employees were affected, most of them at Vancouver. Sixty-five union office workers stayed out in Victoria. Other centres picketed today included offices at Prince Rupert, Prince George, Vernon and Newton.

Almost 2,000 electrical workers have been on strike since late Monday. Skeleton crews have remained in generating stations and emergency crews are available.

JORDAN RIVER

At noon, B.C. Hydro said the picket line outside its Vancouver head office ended.

In Victoria, B.C. Hydro regional manager A. J. Macdonald said the only other operation being picketed was the hydro-electric construction site at Jordan River, which has been closed for a week, affecting 250 persons.

Two power outages—Thursday night when a car smashed a hydro pole in front of Cherry Bend Motel on the Patricia Bay Highway and this morning when a swan flew into conductors cutting power to Rest Haven Hospital, Sidney — were repaired by emergency crews of striking members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

John Hiebert, assistant business manager of IBEW Local 258, said there was 100 per cent support by office employees for the electrical workers picket lines at the B.C. Hydro building on Pandora Avenue.

NO PUBLIC HURT

"We don't intend to hurt the public if at all possible," he said. Asked if transit service will be picketed, he said "not yet."

Hydro and the electrical workers are deadlocked over terms for a new collective agreement. Wages, job security, job classifications, sick benefit and isolation pay are among the main issues. Hydro has offered 14 per cent more over two years while the union wants 18½ per cent. Linemen, one of the major job groupings, now earn $5.39 an hour.

TRUDEAU, BENNETT TO LEAD CEREMONIES

Prime Minister Trudeau and his cabinet will meet briefly in the provincial cabinet chamber before joining Premier Bennett and his cabinet in ceremonies in front of the legislative buildings.

The federal cabinet will be led by two pipers from the Empress Hotel to the Legislative Buildings at 9:30 a.m.

Trudeau and Bennett will make brief speeches shortly after 10 and at 10:28 the pair will jointly start the London-Victoria air race by trans-Atlantic telephone call.

LBJ Memoirs Confirm Advance War Planning

GARDEN CITY, N.Y. (AP) — Newsday says Lyndon B. Johnson's still unpublished White House memoirs acknowledge that his administration was privately preparing in early 1964 for large-scale United States military involvement in Vietnam, long before the depth of the U.S. commitment was known to the public.

The memoirs, to be published in November, support many of the findings of the classified Pentagon study of the war's origins which the government has been fighting to keep secret, says the Long Island newspaper.

The former president's book, now largely in galley form at the New York publishing firm of Holt, Rinehart and Winston, is entitled, The Vantage Point: Perspectives of the Presidency.

Newsday says it obtained information about the material from a publishing industry source. It gives this account:

Johnson depicts himself in the book as having been hesitant for several months over approving military advisers' recommendations for bombing raids against North Vietnam. But in February, 1965, he writes, he told his aides that he was approving the bombing.

MADE DECISIONS EARLY

In the book, Johnson says that he first decided to pursue President Kennedy's policy of defending South Vietnam sovereignty while flying back to Washington only a few hours after Kennedy's assassination in November, 1963.

Pentagon Case Splits Court Five to Four

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Supreme Court agreed today to hold a hearing on government attempts to restrain publication of articles in the New York Times and the Washington Post on a Pentagon study of the Vietnam war.

The cases will be heard by the justices at 11 a.m. EDT Saturday. Meanwhile, the court barred the two newspapers from running any stories to which the government has objections.

Had the court not acted before nightfall, the Post would have been free to resume its series without restrictions. In a plea filed this morning, the newspaper said the public interest required free discussion of the war and that any further restraint would be "totally intolerable."

The court split 5 to 4 in keeping the paper from running uncensored articles beginning with the Saturday edition.

By the same vote the court continued restrictions placed on The Times by the U.S. Circuit Court in New York City. The Times will be able to print Saturday only material that the justice department considers safe for public consumption.

The Times told the court in a petition Thursday that the restraint, imposed by the U.S. Circuit Court in New York City, "imposes an insupportable burden on a free press."

Crunch . . . . . No Car

Ross Payne parked his car Thursday afternoon, got out with a friend, walked across the street and turned just in time to see a two-ton dump truck roll over on his vehicle.

Payne, 54, of 1849 Grandview, had parked his auto on the Old Island Highway near Fort Rodd Hill about 1:30 p.m.

Colwood police said the truck was coming down a hill, when it tipped over. Driver Kenneth Cameron, 18, of 3134 Metchosin, was not injured.

Damage to the truck was estimated at $400 and the car, $1,600.

Snowy Summer

VANCOUVER (CP) — There was fresh snow Thursday morning on the mountains that face Vancouverites across their harbor, an intemperate slap in the face that reminded the normally balmy city that it is experiencing some of the worst summer weather on record.

TENANT VOTING RIGHTS PUSHED BY CAMPBELL

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said today he hopes tenants in B.C. municipalities will get the right to vote on money bylaws next year.

Campbell said he will recommend that the Municipal Act be amended to extend the right to non-property-owners. An attempt by the city of Vancouver to make the changes was delayed at the 1971 legislative session because the change should be made for all municipalities together, Campbell said.

The matter is "still in the study phase," Campbell said in Nanaimo today. But he hopes the right will be approved by the legislature.

Modified versions of money bylaw voting rights are available to tenants in some other provinces, Campbell said.

He said there is some opposition to the idea in all the political parties and among municipalities, but personally favors allowing tenants to vote on money matters.

60 SEA OTTERS FROM AMCHITKA

COOS BAY, Ore. (AP) — A four-engine Hercules transport landed at Coos Bay Thursday with a cargo of 60 otters from Amchitka Island, Alaska.

The sea otters are to be transplanted off the southern Oregon coast as part of a project in which the Oregon game commission and the Alaska fish and game department are co-operating. Last year, 31 sea otters were transplanted to the Oregon coast. Only one is known to have died.

Before the transplant last year, the last reported sighting of a sea otter on the Oregon coast was in about 1870.

The animals were flown in individual tank cages containing sea water. A fire department water truck met them at the airport to wet them down prior to transfer by truck to floating holding pens just offshore where they'll be kept for a few days for observation before being turned loose.

The transplant was one of a series along the coasts of Oregon, Washington, British Columbia and southeastern Alaska where the sea otter flourished before being hunted almost to extinction in the last half of the 19th century.

PRINCE RUPERT — Three young adventurers leave this north-coastal city Sunday on a 475-mile kayak trip down the coast to Vancouver. Doug Christison and Rayn Mitchell, both 20, and Les Whitely, 17, will use glass fibre kayaks, hoping to complete the trip in a month.

ASHFORD, England — Prince Philip told a group of service intelligence officers Thursday the most important thing "is to get your envelopes stuck down firmly." "You want to watch some of these modern envelopes which stick themselves" the prince said. "They are very easy to unstick. "The last stage of this exercise for anyone who doesn't stick his envelope properly is a court martial."

WATERLOO, Iowa — A restaurant cook who was fired for refusing to serve a badly-burned stew to a customer cannot expect unemployment benefits. A state hearing officer ruled that serving the stew might damage the reputation of the restaurant but not that of the cook, Dortha Gardner, 57. He said her remarks in warning a customer from ordering the stew "were derogatory and not in the best interests of the employer."

DECATUR, Ill. — It took a pork chop to enable Jerry Sheehy to serve a subpoena. Sheehy, a state's attorney's investigator, was confronted by an unfriendly dog Thursday when he attempted to serve a subpoena to a witness in a murder case being conducted in Ciruit Court. The investigator could not get past the dog until Basil Granias, Macon County state's attorney, drove by the house on his way back from the grocery store. Granias, seeing Sheehy's plight, produced a pork chop from a shopping bag, offered it to the dog and Sheehy walked by the dog to deliver the subpoena.

YUBA CITY, Calif. — Mass murder suspect Juan Corona is well enough to return to his jail cell today, one week after he was hospitalized with chest pains, doctors have decided. Physicians said Corona, 37, who has lost 25 pounds since his arrest as suspect in the killing of 25 itinerant farm workers, had suffered no heart damage although tests "suggested there was a disturbance."

U.S. Senate Extends Draft 2 Years

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Senate has voted to extend the draft two more years, sweeten soldiers' pay $2.7 billion and chart an Indochina withdrawal plan disowned in advance by the White House.

But after seven weeks of debate the Senate's 71-to-16 approval Thursday of the draft extension bill may well be too late for Congress to finish final action before the current Selective Service Act expires next Wednesday at midnight.

Some senators threaten a filibuster if a House of Representatives and Senate conference kills or weakens an end-the-war amendment added by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield.

One knowledgeable senator predicts final action may not come before mid-July.

The Mansfield amendment calls for a phased withdrawal of U.S. troops during nine months if all U.S. prisoners of war are released.

The White House has said the Mansfield measure won't affect war policy.

The conference has more than a dozen differences to reconcile between the House and Senate versions of the bill. One of the most important is an amendment by Senator Gordon Allott (Rep. Colo.), which raised the military pay boost to the same level approved by the House, but spread most of it among lower ranks

Some senators had hoped to kill the draft outright as a means of forcing the military to accept the all-volunteer armed force concept now.

Mayor Tries to Muzzle Source of Float Funds

Mayor Courtney Haddock Thursday prevented the assistant city clerk from reading a report mentioning the source of funds for Victoria's float in the centennial parade July 20 in Vancouver.

Haddock interrupted by saying the matter is "not for publication." The mayor did not explain why.

The float, which will spoof Victoria's reputedly stuffy Edwardian character, will ride on a borrowed chassis and $1,500 handout from the province. The city will pay only $665.

After council's finance committee heard July 3 that a new float would cost as much as $5,620, aldermen accepted without question the new estimate of $2,155 made possible through a float chassis borrowed from another unnamed municipality and the province's grant.

The report partly read to council Thursday said: "It is intended to utilize a stripped chassis borrowed from another municipality. The concept is essentially a spoof at Victoria utilizing a theme similar to the Norris cartoons."

The report goes on to say "while Mr. Jerry Gosley will not be able to make the trip himself, he has been kind enough to provide the city with four persons to man the float."

When George Merz, assistant city clerk, began to read the next paragraph with "Yesterday, June 23, word was received from the provincial government . . ." Haddock cut him off.

The Times learned the sentence continued: "that they would contribute $1,500 toward the cost of constructing this float and sending it to Vancouver. Accordingly, it is requested that city council authorize an additional $655 from the city of Victoria to make up the total cost of $2,155."

The city decided to build a special float for the July 20 parade because its existing float would be seen in Vancouver later in the summer during the Pacific National Exhibition.

Loan Deal Made

OTTAWA (CP) — A $2.5 million interest-free advance to the Caribbean Development Bank is being made by Canada under an agreement just signed, the first major commitment of funds from the $5 million Caribbean development fund announced last December. The money, which must be repaid to Canada is to provide credit to farmers.

GRAVE YIELDS CELT AND HIS CHARIOT

YORK, England (UPI) — The grave of a Celtic chieftain buried with all his possessions, including his battle chariot, has been unearthed in northern England. Archaeologists Thursday were calling it one of the biggest finds of the century in England.

Archaeologist Tony Brewster said the grave dates from Britain's Iron Age, about 200 BC. He said he discovered the site from the air after a quarry company had stripped topsoil from an area 200 yards long and 100 yards wide.

"It is the first grave of its kind to be found in the past 60 years," Brewster said.

"This is probably the richest of all, and is the first to be excavated by modern methods," he said.

Lemon Hart.
The rum with the 5,700 mile difference.

Like most good rums, Lemon Hart comes to Canada from the Caribbean.

Unlike every other rum, Lemon Hart comes via Britain. Why, you ask?

The reason is simple. It's been found that the moist, gentle British air does something special to great rums, to make them even greater. So they wait there, coming to a unique and glowing maturity.

Only then does Lemon Hart complete the journey to Canada, and to you. In fact, Lemon Hart goes 5,700 miles out of its way to please you.

The best way to repay the compliment is to buy some. Lemon Hart rums. The adventurous spirits.

TV President Faces Charge

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Columbia Broadcasting System president Frank Stanton faces contempt-of-Congress charges, as a result of his refusal to supply film and sound recordings in the possession of CBS to a subcommittee of the House of Representatives.

The committee had ordered him to supply material edited out of the documentary Selling of the Pentagon, and Stanton Thursday replied "I respectfully decline."

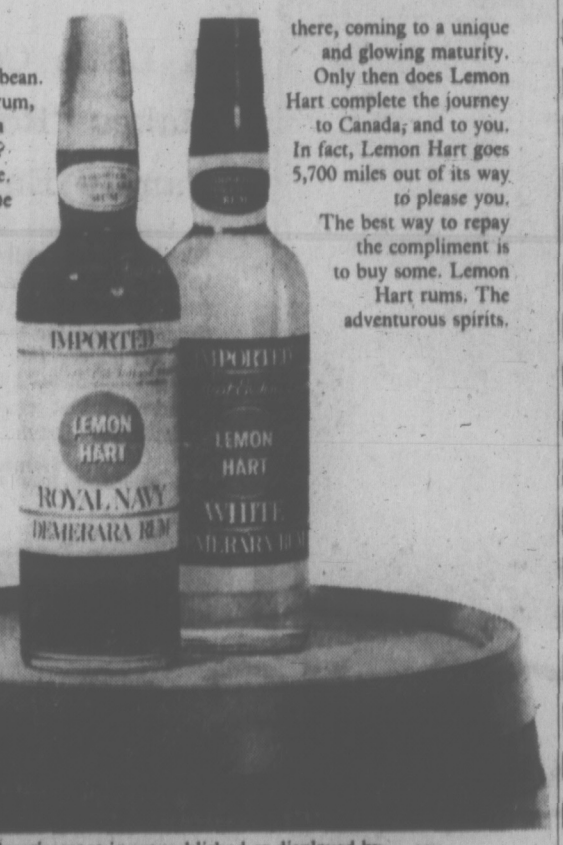
Lemon Hart.
The rum with the 5,700 mile difference.



Like most good rums, Lemon Hart comes to Canada from the Caribbean.

Unlike every other rum, Lemon Hart comes via Britain. Why, you ask?

The reason is simple. It's been found that the moist, gentle British air does something special to great rums, to make them even greater. So they wait there, coming to a unique and glowing maturity.

Only then does Lemon Hart complete the journey to Canada, and to you. In fact, Lemon Hart goes 5,700 miles out of its way to please you.

The best way to repay the compliment is to buy some. Lemon Hart rums. The adventurous spirits.
